It can be truthfully asserted that the journal-jats of any State combine more genuine ability and real devotion to the public interests, than are presented in the members of any dolibera-tive body called into legal existence to consider public affairs. It was the journalists of Penn-vania who educated the people up to the neces-sity of constitutional reform as reform made necessary by the corruption of official bodies and the evil conduct of public men-as corrup-tion and vilences which it is found difficult to banish. It is the newspaper which makes pub-lic opinion-which points cut the errors of gor-erment, and leads the people to their correc-tion. If Judge Woodward had recognized this fact in his early career, instead of wrapping himself up in a dignity entirely egotistical, he would to-day be more tworably known to fame, and more highly hoursed by the people. We do not deay that there are venal men in jour-nalism. It would be impossible to organize so large a body of men without embracing some that are corrupt; but as a general rule, the journalist is the fairest and most intelligent representative now in the service of the people, the journalist is fact, who as who framed. it will diverger this fact, the new Constitution comes up for ratification, those who framed. 2.
