

NEWS FROM ALL NATIONS.

—Olive Logan's new novel will be called "Nothing".

—Bret Hart's new, lecture is about "Some Bad People".

—James Parton will complete his literary work for the Chicago Literary world some time next year.

—Miss Annie Howells does the literary work for the Chicago Literary world some time next year.

—Matthew Arnold refers to Byron as a "country gentleman with no ideas".

—Tin-shirt fronts are the fashion at Norwich, Conn.

—Chinese camp meetings have broken out in California.

—Wheat is worth 90 cents a bushel in Iowa and 15 cents a bushel in Louisiana.

—Louisiana claims to produce the finest shipbuilding timber in the world.

—New Orleans is the home of 10,000 working girls.

—A good sermon is like a kiss—it requires but two things and one application.

—At the Vienna exhibition 1,091 exhibitors gained prizes, including 40 diplomas of honor.

—A committee has been appointed in France to "regulate" the earth-quake.

—A baby was born in Freeborn Co., Minn. This fact is remarkable, as its mother is Chinese.

—The Registered Labor Department earned the government $85,000 net profit the past year.

—There is a Missouri family in which there are twelve brothers—the father and his eleven sons.

—A new and valuable field of coal has been discovered in Northamptonshire, England.

—Hot tea and coffee are served to the passengers on the dining room cars on the Hartford and New Haven road.

—A clergyman lately said that modern young ladies were not the daughters of Adam and Eve, but of Adam and Eve's daughters.

—Chicago children put stones on the tracks of the street cars and try to elude the language of the driver.

—Three new war vessels have just been added to the British navy, and twenty-five others are in course of construction.

—Chicago wives get divorced because their husbands are too long for them to keep with.

—An Irish paper mentions the case of a Dublin girl who shot her brother and committed suicide in consequence.

—Like other public benefactors, "Old Probabilities" started life as a "barometer".

—On the first day's session of the State Mr. Sumner will introduce again his civil rights bill.

—General Hardee was kicked in the side by a mule a few days ago, and is dangerously ill.

—Joe Johnston and Beauregard are the only two men in the country the Herald cannot resist.

—The game law of this State provides that any person who shoots or kills or causes to be killed any bird or animal on Sunday is liable to a fine of $25.

—A firm of London bookkeepers have purchased from the Shah the copyright of the "Morning Post".

—R. M. Hargrove, United States consul at Bremen, died of consumption on the steamship Astoria, on September 11.

—The People of Ontario are trying to secure a law for a statute of Temecula by constitutional amendment.

—The Rev. Charles Kingsley, the brilliant and popular English author, will visit this country again after Christmas.

—Wise to be wise in practice to be a General of an army, but not to be a General of an army in practice.

—John Wilson has married Laura Lawrence, and a wretched newspaper man, according to the London Standard.

—A new garment for the ladies' wear the coming winter will be called the "Shawl".

—Most of the ladies appear to be "ruined" at present, to keep pace with the prevailing fashion.

—A young London woman has had her husband arrested for assaulting her while walking home from their marriage ceremony.

—It is now stated that the Chinese have been given a full view of the century as a creature, and that it is more efficacious than any other.

—The Pittsburg (Pa.) maidens agree not to purchase any dry goods after 6 p. m. They want the shops to shut and let the clock strike liberty.

—Miss Annie Lippencott, a daughter of "Olive Greenwood," made her debut on the stage at Detroit, Michigan, last week.

—Rev. Adoniram Murray says that "the amount of lying done in this country today is something as stupendous as any other nation's."

—An old lady from the country, with six unmarried daughters, went into Augusta, Georgia, the other day hunting for a husband.

—Miss Margaret Bennett, a sister of the late James Gordon Bennett of the New York Herald, died the other day at Hartford, in England, in the eighty-third year of her age.

—Anti-Masonry is reviving in Vermont. Vermont is the only State that voted for Anti-Masonic national candidates in 1872.

—A placard in a Brooklyn barber-shop announces: "Boots blacked inside." But must not be very bad for the shoemaker.

—A Pennsylvania girl went black-berrying five weeks ago, and when heard from the other day was keeping house with her husband in Oregon.

—Henry Wenk, the Tidonite, barber, who was arrested a short time since charged with an attempt to rob his own children, was tried and convicted at Warren last week.

—Carl Vogt argues that Adam was a monkey before Eve was created, because a gorilla has thirteen ribs, and Adam only twelve, and having been created to make woman.

—The Cincinnati admirer of Alexander D. Stephens wrote to him asking him if he was good for the blood, and Mr. Stephens wrote back on sixteen pages of notes that he was.

—The King of Dahomey died last month, and owing to his unpopularity only twenty-four years of age.

—A citizen of Washington Pa., offers to donate two acres of land within the borough limits to any company or person who will locate a manufactory on it that will employ a hundred hands.

—The California Iron Company has been created to build the great granite capacity at Johnston. It is proposed to build two factories of superior style, embracing all the modern improvements.

—The Kingston (N. Y.) Journal has been made happy by the visit of a man who had by his back subscriptions for thirty-one years, and advance subscriptions of ten years, and had received a letter from him.

—A pensioner of the war of 1812, who has just received an annual government pension of $240 and a cash bonus of $100, is now said to be the richest man in Rockingham county, New Hampshire.

—The engineers of some of the Pennsylvania Railroads are engaged in the laying of the line in the water-tanks of their locomotives, which they are said to be doing in spite of the constant motion to which they are subjected.

—The bonded debt of Indiana county, as reported by the State auditor of Statistics, amounts to $164,021.00. The floating debt is set down at $19,001.37. This amounts to about six dollars to each inhabitant.

—An old woman out in Lick Hollow, near a mountain and side valley, she is in a quandary to know what to do with her. John West told her to send him to Burnham, a Chicago Standard.

—A spiteful cotemporary says: "I have people call it 'outrageous' that a religious reading matter. Certainly it is outrageous. They should be furnished with the 'Herald' and 'Standard' and 'Lancet' papers."

—The Puxteauxway Argus apologizes for a typographical error that appeared in a late issue in a recent issue. It says that the line "I have people call it 'outrageous'" should have been "I have people call it 'outrageous'."

—A Lick Hollow out the silent star, which was quite a mistake, indeed.

Bradford Reporter

Towanda, Thursday, Sept. 25, 1873.

EDITORS: E. O. GOODRICH, S. W. ALVORD

REPUBLICAN STATE TICKET.

FOR STATE TREASURER, ROBERT W. MACKAY, OF ALLEGANY COUNTY.

SUPREME JUDGE, ISAAC G. GORDON, OF JEFFERSON COUNTY.

REPUBLICAN COUNTY TICKET.

FOR REPRESENTATIVES, E. R. MYER, OF WYOMING, JAMES H. WEBB, OF SMITHFIELD.

FOR ASSOCIATE JUDGE, J. W. INGHAM, OF WILMOT.

TREASURER, MAT. MARSHALL, OF FRANKLIN.

COMMISSIONER, ABRAM SNELL, OF AYTHENS.

JURY COMMISSIONER, B. F. KNAPP, OF COLUMBIA.

AUDITOR, E. R. DELONG, OF TOWANDA NORTH.

THE REPUBLICAN VOTES.

Are printed and ready for distribution. Republicans in the several districts should see to having them forwarded and properly prepared before the day of election.

STAND BY THE TICKET.

There are those in the republican party, and the writer hereof is one of them, who preferred some other candidate to J. H. Wren, but the convention having placed him in nomination, every consistent party man is bound to yield him support, unless he has forfeited his claim to such support, by infidelity to the principles of the party, or some act proving his lack of integrity. No one accuses him of either of these crimes. His record as a consistent republican, an honor to himself and the party, he has faithfully served. Wherever he is known his name stands as a synonym for honesty and integrity. That he has faults, we shall not attempt to deny, and that many of his legislative acts and political maneuvers do not meet with our approval is well known, but the perpetuity of our county demands that we should have at this time our wisest and most experienced men in the legislature, and believing Mr. Wren has no superior as a sagacious, incorruptible public servant, we believe that all petty jealousies and personal pique should be laid aside, and that republicans should stand on the elevated plane of public weal.

Mr. Hume has laid his plans to secure a member of the legislature from Lycoming county, favorable to his schemes, and should he be successful he will require a united opposition on the part of those opposed to Minnequa. In this county, to thwart his designs, in this the paramount issue, and all questions of party policy were lost sight of by the republican convention, in selecting candidates for the legislature. On the other hand, the democratic convention and the organ of the party surrendered to Hume. One of the candidates is the open advocate of division, and the Argus is doing all in its power to aid the movement, under the crack of Col. Proctor's lash, if no more potent influence has been brought to bear. Division or anti-division is the question to be settled at the ballot-box on the 14th of October. If you desire to see the county maintained intact, vote for Wren and Wren; but if you wish to aid one of the most unscrupulous, and notoriously corrupt men in the commonwealth, and hand down to your posterity a tarnished reputation, cast your ballot for the men selected by the advocates of division.

OUR TICKET.

Without detracting in the least from the personal character of the gentlemen placed in nomination by the democratic party of this county, we are happy to say that in point of personal worth our ticket has seldom been excelled. Every candidate of the republican party is worthy the support of any honest man, and their election will be an acknowledged honor to the republican party and a credit to the intelligence of Bradford county. We can conscientiously recommend every one of them to the hearty and united support of the party.

A DEMOCRATIC paper in Detroit, Michigan, has at last realized that the Democratic party ought to have surrendered when Lizz died, and it says so. The Chicago Times, also Democratic, copies the unfeeling remark as a very true statement of the truth, and continues: "When Lizz surrendered, the last ground of hope for the resurrection of the Democratic party disappeared. Because when Lizz surrendered, the last hope of slavery disappeared, and with it the last and only reason for asserting that peculiar doctrine of State rights which was at the same time a denial of the equal rights of individuals." Never having been, and rendered incapable by its history of being, a champion of individual rights, the Democratic party, under Lizz's surrender, had no object in existence, and could not give a reason why it should exist."

SOME GRAPES. The Argus and Gleaner are sorely perplexed because the editors of this paper happen to be fortunate enough to hold government offices for which the editors of those papers have been longing all their lives.

THE FINANCIAL CRISIS.

For some time past the barometers of financial circles have indicated an approaching monetary storm, which culminated on Thursday last in the suspension of Jay Cooke & Co., the well-known and extensive bankers of Philadelphia. The closing of their doors on Third street, was quickly followed by a suspension of the branch houses in New York and Washington. Such a concern does not topple over without carrying with it lesser concerns, and Friday was a day of intense excitement in the money circles of New York, Philadelphia and Boston, and before the close of business on that day several other large houses in the former cities had yielded to the pressure and closed their doors; among them such substantial firms as E. W. Clark & Co., First & Haven, Vaux & Co., and others of lesser note. On Saturday, two of the leading Trust Companies were compelled to suspend payment. On Saturday morning matters appeared more bright in Wall street, but the rumored failure of Commodore Vanderbilt to meet a large amount of paper discounted by the Union Trust Company for the Lake Shore Railroad Company, on his endorsement, created the wildest excitement, and compelled the Trust Company to close its doors. The Commodore afterward raised the funds and lifted the paper, but subsequently to the suspension.

On Saturday evening the President, Secretary of the Treasury and other leading officers of the government arrived in New York, and had a consultation with the bankers. The President was strongly urged to place a portion—$20,000,000—of the $44,000,000 Treasury reserve in the hands of New York, which are government depositories, to be distributed at the discretion of the officers of these institutions. The President and Secretary, after careful consideration, decided that such a step would be illegal, and fraught with dangerous consequences, and declined to accede to the proposition. The Secretary, however, ordered the purchase of an unlimited amount of bonds, by the Sub-Treasurer, and it is believed this measure will give the needed relief.

It is thought most, if not all, the establishments will be able to resume business as soon; the excitement abates and confidence is again restored. As an evidence of the feverish state of men's minds, it is reported that a depositor drew a check for five thousand dollars, the amount of his balance in the Fidelity Trust Co., Philadelphia, and on having it promptly cashed, returned it to the cashier and left the establishment.

The crisis has undoubtedly been brought about by the efforts of the capitalists to push forward railroad enterprises, faster than the growth of the country warrants, and the sweeping away of colossal fortunes in a day has verified the proverb of the wise man of Holy writ, that "Riches certainly take to themselves wings and fly away."

We are happy to be able to announce that none of the banking houses or capitalists of this county are affected by the panic.

ARE YOU REGISTERED?

It is time for all Republicans, who have neglected to see whether they are assessed and registered, to attend to that all-important business. Do not wait until within ten days of the election to examine the registry lists and see that they contain the names of all the Republican voters in the county. The time to do this is at present. But a little more than two weeks remain until the election, and this is not too long for a campaign. Let the committee men in each township give their personal attention to the subject of the enrollment and see that there are no omissions of Republicans from the lists.

The Gleaner comes to the rescue of Wolz, the young man who was so suddenly converted to the Minnequa scheme last winter. We submit the question whether our strictures upon the young man were not merited. The facts of the case were these: Two of the three Senators who represented the districts to be affected by the Minnequa bill, and all the members, were opposed to the measure. This fact was, or should have been, evidence enough to members not interested in the matter that the people did not want the new county. In the early part of the session Mr. Wolz, so understood the subject, and denounced the effort to secure the legislation in violation of the wishes of the people. There was no change on the part of the members or senators from the interested counties, and yet this man Wolz suddenly changed his mind, and became an earnest advocate of the iniquitous scheme, to the disgust of every honest member of the legislature. If the Gleaner can reconcile the conduct of Mr. W. with strict integrity, or common honesty, we should be pleased to know by what method of reasoning it is done.

The Athens Gleaner seems exceedingly sensitive over our intimation that that journal has been revived in the interest of PETER HUME. We sincerely wish we might be persuaded that our suspicions are incorrect, but the second issue of the resuscitated Gleaner gives indubitable evidence that it is run in Peter's interest.

ER TO BRUTE.—We were pained, last week, to announce that the Athens Gleaner had been revived in the interest of division, and now we are compelled to chronicle the fact that the Argus has been caught by the same bait.

MORE EVIDENCE.

For several weeks we have charged Maj. Tamm, the democratic candidate for representative, with being in favor of Hume's division scheme, and the charge has been contradicted neither by Mr. Tamm nor the Argus. The following letter, however, will show that our articles have attracted the attention of some of the leading democrats. The refusal of the Argus to publish the letter admits of but one construction, i. e., that it has also surrendered to Hume.

BARTON, Pa., Sept. 22, 1873.

Mr. Alvord.—We sent the following letter to the Argus, last Monday, with a request that it be published, as they have failed to do so, we would be pleased to have you insert it in your paper.

Very respectfully, etc.,

H. M. MOORE, L. D. FORBES, SAMUEL STATT.

SEPTIEMBER, Sept. 15, 1873.

MAJ. TAMM.—Dear Sir: It is being charged by the Republican press and by the friends of the cause, which is always open to the public, that you are in favor of division. We, as Democrats, think these charges are damaging and are desirous of your attention, and would like to hear from you on this subject through the Argus.

We remain, very respectfully, etc.,

H. M. MOORE, L. D. FORBES, SAMUEL STATT.

JAS. H. WEBB.

The following letter from a well-known citizen of this county, now residing in Philadelphia, is worthy of attention, particularly as the writer does not claim to be a party man:

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 22, 1873.

EDWARD BRADSHAW BARRETT.—Judging from the columns of the Argus, the democratic press and the friends of the cause, which is always open to the public, that you are in favor of division. We, as Democrats, think these charges are damaging and are desirous of your attention, and would like to hear from you on this subject through the Argus.

We remain, very respectfully, etc.,

H. M. MOORE, L. D. FORBES, SAMUEL STATT.

The dead are burying their dead, and the funeral progresses apace. The St. Louis Republican (Democratic) says of the State campaigns now waging, that "unimportant as they are supposed to be, they strikingly illustrate the decay of the Democracy as a fighting power," while the Chicago Times, which, up to the period of the apostasy of the Tribune, was the leading Democratic paper of the Northwest, observes that "the rapidly with which all that is left of that ancient and bad-smelling prejudice, the Democratic party, is dissolving into 'eternal nothingness,' is satisfactory and encouraging." In view of the rate at which this process of decomposition is going on, it is not surprising that Democracy, all over the country, disclaims the wish to revive "dead issues." It cannot even revive itself, but is being buried out of sight, along with its dead issues, and like them, will soon, except as a warning—be forgotten forever.

"Bacon" Pozmox is hardly a pattern of political morality, but he now and then allows his natural good sense to get the better of his political heresies, and he then says things worthy to be heard and acted upon. A case in point came up recently while he was making a speech in Texas. "What," said a listener in the audience, "have the Northern men done for Texas?" to which he replied: "Taken the weeds out of your fence corners, raised vegetables, planted fruit trees, built your largest and best houses, imported your finest breed of horses and cattle, erected nearly every machine shop, foundry and mill that you have among you. They have minded their own business, and have not disturbed a large audience by asking foolish questions. They have striven by honest industry to keep out of the sheriff's hands and thirty feet ahead of the tax collector." There were not so many questions asked after that rejoinder.

Bazir, for several years, has been very anxious to add to her population by inducing farm hands and mechanics of European countries to seek homes there. According to late foreign news, many of these people are returning to England, having been disgusted and sadly disappointed with life in Brazil. We are not surprised at this, because in no country in the world is labor so meanly treated as in Brazil, where abides an aristocracy more intolerant and oppressive of labor, under a vile system of slavery, than anything the world has ever seen. As a matter of course, laboring men who go to Brazil are treated like slaves. The only country in which the poor of Europe, that is the industrious and thrifty poor, can find comfort and relief from the hardships of their European life, is in the United States.

Two years ago Hume attempted to "snake" through the legislature, a bill requiring the Commissioners of this county to expend one hundred thousand dollars in the erection of buildings at Troy, and Col. Proctor and Maj. Tamm were his accomplices. Before it was known to any one else in this county that such a bill had been introduced, these two gentlemen had printed copies of it, and as soon as the telegraph could announce its passage in the Senate they were employing men, at liberal prices, to circulate petitions in favor of Hume's county. The people have not forgotten these facts.

LETTER FROM WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 22, 1873.

During the past few weeks, a very perceptible as well as a desirable change has been witnessed in the movement of matters here at the Capital. The political questions of the past summer appear to be followed with rather an unusual amount of activity. The fall trade, on which, in a business view, so very much depends, has been opened, and the wintering places yield up their temporary tenants, and the country is all agog, with the prospect of a very successful season. The White House, as usual, has been receiving its usual amount of supplies, and the cost of the presidential household has been applied to and out, while some very desirable changes have been made in several parts of the building. The great and the small, which is always open to the public, where, during the sessions of Congress, the public rooms of the President are given, where the masses are publicly received, and many times the President himself, has been entirely refitted, new walls, new ceilings, and new furniture have been added throughout. Some very beautiful changes have also been made in the grounds in front of the mansion, which give them a much more pleasant appearance. The old gravel walks, that have long been neglected and overgrown with weeds, have been taken up and new ones of the latest improved material put down. A large number of the old thickly planted trees have been removed, and under drains introduced with a view of placing the grounds in the best possible order. The old bronze statue of Jefferson, looking in his hands the constitution, which this humble letter writer in his power from the steps of the White House so often referred to and which so carefully and tenderly guarded the keeping of the people, has been removed. For years it stood in the secluded condition, in the semi-circle lot fronting the mansion, facing the executive station of Jefferson, who appears to be presiding over the nation, and the statue of the great statesman, which was erected in honor of the great statesman, has been removed. The statue of the great statesman, which was erected in honor of the great statesman, has been removed. The statue of the great statesman, which was erected in honor of the great statesman, has been removed.

THE LATEST.

The good feeling which prevailed in New York at the close of business on Monday afternoon, and which continued until noon Tuesday, partially gave way during the afternoon on the announcement of the suspension of Hume & Co. & Co., the well-known bankers. The banks, however, continue sound, and it is hoped the flurry has already spent itself. The reports from Philadelphia, Washington, Albany and Chicago represent the crisis as past in those cities.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

HAVE JUST OPENED A LARGE AND COMPLETE STOCK OF FALL AND WINTER GOODS! DRESS GOODS! SILKS AND CLOAKS. CLOTHES AND CASIMERS. LADIES AND MISSES SHOES. CARPETS, DOMESTICS, &c., &c. A FINE ASSORTMENT AT LOWEST PRICES. CALL AND EXAMINE. TAYLOR & CO. September, 1873.

SUSQUEHANNA COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

The fall term of the Susquehanna Collegiate Institute will commence MONDAY, AUGUST 26, 1873, under the supervision of the following faculty: EDWIN E. QUINN, Principal, Latin and Greek Languages, and Theory and Practice of Teaching. ALFRED A. CRANDALL, A. M., Commercial Branches. EDWARD H. MERRILL, Instrumental Music. MISS MARY E. MERRILL, Preceptor, Common and Higher English. MISS MARY A. SHELDON, Mathematics and German Language. MISS J. TAYLOR, French Language. MISS C. E. CRANDALL, Painting and Drawing. Prof. Crandall comes recommended in the highest terms by President Allen of the Alfred University, Prof. Ford of the Emma Fennell College, and by several bodies of educators. He has been employed during ten years of active experience in the several branches of his department. Of Miss Merrill and the other teachers, their records in the Institute are such that it needs no commendation to those who have privileged the school. No pains will be spared to maintain the high standing of the Institution, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the interests of each individual student to make the work even more efficient. Each teacher will have his speciality, and every facility to make the work interesting, and to secure the highest possible results in his department. The students will be organized at the commencement of the fall term. The course of instruction will include the usual course of study in the schools of instruction and other topics auxiliary to the school. Students will be required to attend eight hours of instruction, and to pass in the school and eight dollars. To save expense, text books, the same as in the course of instruction, will be loaned to the students, with the exception of Decorum. To make the journey of non-resident students more pleasant, the Principal will use his best efforts to board and board for the students, and by careful looking to the