ED. REPORTER: Quite a remarkable feat in sawing, was lately performed by EDWARD Scorr, in the saw-mill owned by Messra. W. & J. W. STROUD, on Meshoppen creek, Susquehanda,Co. A 'run' was made of 18,328 feet in the Winona B. B. C., of Towarda, I um in-9 hours and 45 minutes. Considering the fart structed to inform you that this club is ready that the mill is only a 25 horse power, a d that there were no extra sizes of logs, or pieed timber, and the work was performed w. h the aid of but five men, it was certainly a ve.; creditable day's work. Mr. Scorr, the sawyer, is a young man of but twenty-five years of age. The beautiful autumn weather and frosty nights of the past few days, have given a hae to the forest trees which no artist's pencil could impart. The season is aptly described in

The warm blood chills, as it some Arctic bird Has taken swift-winged flight from frosty skies, And with its glittering pidions beating, files Mid So, thern climes, with icy Ialons spurred; It sends a fright through all the Summer herd; From its keen touch the night dews crystalize; The morning mead is cladin Winter's guise; Its wailing voice through forest crest is heard; A heetic flush is mantling vale and moat; The bell tolls softly the departing day; O! sweet, ineffable, the songster's note, Whose harvest life is ebblug fast away! A waning glory bathes the Western light, With dreamy tints of sadness and delight.

McCabe & Bon displayed several articles from their marble yard. They did not enter their work for premiums, but merely to show the people of the county the character of their work. Their business has grown to b very extensive, a fact which is largely due to the excellence of their work, together with the courteons and gentlemanly manners of Messral McCabe & Son. A beautiful wreath of feathers, arranged b Mrs. E. R. DELong, attracted universal atten tion, and was the envy of more than one lady. (17) Spitzenburg, (18) name supposed to be Wagner, (19) name unknown, (20) name "Seek-no-further." Commendation is due to Master CHARLES T

Fox for a very fine sample of ten or more 2 ounce apples. Great credit is due to Joun E. Fox for hi fine display of fruit. He exhibited a new native white grape, having such merits as to deserve special notice. It has, very properly, been Gloves, at named "Towarda." It is supposed to be a chance seedling of the "Diana": the vine hardy, short-jointed, wood of deep red color, leaves small, does not mildew, wood and fruit aware. The vine was discovered in 1869; fruit-(the plumber) handiwork, and served to call ed first in 1872; now third year in fruit. Bunch is executed by this enterprising firm, and that like the "Rebeccs," and adhere well to the quite free from pulp, not seedy, melting, swee and of fine flavor; quality nearly equal to the "Delaware." Having so many good qualities universally approved. From personal knows- and promising to be a good keeper, and bear edge we take pleasure in recommending it as ing transportation well, it promises to be A. H. SPALDING, HIRAM SWEET, R. M. "EVERY SATURDAY" MERGED IN LAT-TELL'S LIVING AGE.—The following card is issued by H.O. Houghton & Co.: "The publishers of Every Saturday and to the subscribers of that journal, and to the public generally, that under an arrangement with Messrs. Littell & Gay, Exery Saturday will, after the number of Oct. 31, be merged in Littell's Licing Age. The two periodicals are issued weekly, and cover the same general ground, so far indeed that the contents of one ground, so far indeed that the contents of one frequently appear in the other. There seems to be no good reason why the same field should be occupied by both. The combination of the two journals will leave the Living Age the only eclectic weekly published in the country; and the unexpired subscriptions to Every Saturday, and its advertising contracts, will be filled by the Living Age. To the readers of Every Saturday we take pleasure in commending the Living Age; it will complete the serials now publishing in Every Saturday: its larger subscription price is made up by its greater amount of matter, and its reputation is too well established to need words of praise from us.
