A BORN PRINCESS .- The Farme Friend gives the following inciden of American nobility:

Mrs. Florida White, well known in the fashionable world forty years ago, was one of the most beautiful accomplished, and attractive women of her day. She was the daughter of General Adair, and her Lusband was Joseph M. White, the second delegate sent to Congress from the Territory of Floridh. Highly educated, full of genius, and with the bearing of a queen, her society was courted by the most elevated circles in Washington, New York, and Boston. She was a brill iant conversationalist, ready and effective at repartee, and a sincere warm-hearted, gentle woman of the most gracions and generous impulse. On one of her visits to Rome she was presented to the Pope, "Kneel, my daughter," said he, as she stood erect in her imperial grace before him. "All kneel to me except the daughters of sovereigns." "I am a princess in my own right our holiness," she replied. "How can that be, when you are an American born ?"

"In my country the people are overeigns, and I am a daughter of he people." The Pope, smiling a gracious as
