"This is the picture of a soldier. He is a General. The General says: "I am not afraid." See how he struts.—Do you not wish you were a General? It is a fine thing to be a General?

* Here is the picture of a bandit.—See, the General wants to do something to the bandit, Will he kill the bandit, or will he write a letter? No, he will not write a letter. he will send a telegram. * * * This is the portrait of a President. A cat can look at a President. See, there is a Congress. The Congress is afraid of the President. The President can make a Governor, and he can make a Legislature. * * Here is the portrait of a Governor. The Governor loves the bonds, and the Governor loves the people's money; but the Governor would not take the people's money for anything in the world. We have a de facto Governor. He is a very good man. The people love him. He is very pious. He loves the President and the President loves him. If your hair was kinky and your skin black, you might some day be a Governor. See, the General, the Governor and the President are all running. What makes them all run so? Are they afraid? Yes, they are afraid of the banditti."
