A SHOEMAKER named JOHN CATEN, died very suddenly at his residence in the First Ward, on Friday morning last. He was ad dicted to the use of intoxicating liquors, and had been unfit for work for several weeks previous to his death. With a design to sober off, he had purchased some chloral, and the physicians say took too much of it, causing his death. He leaves a wife and six small children in destitute circumstances. It affords us pleasure to record the fact that a handsome purse was raised among the employes of HUMPHRET BEOTHERS & TRACY, where the deceased had been at work, and presented to the afflicted widow. Such acts of kindness and benevolence bless alike the donors and recipients, and give us all a more exalted idea of human nature. May the sad lesson taught in the death of this unfortunate man, prove a salutary one t all who are wasting their strength and squan dering their means at the intoxicating bowl.
