> E. P. G. SPELLING.

"The wrong way to teach and the right way." was the caption of an article in the first issue of this Department, containing some suggestions upon spelling. To give weight to these suggestions and to call the attention of our teachers once more to the subject, the following extract from Appleton's Journal. The Journal harmless, and yet if it proves to be the means of increasing or perpetuating the the use of spelling-books in schools, it is is not entirely so. That the spelling and defining of words should not be, as they exclusive act of memorizing, has been recognized by more than one observed. The right way of learning words is in use of salt as mainire oftener than with the words that tends to permanently fix their form and meaning in the memory. The memorizing of a column of words on the other hand, is purely an arbitrary method, and no memory could by this means alone, long retain what it had acquired. That we do remember words tolerably well, is due to our familiarity with them in literature. WOMEN AS SCHOOL SUPERVISORS. The Hon. Warren Johnson, Superin dendent of Common Schools of Maine, says: "In a few towns within the post three or four years, ladies have been choon the board of school committee, and in two or three instances as town supervisors. In each case so far the duties of the office have been well performed by the female incumbents, and, I will add, with somewhat more care and thoughtful interest than are usual in this office. The examinations of teachers were more thoroughly and conscientiously made, and visitations of schools, particularly in the summer, were more frequent, inspections more careful, and suggestions and methods more freely brought to the consideraand the determination on the part of the women thus elected to show what they can do, have contributed to the improved result above designated, I have no hesitation in declaring my conviction that if to-day the supervisory in our schools was equally divided between men and women, the quality of the work would be far superior to what it is at present. More time would be devoted to visitation in the school-room, not merely an hour's call the first week of the term, when it is almost

More careful thought would be given by women to the physical ondition of the younger pupils, to seats, desks, heat, cold, ventilation, periods of study and relaxation, methods of recitaion, object of instruction, the attractions of the school room; pictures, ornamentation of room and grounds indeed all those numerous items which go so far to make our best schools home-like and cheerful, instead of bare, dreary and forbidding. Why should not the superintending prosence of a woman charm, adorn and rectisy the school room as undoubtedly it does the home? In our homes, our churches, asylums, hospitals; in our reformatory institutions, even in our state prisons, as now conducted, we recognize and require the ameliorating, directing influence of noble-minded, intelligent women. Are schools an exception to this? We think not. Both from personal observation and theoretically, we advise that the employnent of women school supervisors be further extended than at present, and if any legal objection stands in the way, as in some of our sister States, we recommend that such obstacles be removed by legislative enactment."
