Raise me up in my bed, wife, There's the sound of the sea in my ear And it sings to my soul in a music That the earth is not blessed to hear. Open the little window, wife, ... Then come and sit by my side; We'll wait God's evect for To take ine out with the tide I see the harbor-bar, wife, And my dear little boat in the bay: But who shall be able to guide her sent themselves.

When her master has passed away? I know that belm, so trusts Will answer to other hand As it answered mine, when I knew, wife, You were waiting for me on the strand. Our boys are all before us, wife Wee Jack is beneath the wave, Ami himo-yod Froddie siceps, w In yonder yew-bowered grave, re the early daisles cluste Around his baby bed.

And the thrush sits chanting softe In you tree that shades the dead. There's a chill runs through our hearts, wife When the harbor-bar doth moan: But a darker grief will be yours, wife When you're left in the cot alone; But a few more flows of the sea, wife, And a few more ebbs of the tide, Then God's sweet flood shall bring you Again to your old man's side.

The red sun is low-in the West, wife. And the tide sinks down with the suit: We will part with each other in love, wife. Give me your hand, my own love. As you gave it in days of yore; When we meet on the far-off shore!

With the prominence at present give by the Democratic party to its one distin guishing doctrine of State Sovereignty, as opposed to that of National Sovereignty, the advent of that party to power in the nation, would naturally bring with it the danger of a second assertion of the right of States to secode from the Union. Our. previous experience of the mability of the Democratic party in power to attempt the coercion of a rebellious State, should certainly be sufficient to teach the people the langer of entrusting the Government to hands too weak or too unwilling to protect it.
