General W. H. KOONTZ, of Somerset county, was chosen temporary president by acclamation, and on taking the chair, spoke in substance as follows: "Our grand old Commonwealth should and of right ought to be potential in the coming National Convention. Her large area of territory, varied industries, untold mineral resources, fertile soil and honest atelligent people, make it eminently proper that she should be felt in that assem blage. She has always voted for the successful Presidential candidate, and she should be potential in declaring who that candidate shall be. The action of the Democratic party has demonstrated beyond all cavil that it is unfit to govern the country. It has flaunted the flag of the "lost cause" in the face of the House and he country, and has shown by some of its leaders that the animus of the rebellion still lingers in their hearts. The Demo cratic party in Congress has proved itself weak and powerless to remedy the evils of the country; its councils are divided and distracted, and many of its members are now as hostile to the debt contracted to save the nation's life as they were to any measure advanced to overthrow the recllion." He spoke in exalted terms o the Republican party. It proposed to reform all abuses and "let no guilty man It would elevate the standard of political life and unflinghingly preserve he credit and honor of the nation. The
