REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION

The next Union National Convention for the nomination of candidates for President and Vice President of the United States will be held in the city of Cincinnati, on Wednesday, the 14th day of June, 1876, at 12 o'clock noon, and will continue delegates from each State equal to twice the number of its Senators and Representatives in Congress, and two delegates from each organized Territory and the District of Columbia.

DELEGATES TO THE CINCINNATI CONVENTION

The following named gentlemen were selected by the Republican Convention, held at Towanda, Pa., on the 14th of May, 1876, to represent the county at the Cincinnati Convention, with two alternates from each District:

ELECTOR AT-LARGE

John W. Smith, J. H. Chaffin, Atty.-Gen. Wm. H. Brewster, John H. Chaffin, Atty.-Gen.

THE PHILADELPHIA BULLION

In noticing the villainous conduct of the opposition and its allies in defaming every public man who took a prominent part in crushing the rebellion, we wonder that despite the flood of slander and foul accusation that has been poured from the Democratic sewer in the National Capital, it is a remarkable fact that with the exception of Gen. BELKNAP not one Republican officer of the government has been proved guilty of crime by the Democratic House!

THE BOSTON WITCHAMAN

A religious paper, thinks "It is time to turn about and investigate these 'investigations.' The party in power uses witnesses just as a burglar uses a dark-lantern. A little light is let on certain spots, but if there is any suspicion that the holder of the lantern is suspected by the good man of the house, out goes the light. These dark-lantern investigations are bearing their own fruit to those who are tricked in adopting them. But any man who despises of good from them only scans the surface of things. The contempt of the American people for those who employ such political agencies will make itself felt in the next elections. Be sure of that!

THE COST AT THE EXHIBITION

The question is repeatedly asked, "How much will it cost to see the Centennial Exposition?" The entrance fee is 50 cents each time you enter. The majority will enter but once a day, getting their dinner inside, for which they can pay all the way from 20 cents for a bowl of punch and milk at "the dairies," to $5 at the Trudy Tavern. The idea that 50 cents will be required for going into each building is erroneous. The hotel-fare ranges from $2 to $5 a day. There are several good hotels that will charge but $3 a day, and, under the lodging-house agency system, supper, lodging and breakfast can be had at the uniform rate of $2 a day.

THE PENSION OFFICE

The Pension Office is feeling the advantage of Democratic economy, by the cutting down of the number of clerks, to the serious interference of business, which is running behind at the rate of a thousand names per month. Honest claimants must wait and "bless Democratic economy if they get their pensions some time in years to come.

A SPECIMEN

The following is a verbatim copy of a letter written in December last by the rebel Doorkeeper of the House of Representatives. The document needs no comment.

I have never seen any man since my election to write to you, but have been besieged from all sides by the friends of the Union. I have had about one hundred & thirty applications to make & have had to see every one of them. I have had to see every one of them. I have had to see every one of them. I have had to see every one of them. I have had to see every one of them.

DOM PEDRO

The Brazilian Emperor, DOM PEDRO, is attracting and very justly too, more attention just at this time than any foreigner now in this country, and the following brief sketch of himself and the country over which he rules will be read with interest.

CONFESSION OF PIPER

Thomas W. Piper, formerly the French of the Warren Avenue Church, Boston, Mass., who is under sentence of death for the murder of the child Mable Young in the beef of the church, is reported to have acknowledged to his counsel last Saturday that he killed the child; also that he murdered Bridget Landreig at Dorchester, Mass., on the night of the 5th of December, a crime of which he had long been suspected, and that he committed the mysterious and nearly fatal assault on Mary Tyler in Oxford street, Boston, nearly two years ago. Bridget Landreig was a domestic servant of good repute, and while returning to her home at nine o'clock at night, from a visit to some friends, she was brutally and brutally clubbed to death. Mary Tyler was a girl of her repute, and was found one night in her bed insensible and terribly mangled. Piper declares that he had no motive for these crimes, particularly the murder of the child, and cannot understand how he came to commit them. It is assumed that he was actuated by a love of bloodshed like the boy Jesse Pomeroy.—Lr.

A SICKENING TRAGEDY

SCARSDALE, Pa., May 9.—A disputed line between the premises of George Wert and Robert Savage, near neighbors in a hamlet, a suburb of this city, terminated fatally this afternoon. While Savage was demolishing Wert's shed, built over the disputed ground, the latter came out of his house to protest, when Savage brutally assaulted him with an axe, knocking him down senseless, and afterwards barbarously injuring his head with a stone. Mrs. Wert ran to her husband's assistance, and while she held her dying husband his murderer coolly finished destroying the shed. The police department, in a saloon in this city this evening, Mr. Wert was an inoffensive, Christian man, generally esteemed and respected.

THE COUNCIL CHAMBERS

City Councils at the meeting on Thursday last adopted a resolution of special meeting for this morning at 10 o'clock, to take into consideration the report of the Committee on the subject of the proposed extension of the Schuylkill river bridge, and to take into consideration the report of the Committee on the subject of the proposed extension of the Schuylkill river bridge, and to take into consideration the report of the Committee on the subject of the proposed extension of the Schuylkill river bridge.

DETECTIVE McPARLAN'S STORY

The Mally Maguire—A Romantic Story—Detective McParlan's Adventures Along the Wall.

POTTSVILLE, May 9.—The Yest murder trial goes on in interest as it proceeds. The central attraction is, of course, the detective witness, James McParlan, who tells a romantic story of adventures among the murderers Molloy which would make the fortune of a dime novelist. He tells it with a quiet precision and circumstantiality that lull the keenest cross-examiners at the bar and makes an evidently deep impression on the jury. Yesterday he told the secret history of the mysterious order, and how he succeeded in tracing his way into it, a feat in which several detectives had previously failed.

HOW HE BECAME A "MOLLY"

McParlan's first care when sent to this country by the Pickerton Agency to work up the Yost case was to become a member of the famous society. Fortunately he possessed the first requisite for admission in being an Irishman and a Catholic. Knowing something of the habits of the men who compose the order, he spent most of his time in low groceries, drank a fearful quantity of bad whiskey, and made himself as agreeable as possible to the frequenters. It was not long until he caught an expression which his practiced ear told him was a pass word. He committed it to memory, and took an opportunity when the proprietor of the saloon was in a peculiarly mollified condition to repeat the words to him. The man stared at him, and asked, "Have you been there?" "That's what they call me," replied the detective, and so far he knew he was right. The landlord, a cork-and-bull story about a "division" in Buffalo to which his new friend had belonged, a long time ago; but the next interrogator, one Michael Cooney, was not so easily deceived.

THE MARY MURDER

Daybreak was saluted with the ringing of bells in the steeples and manufactories, the banging of cannon and miniature firearms, and at an early hour the members of the militia were on the way to their respective armories fully equipped for the purpose. By 8 o'clock the members of the militia were on the way to their respective armories fully equipped for the purpose. By 8 o'clock the members of the militia were on the way to their respective armories fully equipped for the purpose.

The first attraction was, of course, the formation of the militia, and it had been previously arranged that the members of the militia were on the way to their respective armories fully equipped for the purpose. By 8 o'clock the members of the militia were on the way to their respective armories fully equipped for the purpose.

THE MARY MURDER

The multitude was anxious to obtain favorable positions, and accordingly, began to move westward long before the hour announced for the opening of the gates. The horse cars filled gradually, until standing room could no longer be had; the transfer coaches and carriages poured over the bridges of the Schuylkill in one long stream, while the overland steam trains left their different depots in quick succession.

THE MARY MURDER

Upon the gates of the Exhibition being opened the throng poured in like a torrent, and those who had been favored with invitations sought out the sections on the platform built for their accommodation. The invited guests entered the Main Building from the range of colonnades, and the eastern end by the southern mid-entrance on Elm avenue, and passed through the main building, making their exit through the north-west corner of the building to the platform, which at 10 o'clock was pretty well filled.

OUR PHILADELPHIA LETTER

The Great Exhibition—The Young Olympic Exercises—A Pageant of International Grandeur—The City of Philadelphia, created by us at its birth, is now the center of the world's attention.

PHILADELPHIA, May 11, 1876. The seal of human liberty, planted within this virgin soil one hundred years ago, watered with the blood of Divine favor, has grown to be a mighty tree beneath whose spreading branches the people of the earth were gathered together on this bright May morning. They came with anthems breathing the spirit of peace on earth and good will to men, and with songs of praise and jubilation, that hallowed the grandeur of the forest, and overtopped its more external glories—its noble architecture, its smiling banners, and its vast, unmeasured splendor.

OUR PHILADELPHIA LETTER

Another thought was suggested by the magnificent spectacle this morning—that we who stand in the glow and whiff of this great day, are not the only ones to grasp its greatness. We stand too close beside its dazzling splendor. We know that it is not only the people of this country, but the people of the world, who are gathered here to witness the achievements of a century's civilization. We know that it is not only the people of this country, but the people of the world, who are gathered here to witness the achievements of a century's civilization.
