Deceived and misled by the Democracy, which promised such a glorisous prosperity in the event of a political change, a little less than a year ago, the people were prevailed apon to place in their hands the reins of government, but where have all these glorious promises been fulfilled? Unable to place their hands upon a single measure providing for or in any way looking to the relief of the hushness wants of the country, the great Democratic party which promised so much, can only point to a calander filled with unfounded and unsubstantiated charges against the Administration and the Republican party. This, so far, is the full measure of their six months legis The appointment of J. D. CAMERON. as Secretary of War, is very generally conceded as being an excellent one in every respect; and for reasons with which, the public is familiar, regrets are being expressed by many that he had not been called into the Cabinet at an oarlier period so industriously ret affort by certain political seers, that the appointment contained a certain political significance, that would be developed at the Cinciumat Convention, has entirely disappeared and it is now very generally believed that there was, not only no bargaining in the premise; but that the place was no sought for by either Mr. Cameron or his friends. On the other hand, there is it Cabinet, has ever attempted in any will to influence or control the actions of it members in their preferments. Theresi but little question that Mr. Cameron wa selected for the position by reason of li acknowledged fitness and ability, and in for the purpose of attempting to easy out any certain political scheme.

Already the Southern press has co menced howling and shaking the "bloody shirt ' over the appointment. There's scarcely a journal of any prominence that has not commenced harping about "Cogs-titutional rights," "local self-govern-ment," and "Northern oppression." The reason is obvious. With Mr. Cameronia slow to perceive that their Ku Klux and
