NEW-YORK, Nov. 4, 1878. "Nothing doing until after the election!" is the remark that greets one everywhere ness world. In the former everything has been at a standstill, and even the dinners given at the clubs to various foreigners have had more or less political significance attached to them.

The extra day's racing on Saturday. drew large numbers to the grounds, as the weather was especially fine. The aveme was crowded with carriages and pedestrians. Six members of the Coaching Club were out with their drags, and after Allany going through Jerome Park, drove over to the Polo grounds, where the most exciting game of the season was played. The prize, offered by Mr. "Herald" Bennett, was a set of six saddles and bridles, costing $700. His side was the winning one by three out of four games, although the play was decidedly the best contested of the season.

The Columbia College boys of this city belonging to the School of Letters and the Monroe Boro... School of Mines, had an exhibition of whiletic sports at the New-York Athletic Club grounds. This also took place Saturday, and the friends of the boys were out in force. The vaulting, jumping, running and walking, awakened much interest. The matches were, some of them, very closely contested. The necessity. however, of baving a physician to examine all the candidates for these violent spor s was evidenced in the mile walk between Eldredge and Bliven, when the latter was suddenly attacked with palpitation of the heart, and was obliged to be carried to the dressing-room by his friends.
