THE LATEST NEWS!

When the mists have cleared away. If we err in human blindness, And forget that we are dust, If we miss the law of kindness, When we strugg'e to be just, Snowy wings of prace shall cover All the pain that clouds our day, When the weary watch is over, And the mists have cleared away.

We shall know as we are known, Never more to walk alone. in the dawning of the morning. When the mists have cleared away, When the silvery misis have velled us From the faces of our own, Off we deem their love has falled us. And we tread our path a one;

We should secthem near and truly,

We should trust them day by day, Neither love nor blame unduly, If the mists were cleared away. We shall know as we are known, Never more to walk alone, In the dawning of the morning. When the mists have cleared away. When the mists have rives above us,

As our Father knows his own, I'ace to face with them that love us, We shall know as we are known. Love, beyond the orient meadows, Floats the golden fringe of day; Heart to heart we hide the shadows. Till the mis s have cleared away. We shall know as we are known, Never more to wa'k aboue. When the day of light is draning,

The man who turns his life to best account for himself and others is the man who does one thing, who, choosing for himself at the outset one line of action, usefulness, and eminence, levotes all his energies to its prosecution. It was a very rich, spice. dld and profligate city; almost "an Oriental Rome." Its population for the most part was a worthless rabble of Greeks and Orientals. As the church now takes a new departure and directs her is. bors henceforth in part towards the hes then, a new centre of activity is needed. and this is found in Antioch. From this point St. Paul sets out on his successive nissionary journeys.

Those scattered believers spake the Word (v. 19); or as it is expressed in v. 20, they announced the glad tidings of the Lord Jesus. They did not preach, of course, as men preach now. They talked, disputed, and expounded the Scripture in the synagogues. It is probable The doctor had a heavy gold chain other undesirable animals, were not occurred, probably, since they left Jerosalem. So their old prejudices controlled them. But some of them were Cyprians (from the island of Cyprus) and Cyrenians (from Cyrene, a province and city of Lybia in Africa). These were Greekspeaking (foreign) Jews, and for some reason disregarded the bigoted notions of the Hebrews. They spake unto the Grecians (Hellenes or Gentile Greeks). The hand, or the power, of the Lord was with sequence a great number believed and showed their sincerity by turning unto the Lord; i. e., by confession of the Lord sions were among the Grecians. the Christian church. III. The Advent of Saul. Vs. 25-26. Barnabas was an humble man. The Lord need of some one of superior wisdom and accredited authority; so he thought of rusalem, he was instructed by the church to call upon Saul, if necessary. His headquarters were in Tarsus, his native town and the chief city of Cilicia; but no doubt he was actively employed in preaching in labored in the church there and taught probably nearly all Gentiles. This union in Gospel work lasted until the second missionary journey of St. Paul, when these two good men differed and parted. church. Vs. 27-30. During the time these events were occulling, certain prophets came down to Antioch from Jerusalem. These prophets were men or women (xxi: 9) in the early church, inspired to speak in God's name, and incidentally to foretell future events. St. Paul places the gift of prophecy above th t of tongnes.

One of these prophets was named Agabus. He must have been comparatively a young man, as twenty years afterwards he is mentioned as coming from Jerusilem to warn St. Paul (xxi: 10). According to tradition he suffered martyrdom. Te predicted a great famine throughout the whole inhabited world. This term is often applied in the Bible in a restricted ense. The Greeks and Romans both applied it to their countries. It is held by some that it is sometimes so used of Palestine. It may be so here; although it is probable that such a dearth did extend over the whole Roman Empire during the reign of Claudius; but not at the same

This prediction touched the new-born love and gratitude of the Gentile disciples. It was determined that each one should send assistance to the brethren in Judea according as he himself enjoyed plenty. It is probable that they were much wealthier than the Christians in Palestine. Yet having received of their spiritual things, it became them to ommunicate in return of their temporal things. These gifts, no'd ubt large, were sent to the eiders (or Presbyters) by the hands of Saul and Barnabas, "The office of Presbyter or Elder was the only church, and as such was retained under the new organization, without any formal institution, and therefore without any dis tinct mention in the history, such as we. ind afterwards in reference to the organzation of the Gentile churches, where the office had ne previous existence."
