1876-1877. Before another issue of the REPOR-TER reaches the reader, the Centennial Year of American Independence will have passed, and the New Year 1877 dawned. Few, if any, who now peruse the columns of the REPORTER will be among the living at the dawning of the second Centennial of our nation. Few who beheld the opening of the national existence are to-day with us, and those who were most prominent actors in the great events which led to the establishment of a new empire in the Western world, are ever thought of. These reflections should lead us to think upon the shortness of life, the certainty of eternity, and inspire us with am-

A TALK WITH THE PRESIDENT. The President, in conversation with a friend this afternoon, said that thus far he has received no official information o any milawful movement in Indiana or elsewhere. He has seen occasi ference in the newspapers to political agitations in certain sections of the country. and has received information to the same effect from other unofficial sources. The Administration, he said, is not insensible to the necessity of vigilance, whother hese reports are true or false; the excitement in Indiana has arisen solely from the inflammatory resolutions adopted by the Democratic State and county committees, but so far as he is informed they have met with only a faint responce from that portion of the people whom they are intended to arouse. He knows that there are a few dangerous characters in every community and that men of this class have it in their power to make a great deal of noise, but he believes that the ment in Indiana spread, the loyal sentiment of a maj rity of the people of that State and of the country will have moral influence enough to prevent any outbreak.

The President said further that it is gratifying to observe the conservative spirit shown by many of the Southern leaders. He feels assured that the same disposition will ultimately prevail all over the land, and he believes that the men who are now disposed to incite a civil war are only those who have everything ing that I can best inform my friends i to gain and nothing to lose in the even of such a national calamity. He does not think that the National Democratic leadhe is glad to know that the best men of plication which will result in anything except peace. The adjuation in South Carolina, and the attempt of Wade Hampton to play the role of Governor, have ceased to be of except where the payment of goldexciting interest here, and are not even ubjects of frequent political discussion. There is no longer reason to fear any dis-turbance of the peace in Columbia, and while the present situation continues there is not likely to be any action by the Government looking to any further re-cognition of one party or the other than as already been given. In any event, the questions of law that are raised will come before the Senate when Mr. Cronin presents his credent als at the beginning f the next session, and there will be necessity a Senatorial investigation and a cision in that body which will practically determine the legality of the Chamberlain Legislature. It is stated among Republicans from South Carolina that nator Robertson's recent course was lictated by a knowledge that he stood no chance of re-election by the Republicans of the Legislature, and they think that he was hopeful of re-election by the Hamp ton Legis ature, if by any means that body should secure Federal recognition.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

EDITOR REPORTER—Dear Sir: Belie

bradford county of my whereabouts b using the columns of your paper. I would say that I am settled in Polk Township, Christian county, Missouri, 261 miles southwest of St. Louis. This country consists of gently rolling prairies, we timbered and watered; possessed of stone in quantities sufficient for all necessary purposes, yet not so as to hinder farmin operations. Scarcely a section of land but what has an abundance of pure water, soft and pleasant to the taste for building purposes is plentiful, ranging in price from $8 to $12, excepting whit pine, which is shipped here from St. Louis and is higher. Perhaps the chief merit of this country is its dry and healthy cli mate. Elevated 1400 feet above the sea, it has the lengthened season of a southern clime without its enervating heat or the fevers of the low regions. lightful, pure and bracing, and is highly recommended to people of consumptive endencies. To people of small means this country offers unusual inducements. The St. Louis and San Francisco R.
