THE GOOD SHEPHERD.

The Lord's my Shepherd; on his breast

My weary wan dering he lays;

I offer Thee a psalm of praise!

I shall not want! Thou leadest me

. In pastures ever fresh and fair,

The matchless music of Thy voice

Of living waters, marmuring there,

Uplifts my soul; my feet are shod

With wings of gladness, and rejoted In paths Thy feet in sorrow trod.

To mountains of delight I soar,

And find a full and free repast;

With Thee I neither fear, nor fast.

The wolf may how, the lion roar-

Yea, in you silent, shadowy vale,

The King of Terror's ghostly lair,

My strength and comfort never fall;

And yet I weep! On my poor head,

So cheerless, Thou, all-merelful,

It overflows! 'My whole life through

And pray for the in others now weeping.

O'er pillows too smooth and too white;

Where bright little heads oft have lain, And soft little cheeks have been pressed;

O, mothers who know not this pain,

Take courage to bear all the rest!

For the sombre-wing d angel is going .

With pitiless flight o'er the land,

What he ere the night may demand.

There's many a soft little bed

Yes, to-night while our darlings are sleeping,

Whose pillows are moistened with weeping, For the loss of one dear little head.

There are hearts on whose linermost altar

There is nothing but whes to-night;

There are voices whose tones sadly falter,
