TRE County Commissioners are now engaged in hearing appeals from the re- to anship and borough officers elected i cent triennial assessment. The valuation of many of the townships has been materially reduced. Some dissatisfaction is manifested at the action of the board in increasing the rate from four to seven mills. The low rate was fixed last year, because the Commissioners saw that with the surplus funds on hand the amount raised by a four mill tax would be suffi cient to meet the ordinary expenses of the year. But during the current year, the Bridge at Athens is to be paid for, and there will be other extraordinary ex-penses to be provided for, so that the ommissioners should not be criticised too severely. They have acted for the best interests of the county. The economcal and judicious administration of the officers during the first year of the new board, has fully justified the expectations f their friends and reflects the highest redit upon them and their efficient and

It is entirely worthy of its predecessors, and full in its one hundred and forty-four pages of what is entertaining, interesting and valuable. The editorship of this periodical is well placed. It is in the hands of HENRY M. Alden, a young man of exquisite taste and the most refined and cultured judgment: He should have the cre lit of the conduct of the magazine. It belongs to him. Frost & Sons, in this place, but we presume many of our readers in this immediate vicinity do not yet realize the relation the establishment bears to the prosperity and growth of Towanda. J. O. Frost became proprietor of the business some twelve cars ago, and at once commenced to enarge and improve it. He saw that in a country like ours, where lumber is comparatively cheap, furniture could be profitably manufactured and skilled workmen induced to locate here. His plan was soon carried into execution, and the business grew from year to year, until he found the care and labor too great for bim, and six years since admitted as partners his two eldest sons, who like Treasurer, It Montgomery; Town Clerk Leroy Holousiness which was a sure guarantee of continued success. Our streets were filled with rosy schoolma'ains and rather bashfut male educaare on the list for hearing before the Sus tors. There is a freshness of manner about these female teachers that is really exhilarating to one who is tired with straight-laced conventionalisms. 'We witnessed in this educational collection some variety, just enough to lend an additional charm. There was the fall girl, who evidently regretted that she was not of a more diminutive size; and there the chubby Miss who doubtless envied the stature of her tall sister; there the blonde, as rosy as a frosty winter's day and good health could paint her—and the rich brunette. A large number of them were good-looking-none xery pretty-none at | all ill looking. The young male teachers certainly did not appear to advantage in the society of their fair, associates. The conversation of these girls had a sparkle about it like champagne,—their manners were easy and their deportment genteel. On the contrary, the young men showed neigh awkwardness of movement, and simful embarrassment. A little contact with the world, however, will remedy these little defects. Looking over the cheery faces of the girls we could not help thinking that here was a good place for the boys to select sweethearts, and for the older ones to get treasurer, A U Stevens; Town Clerk, J. Hart.
