THE PERMANENT EXHIBITION, To-day, (Thursday), the Perma nent International Exhibition will be thrown open to the public. In point of extent, diversity and magnificence, the present exhibition does not approximate the Centennial; but in completeness, classification, and the general arrangement of the several departments, it cannot be compared disparagingly. The exhibition will be held in the Main Building, which was purchased by the company for this purpose. Although meeting with many discouragements. everything has been progressing slowly and uninterruptedly, and the mammoth show will be in readiness when the opening day arrives.

Many architectural changes have been made since last summer. The only very marked change in the intarior of the building, is at the centre of the north side; here the high gallery has been connected with the floor by a long sweep of high steps, where the music stand was originally located. Upon these are placed tiers of gradually ascending seats. and above them the great organ. This grand stage is intended for the accommodation of chorus and or chestra entertainments. In front of the elevated stage or terraced plat form, is a clear area 200 feet in width by 240 feet in length to the centre of the building, and this is soon to have accommodations for an audience of 8,000 people. On the music stand can be seated a chorus of 2.500 voices, not including a full orchestra, and this will not interfere with the ascending avenues on each side, leading to two arcades formed by connecting with a bridge the two north towers and the organ gallery. From the top of these arcades the tractiveness.

Some of the most interesting of jects are near the centre of the building and within a short distance of the music stand, so that one may roam about examining different objects of interest, and at the same time enjoy the music. The musical auditorium is bounded by towers, in one of which has been constructed by the Ladies' Committee a fac-simile of an Indian encampment, including: wigwams, weapons, rude utensils, &c., together with life-size figures in Indian costumes which recently have been purchased, and are now on their way from the West. The surround-Kalamazoo, Mich., sp. Saturday, to the ings of this encampment will be as dorsement of the course of our Sena-charge of assault with intent to kill, was closely imitative of nature as possi- for and members in the Legislature, ings of this encampment will be as ble, and will include grass, underrunning stream. In dangerous proximity to this hostile retreat of the Lo family is placed the Old Log Cabin and New England Kitchen, which must yet be vividly remembered by Centennial visitors. Miss Southwick, to whose energy we owe this feature of both exhibitions, has just home, and brings with her a multitude of new, or more strictly speak-shown. In the centre of the buildings is bronze statue of the Goddess of Liberty, not previously exhibited. To paintings, engravings, mezzotints, statuary will be fine, and though much smaller than that of the Centennial, nothing will be lost by the change, as it is impossible to really enjoy or closely examine any work of art where the eye is continually listracted by a forest of other forms equally beautiful. A specially interesting addition to this department is nearly all the great Americans to sion. whom statues have been erected within the last fifty years. Among these can now be seen a life-size statue of General Putnam, another of General RAWLINS, another of FRANKLIN, two of Washington, two of Lincoln, a large equestrian statue of General SCOTT, and another of General Mc-PHERSON, who, it will be remembered, was killed in the advance on Atthere three weeks and had begun to lanta.
