

The Daily Enterprise

S. W. ALVORD, Publisher.

TOWANDA, BRADFORD COUNTY, PA., THURSDAY MORNING, JUNE 14, 1877.

25 CENTS PER ANNUM IN ADVANCE.

Not generally known, dining cars are now being run over the entire length of the route. They are taken on and off of the train at stated meal times, while these dining cars will be made a part of the train and run through in the same way as the regular sleeping cars.

On the admirable steel rail that is now laid on the Chicago & North-Western Railway, these elegant, six-wheeled dining cars, will give an easy and comfortable rest to passengers as a hall-car, but also as a regular dining car. They will be run in regular service about March 1st, 1877.—Republican, Dec. 22, 1876.

A DAUGHTER'S LOVE.

In the hour of punishment, love always has a last word to make for human blame. And that is often its happiest effort; for affection may save at the last those who have been brought to repentance for sin only to find that it is too late. In the case of the daughter of the late John W. Alvord, who has been buried in the cemetery at Towanda, Pa., there is a touching incident which is worth relating. It is the story of a mother's love for her child, who had been brought to repentance for sin only to find that it is too late. In the case of the daughter of the late John W. Alvord, who has been buried in the cemetery at Towanda, Pa., there is a touching incident which is worth relating. It is the story of a mother's love for her child, who had been brought to repentance for sin only to find that it is too late.

There was a mortgage of eleven hundred dollars on his place, and the holder wanted his money and would not wait. In the agony of the moment he begged for a little extension of time. The creditor had no sympathy for a borrower who had made and kept himself poor by his own vices. On the morning of the day when the mortgage was to be foreclosed, the unhappy old man, unknown to his family, to whom he had never told the desperate state of his affairs, called at the office of the lawyer who had been retained to draw up the mortgage. He had made one more pitiful appeal. But nothing could be done for him, and certain at last that the threatened blow must fall, he sank into a chair, completely overcome. The lawyer, who had been called to the house to draw up the mortgage, saw the old man's condition and had a compassionate feeling for his misery, did not disturb him; and he sat there two hours like one stunned. At the end of that time, a carriage drove hastily to the door, and a moment after a lady entered the room. She started and gazed tenderly at the old man who still sat with his face buried in his hands.

"The man suddenly raised his head," she said, "and I would if it would do you any good, but I have it here, and the money too." The delighted old man at once put his name to the pledge, his debt was paid, and his daughter accompanied him back to the old homestead. It was the happiest day of his life, for it was the day of his reformation. Margaret was herself poor, but she had saved herself from the grasp of the creditor. She had saved herself from the grasp of the creditor. She had saved herself from the grasp of the creditor.

I have such a dislike to almost the whole of what are called in housekeeping, "modern improvements" (being such as gas, electric light, and steam heating, and heating apparatus, except where, as in hotels and factories, they are necessary on a grand scale), that I naturally prefer a contrivance like this "stove" — convenient, cheap, and capable of being a domestication of a primitive stove. However, I am well aware that there is a sufficient reason for our American whole-hearted adoption of mechanical contrivances in the kitchen, and for its presence in the labor and expense necessary to carry on a household. But, now, as the modern improvements are to be had, and "service" is getting to be more and more a profession, we may reasonably prefer a more domestic, and less hotel and steam-bath way of living, knowing that in doing so we are pleasing also in healthier ways of living, and not merely for the sake of the thing. It may be as well to mention, however, that it may be made more comfortable by doing differently from their neighbors, to know that a great many people are on the side of reform in this matter, and that it may be almost said to be "the fashion" (magical word!) nowadays, to work by a "standard-lamp," or a "moderator" — the perfection of light gives — with an open fire of soft coal in the grate, and no noxious life-destroying furnace within the four walls; while upstairs, the plumbing is confined to the bath-room, the movable wash-stand with its china and glass and "concoct" generally being run out of its closet prison, and set in light and air.

Instructive in astronomy. And now your gentlemen, which of you can tell me the name of the greatest of the planets — the champion planet, so to speak — for the length of your telegraph? Student: "It's Saturn." Instructor: Well, that's not it. It's Venus. That's the one that carries the belt.

MAY—SUMMER!

Kent & Bliss have this day opened a full line of WASHING MACHINES, of every make, and with the most reliable of the Frigidaire line can be extended in the most artistic manner and at the lowest rates.

Professional and Business Cards.

JAMES WOOD,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
TOWANDA, PA.

JOHN F. SANDERSON,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
TOWANDA, PA.

CHAS. M. HALL,

NOTARY PUBLIC.

S. W. & M. LITTLE,

ATTORNEYS-AT-LAW,
TOWANDA, PA.

GEORGE D. STROUD,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW,
TOWANDA, PA.

H. STREETER,

LAW OFFICE,

OVERTON & MERCUR,

ATTORNEYS-AT-LAW,
TOWANDA, PA.

W.M. MAXWELL,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

PATRICK & FOYLE,

ATTORNEYS-AT-LAW,
TOWANDA, PA.

E. J. ANGLE,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

G. F. MASON,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
TOWANDA, PA.

E. L. HILLS,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
TOWANDA, PA.

J. ANDREW WILT,

ATTORNEY & COUNSELLOR-AT-LAW,
TOWANDA, PA.

MORRISON & KINNEY,

ATTORNEYS-AT-LAW,
TOWANDA, PA.

E. F. GOFF,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
TOWANDA, PA.

W. L. THOMPSON, ATTORNEY

AT-LAW, TOWANDA, PA.

ELSBREE,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
TOWANDA, PA.

C. L. LAMB,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
TOWANDA, PA.

OVERTON & ELBREE,

ATTORNEYS-AT-LAW,
TOWANDA, PA.

MADDILL & CALIFF,

ATTORNEYS-AT-LAW,
TOWANDA, PA.

G. H. MAHILL & PAYNE,

ATTORNEYS-AT-LAW,
TOWANDA, PA.

JOHN W. MIX,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
TOWANDA, PA.

DAVIES & CARNOCHAN,

ATTORNEYS-AT-LAW,
TOWANDA, PA.

H. PEET, ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

TOWANDA, PA.

IMMENSE STOCK

of SPRING AND SUMMER CLOTHING

Just opened at the old stand of

H. J. SOLOMON & SON.

AGENCY WITH MANAGEMENT

OF THE

MR. J. DAVIS

READY-MADE CLOTHING!

Of every description ever offered in this market. My stock comprises everything in the following: Men's, Youths' and Children's Wear.

PARASOLS,

FURNISHING GOODS,

HATS, CAPS, TRUNKS,

VALISES, UMBRELLAS,

CANES, &c.

DO NOT YOU FORGET IT!

WHAT?

WHY, THE FACT

THAT

HIS PRICES ARE LOWER!

BOUGHT FOR CASH,

AND GUARANTEED TO BE JUST

WHAT THEY ARE RECORDED!

BOYS' CLOTHING,

NEATLY AND SUBSTANTIALLY MADE

AT ABOUT THE COST OF MATERIAL!

BOYS' CLOTHING,

NEATLY AND SUBSTANTIALLY MADE

AT ABOUT THE COST OF MATERIAL!

BOYS' CLOTHING,

NEATLY AND SUBSTANTIALLY MADE

Selected Poetry

THE NEW ORLEANS.

As a martial poet the following from the pen of
F. M. Johnson, President, Episcopal
Episcopal church, is worthy of a place in any collection of the kind. It is full of life and force, and, for a Bishop who has been so severely criticised by those who are in the center of the great city,
it is a noble effort.

TO-MORROW.

The setting sun, with dying glow,
Had waded the purple hills to dye,
And faded and done and gone
Were gilded by the farthest glow,
And in the distance the moon was
Full moon a slender line of light
That glided through the river sweep,
And all about it it seemed to glow,
Ah, well! it is a dream of the
To-morrow.

TO-MORROW.

The setting sun, with dying glow,
Had waded the purple hills to dye,
And faded and done and gone
Were gilded by the farthest glow,
And in the distance the moon was
Full moon a slender line of light
That glided through the river sweep,
And all about it it seemed to glow,
Ah, well! it is a dream of the
To-morrow.

TO-MORROW.

The setting sun, with dying glow,
Had waded the purple hills to dye,
And faded and done and gone
Were gilded by the farthest glow,
And in the distance the moon was
Full moon a slender line of light
That glided through the river sweep,
And all about it it seemed to glow,
Ah, well! it is a dream of the
To-morrow.

TO-MORROW.

The setting sun, with dying glow,
Had waded the purple hills to dye,
And faded and done and gone
Were gilded by the farthest glow,
And in the distance the moon was
Full moon a slender line of light
That glided through the river sweep,
And all about it it seemed to glow,
Ah, well! it is a dream of the
To-morrow.

TO-MORROW.

The setting sun, with dying glow,
Had waded the purple hills to dye,
And faded and done and gone
Were gilded by the farthest glow,
And in the distance the moon was
Full moon a slender line of light
That glided through the river sweep,
And all about it it seemed to glow,
Ah, well! it is a dream of the
To-morrow.

Selected Poetry

THE NEW ORLEANS.

As a martial poet the following from the pen of
F. M. Johnson, President, Episcopal
Episcopal church, is worthy of a place in any collection of the kind. It is full of life and force, and, for a Bishop who has been so severely criticised by those who
are in the center of the great city,
it is a noble effort.

TO-MORROW.

The setting sun, with dying glow,
Had waded the purple hills to dye,
And faded and done and gone
Were gilded by the farthest glow,
And in the distance the moon was
Full moon a slender line of light
That glided through the river sweep,
And all about it it seemed to glow,
Ah, well! it is a dream of the
To-morrow.

TO-MORROW.

The setting sun, with dying glow,
Had waded the purple hills to dye,
And faded and done and gone
Were gilded by the farthest glow,
And in the distance the moon was
Full moon a slender line of light
That glided through the river sweep,
And all about it it seemed to glow,
Ah, well! it is a dream of the
To-morrow.

TO-MORROW.

The setting sun, with dying glow,
Had waded the purple hills to dye,
And faded and done and gone
Were gilded by the farthest glow,
And in the distance the moon was
Full moon a slender line of light
That glided through the river sweep,
And all about it it seemed to glow,
Ah, well! it is a dream of the
To-morrow.

TO-MORROW.

The setting sun, with dying glow,
Had waded the purple hills to dye,
And faded and done and gone
Were gilded by the farthest glow,
And in the distance the moon was
Full moon a slender line of light
That glided through the river sweep,
And all about it it seemed to glow,
Ah, well! it is a dream of the
To-morrow.

TO-MORROW.

The setting sun, with dying glow,
Had waded the purple hills to dye,
And faded and done and gone
Were gilded by the farthest glow,
And in the distance the moon was
Full moon a slender line of light
That glided through the river sweep,
And all about it it seemed to glow,
Ah, well! it is a dream of the
To-morrow.

Selected Poetry

THE NEW ORLEANS.

As a martial poet the following from the pen of
F. M. Johnson, President, Episcopal
Episcopal church, is worthy of a place in any collection of the kind. It is full of life and force, and, for a Bishop who has been so severely criticised by those who
are in the center of the great city,
it is a noble effort.

TO-MORROW.

The setting sun, with dying glow,
Had waded the purple hills to dye,
And faded and done and gone
Were gilded by the farthest glow,
And in the distance the moon was
Full moon a slender line of light
That glided through the river sweep,
And all about it it seemed to glow,
Ah, well! it is a dream of the
To-morrow.

TO-MORROW.

The setting sun, with dying glow,
Had waded the purple hills to dye,
And faded and done and gone
Were gilded by the farthest glow,
And in the distance the moon was
Full moon a slender line of light
That glided through the river sweep,
And all about it it seemed to glow,
Ah, well! it is a dream of the
To-morrow.

TO-MORROW.

The setting sun, with dying glow,
Had waded the purple hills to dye,
And faded and done and gone
Were gilded by the farthest glow,
And in the distance the moon was
Full moon a slender line of light
That glided through the river sweep,
And all about it it seemed to glow,
Ah, well! it is a dream of the
To-morrow.

TO-MORROW.

The setting sun, with dying glow,
Had waded the purple hills to dye,
And faded and done and gone
Were gilded by the farthest glow,
And in the distance the moon was
Full moon a slender line of light
That glided through the river sweep,
And all about it it seemed to glow,
Ah, well! it is a dream of the
To-morrow.

TO-MORROW.

The setting sun, with dying glow,
Had waded the purple hills to dye,
And faded and done and gone
Were gilded by the farthest glow,
And in the distance the moon was
Full moon a slender line of light
That glided through the river sweep,
And all about it it seemed to glow,
Ah, well! it is a dream of the
To-morrow.

Selected Poetry

THE NEW ORLEANS.

As a martial poet the following from the pen of
F. M. Johnson, President, Episcopal
Episcopal church, is worthy of a place in any collection of the kind. It is full of life and force, and, for a Bishop who has been so severely criticised by those who
are in the center of the great city,
it is a noble effort.

TO-MORROW.

The setting sun, with dying glow,
Had waded the purple hills to dye,
And faded and done and gone
Were gilded by the farthest glow,
And in the distance the moon was
Full moon a slender line of light
That glided through the river sweep,
And all about it it seemed to glow,
Ah, well! it is a dream of the
To-morrow.

TO-MORROW.

The setting sun, with dying glow,
Had waded the purple hills to dye,
And faded and done and gone
Were gilded by the farthest glow,
And in the distance the moon was
Full moon a slender line of light
That glided through the river sweep,
And all about it it seemed to glow,
Ah, well! it is a dream of the
To-morrow.

TO-MORROW.

The setting sun, with dying glow,
Had waded the purple hills to dye,
And faded and done and gone
Were gilded by the farthest glow,
And in the distance the moon was
Full moon a slender line of light
That glided through the river sweep,
And all about it it seemed to glow,
Ah, well! it is a dream of the
To-morrow.

TO-MORROW.

The setting sun, with dying glow,
Had waded the purple hills to dye,
And faded and done and gone
Were gilded by the farthest glow,
And in the distance the moon was
Full moon a slender line of light
That glided through the river sweep,
And all about it it seemed to glow,
Ah, well! it is a dream of the
To-morrow.

TO-MORROW.

The setting sun, with dying glow,
Had waded the purple hills to dye,
And faded and done and gone
Were gilded by the farthest glow,
And in the distance the moon was
Full moon a slender line of light
That glided through the river sweep,
And all about it it seemed to glow,
Ah, well! it is a dream of the
To-morrow.

Selected Poetry

THE NEW ORLEANS.

As a martial poet the following from the pen of
F. M. Johnson, President, Episcopal
Episcopal church, is worthy of a place in any collection of the kind. It is full of life and force, and, for a Bishop who has been so severely criticised by those who
are in the center of the great city,
it is a noble effort.

TO-MORROW.

The setting sun, with dying glow,
Had waded the purple hills to dye,
And faded and done and gone
Were gilded by the farthest glow,
And in the distance the moon was
Full moon a slender line of light
That glided through the river sweep,
And all about it it seemed to glow,
Ah, well! it is a dream of the
To-morrow.

TO-MORROW.

The setting sun, with dying glow,
Had waded the purple hills to dye,
And faded and done and gone
Were gilded by the farthest glow,
And in the distance the moon was
Full moon a slender line of light
That glided through the river sweep,
And all about it it seemed to glow,
Ah, well! it is a dream of the
To-morrow.

TO-MORROW.

The setting sun, with dying glow,
Had waded the purple hills to dye,
And faded and done and gone
Were gilded by the farthest glow,
And in the distance the moon was
Full moon a slender line of light
That glided through the river sweep,
And all about it it seemed to glow,
Ah, well! it is a dream of the
To-morrow.

TO-MORROW.

The setting sun, with dying glow,
Had waded the purple hills to dye,
And faded and done and gone
Were gilded by the farthest glow,
And in the distance the moon was
Full moon a slender line of light
That glided through the river sweep,
And all about it it seemed to glow,
Ah, well! it is a dream of the
To-morrow.

TO-MORROW.

The setting sun, with dying glow,
Had waded the purple hills to dye,
And faded and done and gone
Were gilded by the farthest glow,
And in the distance the moon was
Full moon a slender line of light
That glided through the river sweep,
And all about it it seemed to glow,
Ah, well! it is a dream of the
To-morrow.