It is frequently asserted, and no doubt honestly believed by many that the laws of Pennsylvania are all opposed to the interest of labor. The following summary from the statute books will show that legislation in the interest of labor has not been neglected or overlooked by our lawmakers. The Philadelphia Telegraph has taken the pains to look the matter up and concludes as follows:

Although the leaders in the movemen for the formation of the so-called Workingman's party in this city have not been able as yet to make known exactly what they want, the general drift of the agita-tion is to the effect that the Workingman is the victim of special legislation for the benefit of capitalists and employees, and the employe proposes to go into politics with the view of obtaining some legisla-tion which will relieve him from the disadvantages under which he imagines he abors. The accident occurred at an early hour this morning, and was occasioned by one of the most terrific tornadoes or evelones that has for many years swept across this section of the country. Those who were fortunate enough to hear the rapid advance of the storm cloud which brought so mubh destruction and spent its fury, it might be said, in a seccend, tell this story. The roar of a heavy wind was heard in a direction bearing a little east of north, and apparently coming out of a quarter lying along the river as it leaves Omaha to the northeast. The noise momentarily grew heaver, and the breeze which had been blowing all night, suddenly ceased, and all what was then known to be the terrible tornado. Within a few moments after the first sound was heard the gigantic blow was struck. As the tornado met the surface of the Missouri river it is said the waters were tossed and scat tered and cleft in twain, much as were those of the Red Sea when Moses made his celebrated march before the irate Egyptians. The waters were beaten into foam and piled high on either side of the track of the storm, which was very narrow. With lightening like rapidity the
