General John Davis, the venerable father of Mrs. Judge Mercua, died at his home in Davisville, Bucks County, on Monday morning last, in the 90th year of his age. Gen. Davis was for many years one of the most prominent politicians in the State. Twenty-five years ago he retired from active life, but had been in the enjoyment of excellent health and vigorous mental fabulties until within a few weeks of the time of his death.

Dr. D. S. Pratt made a narrow escape from a serious accident on Saturday evening last. He was visiting a patient near the iron works, and in attempting to turn

Its cost is even small in comparison with that cost is even small in comparison with that of the foolish advertising so strongly condemned by business experts. The money thrown away on the schemes of which we have above spoken would have paid for a large amount of newspaper advertising that would have simulated trade and vastly inreased sales. The whole country is talking now of a revival of industry and prosperity, and it is a very sure thing that the business men who reap the largest benefits will be those who take care that the newspapers shall do them good service.

Mr. William Vandermark, of Towanda, writes to the Examiner and Express to describe the clothes and general features of the unknown man found drowned in the Susquehanna river, near Washington borough, in the early part of last month. Mr. Vandermark states that his brother was drowned near Towarda n the 27th of last November, while raftng. He also states that over two hundred dollars have already been expended to find his body, but thus far without avail. He was twenty-two years of age, and had a scar on his right cheek. This fact was stated to Deputy Coroner Martin at Washington borough, and he reports that the body found in the river was so much decomposed that no scar was noticeable. He supposed the deceased was twenty-two years old, heavy built clean-shaven face; he wore dark woolen pants, brown overalls and gingham shirt, The dase of Mr. Coolnaton against and was coatless. IMPORTANT DECISION .- An important and somewhat novel divorce case was disposed of by his Honor, Judge JESSUP here last week. The facts in the case as we understand them are these: In the year 1870 JENNIE H. HASSENFELT, of Watertown, Wisconsin, a young lady of more than ordinarny beauty and intelligence, came east to finish her education at the Auburn Female School, under the charge of Prof. Brown. While a student there she made the acquaintance of CHARLES M. Firch, a young gentleman of that city. After leaving that institution she returned to her home in the West, where she was visited on several occasions by young Firch, the result of which was a betrothal and marriage in October, 1872. The brief wedding tour ended, the young much wealth as was supposed, Firch's parents she alleges, began a course of illtreatment towards her, making her very unhappy. About this time a daughter was born as the fruits of the marriage. Under the influence and control of his parents, the young husband was induced to turn against his wife, and she was forced, it is alleged, for lack of support to quit Auburn, and with her infant child return alone to her mother's home. Soon after her departure Monnel L. Firch, scandalous reports about her chastity, on which the young Mrs. FITCH brought an action against, im for libel, and a jury awarded her, judgment of $4,500. Hav-

THE COUNTY HISTORY.—Subscribers to ty, will hear with pleasure that the work has been completed, and is now ready for delivery: We have not yet seen a copy author but to the enterprising publishers who have pushed the publication with so much energy.

Mr. H. B. PIERCE, who some of our citizens may remember as the gentleman and weakened constitutions, where a mild, but who assisted Mr. CRAFT in compiling DRUGGISTS. some of the chapters of Bradford County, and was in the publishers office when the history was completed, at the conclusion of the writing of the last page dashed off the following impromptu. To appreciate the force of the expressions, the circumstances must be known. After the fire in which a part of the printed matter was consumed, there was a great deal of extra labor required to bring the work out at the time it was advertised to appear. ED-WARDS, the foreman of the printing office, who was eagerly pressing for corrected proofs and copy, had a peculiar pronunciation of some of the names of the townships; for example, Sheshequin he accented on the first syllable as he did Wysox, making it also short—the spelling and the rythm are intended to convey this pro-

THE temperance interest is on the increase here. The meetings which have been held during the past week, clearly indicate that the the interest of our people has not abated in the least, but that there s a firm determination to continue the warfare against King Alcohol, until the last devotee shall surrender or "die in the last ditch." As in all movements of this character there is much in the manner of conducting the meetings which is distasteful to some, but all unite in pronouncing the results good, and therefore all good citizens should give it a hearty support. Mr. BARRY, the conductor. possesses a large degree of executive ability, and by his judicious management has been instrumental in awakening interest in the meetings. To the admirable choir, led by Mrs. Q. A. BALDWIN, much credit is due, as music is a most important element in the Murphy movement, and this portion of the exercises has been most successfully maintained. We have not the time and space to refer in detail to all the speeches which have been made. but the Court House has been crowded every night, and the addresses have been attentively listened to. LLEWELLYN HAR-RIS, RHODE MOE, ARMSTRONG TYLER,

JAMES MCINTYRE, and other reformed men have advocated the cause in feeling and touching language. On Tuesday evening, Mr. J. B. BRIGGS, of Elmira, spoke for nearly an hour and a half in a most eloquent and convincing manner. At the conclusion of his address, the larger part of the Naiad Fire Company filed into the room in a body and signed the pledge This manly example will add to the already brilliant record of the Naiad boys. The meetings will be centinued until further notice. The evening sessions are preceded by a prayer meeting at the M.

E. Church every afternoon. Quite an excitement was created on Wednesday last, by the discovery that one of the trusses sustaining the roof; of Christ Church, had in some unaccounta ble manner, slipped from its position, and was liable to come crashing down upon the heads of the worshippers, or at any time, and fortunately the matter was discaders are generally content with the a notice of the divorce in an Auburn pa- milk or cream, also margarine from the covered in time to save an accident, and the contrary, the reader who sits down to the proceedings upon which Firch pro-
