Onions against Cholera.
I raised only the Light Brahmas, and much pleased with them.
While our neighbors, for several miles around us, have lost nearly all of their chickens from the so-called cholera, ours are in fine condition. They were attacked with the preliminary symptoms of this disease, which seems to be endemic here, but we cured them and have had no trouble with them since, having accidentally found a cure.
Cut up onions with their food, and administer it once a week with meal. Also mix a little ground ginger with meal, once every day or two. We also give them a little salt every two days, which we deem highly necessary, and above all things, keep water melons, musk melons, and cucumbers away from them. The tops of celery cut up with the food will be found beneficial, and they appear to like it very well. Do not get these statements mixed up. The onions and ginger only, for cholera; the remainder for constant attention. Too much whole corn we have found injurious; we give a meal of this only once a week, and not more than one quart to a very large chicken. Raw onions and a very little ginger against the world for curing cholera, if the disease has not been allowed to run too far.
The gravies, juices, oyster juices, scraps, etc., when really done, will be good; and every now and then the good grounds mixed with it, will prove gently stimulating. But the gravies, etc., must not be given in too great quantities.
Raw onions once every week or two should be given to chickens, right along during the whole year.
It tends to prevent the formation of worms, as well as keep lice away, given out up to the neck, mixed with meal, twice a week, will be found useful for young chickens, after they are two weeks old; if they thrive well on it, it prevents gaps.—Poultry Yard.
Sowing Flower Seed.
The first of May is quite early enough to sow annual flower seeds, while bulbs should be planted by the middle or twentieth of this month. The soil for flowers should be as rich as possible with well rotted stable manure, and pulverized very finely. The seed should be very slightly covered with a small iron rake. They should be carefully tended, and the soil watered with gentle dry will water from a watering can. That has been standing in the sun; keep clear of weeds, etc. Should the plants come up too thickly, thin them and transplant them after a rain, when you may wish to do so. They should be protected against the midday sun for a couple of days, until they become established. It is impossible to obtain fine flowers unless the ground be well-prepared and made very rich. A dollar's worth of seed will be sufficient for a good sized border.
Bulls should be planted so that their crowns will be two inches below the surface. The soil should be rich and sandy, and if one-third sand so much the better. Many persons plant them in November, and they do not produce better flowers, but the destruction by mice is so frequent in certain places, as to make planting hazardous.—Germantown Telegraph.

LIEK EXTERMINATOR.—Years ago I discovered that ALKALINE fine powder is specific for the destruction of lice on all animals, and as it has no bitter or burning qualities, it can be freely applied, and as it has to be used in a dry state, its application is safe in cold and warm weather, and is consequently free from all objections urged against other remedies. My regard for the comfort of animals and the interests of their owners induce me to publish this for the benefit of all concerned, and as this is the season when these parasites are usually most numerous and annoying, an opportunity is afforded for testing its unparalleled merits.
Directions: Fill a large common pepper-box with the powder and sprinkle freely into the ears, on the neck, back, sides and rump of the animals infested, and rub it thoroughly through the hair and on the skin with the ends of the fingers; leave it undisturbed for 48 hours. Then comb or curry thoroughly and apply as before, and so continue at intervals of a week, until there is not a living parasite. I have used and recommended this exterminator in numerous cases without a failure, and two different applications, although made, generally suffice.—J. P. Kingsly, M. D., in the Rural New Yorker.

ROLLS PANCAKES.—Beat six eggs separately, stir the yolks into one quart of milk with a tablespoonful of melted butter and a teaspoonful of salt; add sufficient flour to make a thin batter then sprinkle in one teaspoonful of yeast powder, and stir in the whites of the eggs; put a frying-pan on the fire; when it is hot, grease with a spoonful of lard; pour in a cupful of batter, fry a light brown, and turn carefully so as not to burn the cake; when brown on both sides, lift out and spread with strawberry jam or any kind of jam or marmalade; you may also roll up nicely and lay them on a plate; sprinkle with pulverized sugar; send to the table hot, and serve with or without cream.

TO MAKE COFFEE CLEARER WITH ISINGLASS.—Grind your coffee (French style) to as fine a powder as possible, it will go much further, have the water boiling, and to a gallon put at most five tablespoonfuls of coffee, and fasten a glass, a flake of which will an inch wide and two inches long will clear it; do not let the coffee boil more than five minutes, and set it on the table one minute before breakfast is served. Fish bladders can be bought at any drug store, the fashionable ones charging thirty cents per ounce, others fifteen cents per ounce, and two ounces for twenty-five cents. An ounce will last at least a month.

Writer in Moore's Rural has never known butter-milk "spoil" on during warm days, to fail to cure a pig of "black scurf," even when the disease was so long duration that the animal's back was raw with sores.

Thorough drainage, plenty of stable manure, with a heavy top-dressing of coal ashes, will be found good treatment for soils of a close, heavy texture.
