As requested, I have examined the late edition of SWINTON'S GEOGIEAPHIES. This second and more careful examination adds to the high pinion I previously had of the books, especially of he smaller one. Frof. Swinton has a pleasing way of stating things in all of his text-books, and in one has he been more folicitous than in this Electric than the beautiful of the statement of the second of the 1st Ward Dakery, will be an hand daily wish Fresh Crackers hot from the oven, Bread, Pies, none has he been more felicitous than in this Elementary Geography. In the larger work the plate of additional information for clauses as special work in their own States is a good one. The plan used in the descriptive part is both natural and philosophical; for instance, position, &c., outline, surface, rivers and lakes, climate, and political divisions follow each other in the order enumerated. It is easy to be seen how naturally each follows and depends upon and grows out of the preceding topic, Twiff say, however, that Swinton's series, in my judgment, now that it has Apgar's fine system of Map Drawing, is the equal of any series I have examined. Don't you forget it. We have an xcellent CRACKER HANUFACTORY in town at COWLES' BAKERY, where you can buy the best fresh-baked ergokers. 🕆 👝 🕌

I consider SWINTON'S COMPLETE COURSE IN GEOGRAPHY, in all its features, the very best I know for school-room use. The "Special State Geography" is a peculiar and most desirable part. After a thorough examination of SWINTON'S GEOGRAPHIES, I am satisfied of their superiormerit. I like it so well I think of introducing it in our school next term.

HARMSHURG, Pa., May 16, 1878, In my opinion, SWINTON'S GEOGRAPHIES are just the books for our schools. It is refreshing to be conducted by a new route through the various lands and peoples of the earth, and have so many things we ought to know pointed out to us and described, in such a pleasant way. Both old and young can but be entertained and instructed. The series is to be commended for its method, its illustrations and mans, and statistical tables.

SWINTON'S GEOGRAPHIES are better than any we now have in our schools, in my opinion. I have asked many teachers and they invariably prefer them to any of the others in use.
