EXERCISE FOR STOCK. All kinds of stock will be the better for moderate exercise. This advice applies especially to animals which are kept in stables. Cows and horses should be left out for a part of each day, unless the weather is exceedingly severe or stormy.

GET UP WOOD-BEPAIR IMPLEMENTS. During the sleighing time the farmer is getting up wood, drawing logs berthat every to mill, marketing produce, visiting friends, etc. The drag teeth are sharpened, the ploughs repaired, the mower put in order, the wagon and buggy taken to town to be painted and put in first-rate order. He will not neglect to store ice for the sum-

VISIT FRIENDS AND TAKE NOTES. Every enterprising farmer who intends to progress is keeping accounts with various departments of his busness. Each of his fields is charged with the work, seed and part of the manure put on it, and credited with what comes off. He keeps a diary, not writing for the sake of writing, but to make note of any new idea which he wishes to use during the YEW CARRIAGE FACTORY! next year. He sees a new gate latch, a sheep rack, a manger, something desirable about some farm implement. and he makes a note of everything of the kind by word or drawing. These notes are looked over every little while during the year. There are many advantages in visiting good farmers. Look about you for men who raise superior wheat, corn. potatoes and other crops, and live stock. If they are ahead of you, buy some of the extra seed or stock and enter into a healthy competition with the best of them.

BOOKS AND PAPERS. The farmer has selected his list of agricultural papers, and they are now coming regularly with all their improvements. He has added to his li-brary a few of one best and most recent books on his specialties. We hear less of book farming than formerly. Books on agriculture are bet-We have one of the best Carriage Painters in the ter than they were. People never country, and de all work in this line at the lowest expect to use all the advice given on any topic even by the most practical and successful man, but this is no reason why they should not consult the best men who are engaged in the same business with themselves. The same rule may be applied to books. We should be able to pick out from books some valuable hints applicable to our own wants. One book has a picture of a wheat stack about twothirds done. The stack is cylindrical and flat or dishing at the top. That MCINTYRE & SPENCER. is no way to build a stack, and every farmer knows it; but after all every farmer might read the book with HEAD WORK. On the farm at all times this kind of work pays the best returns for the time given to it. Head work is too much neglected, considering the sure and large profits which are certain to follow its employment. February is the month of all others for study. The accounts and inventory of the previous year are fixed up. The ip the old store of O. A. Black with a grange or farmers' club is in full blast, and very likely doing its best. This is the time of year for meetings of pomological societies, for farmers' institutes, for meetings of men especially interested in bees, swine, sheep, cattle, horses, or any particular breed of domestic animals. These SILVER PLATED GOODS, conventions are of more value to those who attend them than those who remain at home. Some farmers act as if they were ignorant of this self-evident truth. The advantages are numerous and important. Men engaged in a common interest or spccialty learn from each other. They get acquainted; they pick up new ideas; they gather enthusiasm; they go to work again with a better understanding of their business. No matter whether you are an officer or not, you are always a welcome lis-Sewing Machines of the leading makes sold for tener, at any rate, in any of the Cash at store, at wonderfully low prices. above gatherings.

ECONOMY. Save as much as possible of every-thing useful if it does not cost too much labor. Time is money. Labor s money. It is poor economy to buy old stock at any price, to feed for profit. Young, thrifty stock pay much best the returns for feed consumed. Weigh them often, and when they cease to give returns for feed and trouble, dispose of them. Contrive in every way to do the chores with as little labor as possible, without neglecting anything. Try to save steps. We know of instances where two take better care of the stock on a large farm than three or four do on a smaller farm. It is not economy to feed straw alone to any animal. It is not composed of the right materials for profitable feed. Dil cake, corn meal, or shorts will supply what the straw lacks. In this way, straw may be fed with profit to many animals. As profits are small at best, all these details of labor, age of animals, food, etc., must be attended to.-Rural New Yorker.

WATER-PROOF BOOTS.-It is not lways desirable that boots should e absolutely water-proof, as whatever keeps water out will keep it in, and whoever has worn India-rubber boots for any legth of time, knows that retaining the perspiration of the feet soon puts them in a very unpleasant, half par-boiled condition bat is is not desirable. Still, waterproof boots are useful in an emerency, to be worn for a short-times in doing the chores in bad weather. A pair of good rubber boots will answer this purpose, or a pair of common cowhide boots may be made water-proof after the method of the New England fishermen. These people, exposed to all weathers, have for a century used the following compound: Tallow, four ounces; rosin and beeswax, one ounce each; melt together, then stir in Neatsfoot oil, equal in bulk to the melted articles. The boots are warmed before a fire and this composition is rubbed into INMAN AND NATIONAL STEAMSHIPS. the leather, soles and uppers, by means of a rag. Two applications will make the leather quite waterproof.—American Agriculturist.
