SUMMER AND WINTER.

VOLUME XL.

When the tawny thrushes sing And the yellow cowslips spring From the meadows by the brooks When in dusky forest nooks, Elfin huntsmen wind the horn, And the chiver-seented morn Espens into the cloudless noon,-Then I love to lie alone In the grass on some-cool hill.
While the mesdow-arks all shrill "Life is music." Care and pain Fare but ill in Summer's reign.

When the snow whirls on the leas, And the icy-fingered trees Sparkle in the moon's cold light. When the clouds in the long night Weave a pall for the dead year, And the keen wind harls its spear Then my heart is never sad. For I think of breezy spring And the joys that it will bring,-Of the robins on the lawns Piping in the dewy dawns.

A baby crept to his father's knee, And was lifted up and lulled to rest, Till the blue eyes closed, so fived was he, And his little head fell peacofully At ease on the realy shouller there, While the baby hand, so soft and fair, Lay like a shield on his father's breast
