ATHENS ITEMS.

ATHENS, September 1st The principal event of the past week has been the Sullivan Centennial. Our people naturally took considerable interest in it, as it was the point where the army rendezvoused before and after the battle at Chemun, I propose giving a few notes and observations regarding the

In point of numbers and the amount of money spent by visitors it was a success, but as a display of executive ability and management as a whole a complete failure. Individuals and organizations individually did well, but collectively made a slim showing, for the reason that they were not collected, appearing very much as though left each to their own ways. Who is responsible we do not know, but a stranger might readily see the lack of proper arrangements for such an occasion. If there was a President of the day he was not at his post very often. LIBERTY CORNERS.

MR. EDITOR: Our usually quiet people enjoyed a rare treat on Wednesday evening of last week, in attending the concert conducted by Professor Pendleton, of-Philadelphia, assisted by others of the Pendleton family, all fine singers; also the singers of this place and the Cornet Band, making "music in the air." The concert was a complete success; the music was choice and finely rendered. Professor Pendleton is a brother of Mrs. C. B. Chubrock, of Liberty Corners. Both the Professor and his wife are musicians of high culture and rare talents.
