Nobody but SAM RANDALL would dare to name Providence in connection with a Democratic Congress.

THE allegation that BLACKBURN, who was the Democratic candidate for Governor of Kentucky, was the scamp who, during the war, attempted to spread infectious diseases through northern cities, has never been authoritatively denied, notwithstanding which he has over 40,-000 majority. If his plans had been successful, probably the Democrats of Kentucky would have considered him deserving of a still larger majority.

THE New York Times, which seems to haven gradge against SENATOR CONKLING. swallows the ticket just made in New York, with many manifestation, that it don't taste good. It's editorial comments are painfully incoherent and evince a distress of mind which is both lu licrous and lamentable. What can be clearer than the statement that "the ticket can hardly be said to owe any of its component parts to the spontaneous action of party preferences," which is enough, probably, to condemn any ticket, if we could only understand what it meant. So long as the coal interests of the different sections are so conflicting, there does not seem any probability that hey can be entirely reconciled and a basis agreed upon which will be satisfactoryand yet, it would be better for the country if the coal business could be put upon: mote public confidence and stimulate the establishment of many heavy enterprises, which would contribute largely to the reestablishment of business prosperity.

In about 200 years, the anthracite coal is consoling to know that the bitumnious coal fields of the country are practically inexhaustible. Before the Scientific Convention at Saratoga, last week, Professor W. SHEAFER of Pottsville spoke of the anthracite coal fields of Pennsylvania and their rapid exhaustion. He said: "The work of mining anthracite coal in that State was begun in 1820, with 365; now 20,000,000 tons per annum are produced Mr. SHRAFER asserted that only one-third of the coal goes into consumption; twothirds are wasted, lost in the mines and in preparation. He put the maximum product at about 50,000,000 tons per annum, and at the present rate of increase this limit will be reached in the year 1900, and in 186 years, say in the years 2065. our anthracite coal fields will be exhausted. Then we must fall back on our bituminous coal area, which reaches the enormous total of 200,000 square miles, say
