The gates at the passenger depots which shut out all people not having tickets for the trains were yesterday closed at the Union Depot against an elderly woman wearing spectacles and using an umbrella for a cane.

"Can't pass without a ticket," said the man at the gate as she came up.

"I want to see if there's anybody on that train going to Port Huron," she answered.

"Can't pass without a ticket, madam."

"I've got a darter in Port Huron, I have."

"Can't help it, please. My orders are very strict."

"I tell you I want to send word to my darter!" she exclaimed, adjusting her spectacles for a better view of the official.

"Yes, but we can't help that, you see. Please show your ticket."

"I want this ere railroad to understand that I've got a darter in Port Huron and she's got a baby four weeks old, and I'm going to send her up word in spite of all the gates in this depot!"

"Please show your ticket, madam."

"I tell you once more—"

"Please show your ticket, madam."

She gave the old umbrella a whirl and brought it down on his head with all the vim of an old-fashioned log raising, and as he staggered aside she passed him and said:

"There's my ticket, sir, and I've got more behind it! Mebbe one man and a gate can stop me from sending word to my darter to grease the baby's nose with mutton tallow if the weather changes, but I don't believe it!"

And she walked down to the train, found some one going to Port Huron, and came back carelessly humming the melody of the "Three Blind Mice."

It was probably a young man from Middle Haddam who made his first advent to the metropolis by the midnight train, and respectfully asked the night clerk of the Astor House if it would be any trouble to Mrs. Astor to keep him all night?

An intellectual member of the Arkansas Legislature has introduced a bill abbreviating the season of Lent from forty to twenty days. He explains that everything else has come down fifty per cent. since war, and there should be no discrimination in favor of Lent.
