THE LIBERTY OF THE PRESS. Our newspaper cotemporaries generally have been indulging in a spasm of indignation over the recent action of Judge PATTERSON of the Lancaster Court, in disbarring the lawver-editors of the Intelligencer, for strictures upon his official action, reflecting upon his integrity as a Judge. The learned Judge is held up as being little better than a had authentic information from every Jeffreys and his conduct as striking part of the country, and that there cannot be the slightest doubt as to Grant's at the liberties of the country, by in- nomination by an overwhelming majority terference with the independence of confidence has much to do in causing the the press, the great palladium of the supporters of Mr. BLAINE in the Senate rights of the people. He is denounced without stint, and without reason, as exercising a power which is in the highest and most obnoxious degree tyrannical and arbitrary, and there are hints even that he deserves to be impeached for high crimes and misdemeanors. All this affords an opportunity for fine writing. And the abundant display of high-sounding phrases about the freedom of the press, and the right to criticise official conduct, but it does not go to bably be ex-Congressman HOPKINS, Colothe marrow of the case. How it looks through different spectacles: The Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Bulletin writes that a Republican Senator who had a long talk with Senator CAMERON, says that the latter is so confident of General GRANT's nomination at Chicago that he is almost willing to stake his very existence upon the result. Senator Cameron says he has studied the situation carefully, and has to weaken in their faith that he is going to secure victory. In fact, he is demoraliving the BLAINE movement to such an extent that some of the participants are doubtful at times whether there is going to be any formal opposition to GHANT after the Convention gets together at Chicago. And the Washington correspondent of the thiladelphia North American tele-graphs that the TILDEN men are so confi-dent that he will control the coming Democratic State Convention that they have large to Cincinnati. PHILADELPHIA LETTER.

PHILADELPHIA, April 12, 1880; A little ripple of political interest was created last week by a proposition looking to the reconciling of the distracted Democracy of this city and consequently of the State. It was a happy and brilliant conception, but unfortunately it bore no fruit. Every one of the unterrified was ready for harmony and reconciliation, but every fellow wanted to be reconciled in-dividually and specially, and didn't want to reconcile the other fellow. It was a one-sided affair altogether. In fact it was an invention and proposition emanating from the fertile brain of Colonel McClure It was one of his jokes, made in such a manner that some people took it serious ly. There is a hopelss and irreconcilable just what it is about no one can fell. But there are Wallace men and Randall men, and they hate each other (as our old friend Owen Sullivan used to say) as the
