All gone to the opera, Kitty, but me.

We're alone in this rambling old house.

HON. GALUSHA A. GROW.

Western Territories. He was one of the victims of the National Food poisoning in 1875, from which he did not recover for a long time, but he is now in better health than for many years.

Mr. Grow left Congress March 4, 1863, in feeble health, with a nervous system almost prostrate from the severe labor and long strain of his twelve years' service in Congress during the most exciting and eventful period in the history of the country. In order to regain health, and if possible cure a disease of the throat, contracted in too much outdoor speaking at political meetings, he spent the summer of 1871 on the Pacific coast in California, Oregon, and Washington Territories, going as far North as Victoria, in British Columbia. In the fall of that year he went to Texas, where he remained as President of the Houston and Great Northern Railroad Company until the spring of 1875.

During the four years he was in Texas he neither voted nor took any part in politics, his time being wholly occu-pled with railroad construction and management. But on his return to his old home in Pennsylvania, he entered actively into the canvass for the election of HARRISMAN in the fall of 1875, and for HAYES in the Presidential election of 1876, not only in Pennsylvania, but in Indiana, Ohio, and New York.

In 1878 he was urged for the nomination of Governor by a large and influent portion of the Republican press of the State, and was the choice of the delegates from a majority of the Republican Counties of the State.

After the nomination of Governor

HAYES, the convention was very decided in their wish to nominate Mr. Grow for Lieutenant Governor, but he persistently refused to accept it if tendered. In the campaign that followed for the election of Governor no one took a more active part in securing the election of Governor HAYES. The speech at Oil City, which he made on the occasion, was admitted by every one to be a masterpiece of logical discussion of the financial question, and was the key-note of victory for the Republican party of Pennsylvania.

Into the political canvass of 1878 he entered with all his accustomed zeal and energy, and continuing without interrup-
