An unusual number of casualties from lightning are taking place this summer, many of which are fatal. The Philadelphia Recard says that it is worthy of remark that, while important discoveries have been made in electricity within the last hundred years, the phenomenon of lightning is but little better understood than it was centuries ago. The thunder which accompanies lightning has not yet been satisfactorily accounted for, nor has the snap attending the electric spark. Thunder is said to have never been heard more than fourteen miles from the flash How far away a stroke of lightning is may be determined with sufficient accuracy by allowing a mile for every five seconds between the flash and the report.
