with an authoritative contradiction. General ARTHUR too well understands what is due to himself, his position, and the country in this grave crisis to be a party to any exhibition which would dishonor his name.

A terrible nitro-glycerine explosion occurred near Sayre, City, McKean County, on Wednesday of last week. William Benton, the agent for a torpedo company was making preparations for shooting a well when through carelessness, in placing the charge, eighteen quarts of glycerine, it exploded with terrific force, killing four men and injuring several others.

The fears entertained by some that the Pennsylvania Republican Convention would indulge in the costly luxury of a quarrel were evidently entirely without foundation. The gathering, which took place at Harrisburg yesterday, seems to have been of a harmonious character throughout.

The resolutions respecting Garfield were being passed, and the platform committee was being organized. The platform committee was being organized.

The ticket nominated by the Republicans is a strong one with a clear conscience. The vindication of Mr. Bradford, by the Convention should be ratified by every Republican at the polls.

Our Democratic friends, who have all summer been ridiculing the notion that there would be any change of crew in the Republican club shop of New York this fall, have suddenly discovered that JOHN KILLEY is about to make things lively in the Democratic junk shop, than would a wild Texas steer in a glass-ware establishment.

All the world now agrees that the American farmer has no equal on the globe. He has made more improvements in soil, more advance in fruit culture and understands the forces of production better than any farmers in any other part of the world.

SENATOR CAMERON, in an interview with a Herald reporter, indignantly denies that he has any part in any conference at the house of Vice President ARTHUR. He says "the story was a bold, naked, infamous lie."

The North American is of the opinion that the Methodists will make a mistake if they abandon the itinerant preacher. He was JOHN WESLEY'S favorite invention, and it is through his agency that the wonderful growth of Methodism has been promoted.

There is no other man in America so universally despised, so universally abhorred, as CHARLES J. GIFFERT, truthfully says an exchange. He is impudently deceiving them in the Executive Head of the Government.

While there has been much suffering from forest fires in every part of the country, for some time past, never have the wires transmitted such heartrending accounts of suffering and loss as those which describe the state of things now existing over a large area of Michigan.

Unwarranted Massachusetts has very plausibly led women to attend to their housework and cooking, and generally mind their own business. The Supreme Judicial Court goes beyond refusing admission to the bar to a Miss ROBINSON, its dictum being that a woman in that State cannot be an attorney.

General Grant's hat and circumstantial denial of a premature conference with General ARTHUR on a question of great delicacy may become time catching up with the original fabrication, but as fast as it can travel it will carry conviction with it.

LEY was elected Captain of Company I. He was wounded at the battle of Gaines Hill on June 27, 1862. Having a few days before been promoted to the rank of Major, he was zealous in the performance of his duties, and during an advance upon the position was wounded and borne insensible from the field.

The question as to whether the standard bearer in the present campaign should be Senator DAVIES or Gen. BAILY, was a small one in comparison to the question of harmonizing the party upon the only sound and proper basis of harmony—a cordial and united support of President GARFIELD'S Administration.

The resolutions respecting Garfield were being passed, and the platform committee was being organized. The platform committee was being organized.

Elsewhere in this issue we publish a condensed report of the proceedings of the late Republican State Convention. It language can convey a meaning—if the professions of men (delegated to voice the sentiments of a great party, can be relied upon—then the resolutions, which make up the platform of the Republican party of this State, as set forth by the Harrisburg Convention, show plainly, unmistakably, and beyond the shadow of a doubt, that within the party organization there exists no faction but that it is willingly, earnestly and cordially giving its support to, and in hearty accord with, the administration of President GARFIELD.

The work of the County Convention of last week was well and acceptably done, it is evidenced by the fact that the ticket put in nomination by it receives the hearty and united support of the party throughout the whole county. The gentlemen whose names make up the ticket, are well and favorably known to all, or nearly all, of our citizens.

WILLIAM TERRY HORTON, the nominee for Sheriff, is a gentleman of the most pleasing and affable manners and excellent business qualifications, as is evidenced by the large circle of warm personal friends who are enthusiastically attached to him, and his success in business enterprises. He is a son of Dr. F. HORTON, of Terrytown, one of the founders of the Republican party, and has ever been, as he is now, an ardent, active, unflinching Republican.

We are free to confess that so far as the nomination of a candidate for State Treasurer is concerned, we are disappointed in the action of the Convention, as are the Republicans of the whole Northern Tier. A large majority—we may truthfully say the mass—of the Republican voters of this County and section of the State earnestly desired the nomination of Hon. W. T. DAVIES, of this place. They advocated his selection not because he was a citizen of this County, or this section, but because they knew his sterling integrity and worth as a man and as a citizen.

THE PRESIDENT.

During the past week the sea breeze at Long Branch has wrought a wonderful and, we trust, a permanent change for the better in the condition of President GARFIELD. With the single exception of Sunday, he has made progress each day on the road to recovery, and at this writing, Wednesday morning, all of the indications point to his early convalescence and ultimate complete restoration to health.

At the examination of the President at 12 M. to-day, the temperature was 98.8, pulse 100, respiration 20. At the evening dressing, at 5:30 P. M., the temperature was 98.1, pulse 100, respiration 20. The President was placed in a semi-recumbent position upon an invalid chair at 11 A. M., and remained half an hour with the feet elevated.
