In accordance with previous announcement, a very large and enthusiastic meeting of the Democracy was held in Exchange Place-it. was the largest meeting held there for several years, the square from Gay to South street being completely filled with people at one time.

A neat stand, decorated with national banner, and lights, was crected near the head of Commerce street, and the display of flags, banners and transparencies from the several wards was very fine. The meeting was called to order by Mr. J. G. W. Marriott, chairman of the committee of arrangements, and the following officers proposed and unanimously elected: President-Hon. John Nelson:

Vice Presidents-1st ward, Col. John T. Farlow: 2d. A. Adams: 3d. Henry R. Lauderman; 4th, Wm. H. Hiss; 5th. Hon. Joshua ze: 10th, Benjamin C. Presstman; 11th, Hon. Robert J. Bient : 12th, Col. John W. Watkins; Daguerreotypes of themselves or friends. 13th, Daniel J. Foley; 14th, Henry S. Garrett: 15th, James Curran: 16th, Elias Ware: 17th, John Franck; 18th, Hon. P. F. Thomas; 19th, Win. The Hon. Benjamin C. Prestman, Esq., next addressed the meeting in a fine speech, stating the objects or purposes of the assembling there, and cauterising the principles and designs of the new political party in the freest manner. He said the Democracy made no terms with the "Know Nothings"-with those who were attempting to strike down political and religious liberty.

Charles J. M. Gwinn, Esq., followed in one of his eloquent addresses, in which he advocated toleration in politics and religion in the ablest manner, and challenged the friends of the "Know Nothing" doctrines to meet him at any time and place on the hustings to discuss the merits of their creed before the people.

Col. Wm. A. Spencer, of Annapolis, closed the meeting in a speech of some length, which proved very satisfactory to his hearers. It was a defence of Democracy against all assaults. per annum, quarterly in advance.

The speakers were frequently interrupted by applause. The Leinhardt band was present and performed a number of national airs, and during the evening a beautiful display of fireworks was exhibited. The adjoining squares were kept lighted up during the night by large bon-fires of hogsheads, barrels, &c., collected by the youngsters, and everything passed off in the most agreeable manner.
