

army is not cut to pieces. We have elected our State General, but lost our Chief Judge—sorter elected our Canal Commissioner, and nearly saved Wilson. When early in the canvass we found that he had too much pride or patriotism to be run off, and we conceived the idea of hitting him, we plainly foresaw the difficulties that stood in the way of electing Wilson. Those difficulties we could not publish at the time, and they were the more difficult on that account. It did not become our columns or our Banner to openly and fearlessly proclaim for Wilson, lest we should drive the Catholic and Foreign vote to Jerico. That we did not wish; and since Wilson could not expect votes from that particular quarter of our army proper, the only hope of saving Wilson from his enemies, and dearly from his friends, was the heretofore untried stratagem of maneuvering the Catholic and Foreign fire indirectly against Col. McClean's battery, and slanderingly bringing it to bear in behalf of Wilson, by retaining it under the banner and in the command of a Veteran Xecoly. Had we been successful in this, the Catholic and Foreign vote would have been thrown away on Xecoly, the enemy would have been elected, and Wilson would have been elected. But as we have failed, let us forget the past, bury the hatchet, pick our flints and try again, in the hope that there is a better time a coming." W.

TELL THE TRUTH.—The Whig papers are charging Mr. Baker, the Superintendent of the Columbia railroad, with discharging a number of mechanics and laborers from the Parkersburg shops, because the suspected they were know-nothings. The true cause of the "proscription" of several of these men was drunkenness; and they had been several times warned of the consequences, if they persisted in the habit of getting drunk.—Reading Gazette.

PROSPECTUS—1854-'55 THE GLOBE:

The Official Paper of Congress, and Newspaper for the People.

Lord BROUGHAM, in his "Historical Sketches of Statesmen who flourished in the time of George the Third," gives some remarkable examples, showing the great loss sustained by England in the history of its Statesmen, and of its national progress, through the imperfect state of parliamentary reporting in former times. He opens the life of Lord CHATHAM thus:

"There is hardly any man in modern times, with the exception, perhaps, of Lord Somers, who fills so large a space in our history, and of whom we know so little, as Lord CHATHAM; and yet he is the person to whom every one would at one point, if desired to name the most successful statesman and most brilliant orator that this country ever produced. Of Lord Somers, indeed, we can scarcely say that he was a statesman; that he was a person of unimpeachable integrity, of great capacity and learning, a firm friend of liberty, and a cautious and safe counsellor, we are ready to acknowledge. But the authority which he possessed among his contemporaries, the influence which his sound and practical wisdom exercised over their proceedings, and the services which he was thus enabled to render in steering the Constitution safe through the most trying times, and saving us from arbitrary power without paying the price of the whole proceedings of a revolution with all the delirium, and almost in the forms, of an ordinary proceeding, having surrounded his name with a kind of immortal glory, which, in the contrast of our dark ignorance respecting all the particulars and details of his life, gives the fewest scraps of history, and the most valuable services which he was thus enabled to render in steering the Constitution safe through the most trying times, and saving us from arbitrary power without paying the price of the whole proceedings of a revolution with all the delirium, and almost in the forms, of an ordinary proceeding, having surrounded his name with a kind of immortal glory, which, in the contrast of our dark ignorance respecting all the particulars and details of his life, gives the fewest scraps of history, and the most valuable services which he was thus enabled to render in steering the Constitution safe through the most trying times, and saving us from arbitrary power without paying the price of the whole proceedings of a revolution with all the delirium,
