Come. see Min at his harvest home,
When garden, held and two
Compiles, with down a forms, to fill
His beauty shiften gaily sport
Andid the new mown har;
Or profilly did, with rightous arm,
His task as best they may.

The dos particles his mater's joy,
And gearest the innely wain;
The center's people dap their wings,
And lead their youngling train.
Perchance the hoaty grandsire's eye
The glowing scene surveys,
And breathes a blessing on his race,
Or gattes his evening praise.

The Harvest liver is their friend—
The Maker of the soil;
The sarth, their mother, gives them bread,
And cheers their patient toll.
Come, join them round their wintry hearth,
Their heartfelt pleasure see,
And you can better judge how blest
The farmer's life may be.

From the Farm Journal. Barn Building.

in Remsylvania there is no complete farm without a harn, and the plan of construction is indispensable necessity. Theimnense amount which it bears to the value of the land itself, is very satisfactory evidence of its practical value. Notwithstanding the impression that exists in other States on this subject; in my fudgment, there can be no good and profitable farming without it. The subject has, therefore. sufficient importance to warming the considerationamiether this plan, so uniform, has not been improved upon.

een improved upon. 2019 M. 2019 M. There can be no doubt of the great superiority of the two storied bank-barn. That plan of structure which will most conveniently economise time and labor will best promote the farmer's there's Having one of each kind, experience has shown me the great superiority of that which I recommend. The difference between them cannot be better expressed than by saying that the improved barn has two sets of floors, one above the other ; and as you drive into the upper one, it, of course, requires a into the upper one, it, of course, requires a corresponding height of natural bank—not so high, however, as may not be had, on most farms of rolling land. The upper floors have an legition of seven feet above the lower. The advantage of such a barn is, first, its great category. If has a height and depth of twenty-legit without any high pitching, for your lead is about the middle of it and you pitch whether had in advantage of the hortom of the both down and up down to the bottom of the mow which is on a level with the lower floor, and up to the height of an oldinary barn. But the particular value of this is, the immense Compression which results from a high and deep mow the grain or hay is pressed into a space which is almost incredible to any one who has not experienced it. After filling the finow meatly full by ou are led to wonder at its capacity to receive more. I need only add, that all other parts of the barn are improved in their convenience and space by this simple alteration in principle; that the size of your barn is made to consist in its height instead of its length and breadth, whereby you save, in point of expense, the extensive roofing, and add nothing to your height of wall, which you do not take from its length and breadth; and ing away; and the saving of labor, in requiring four; would be required in one of greater space. economy. To thresh grain with a machine requires four; five or six hands—the number depending upon the convenience of putting away the straw. It is easy to perceive the difference in putting away straw in mows and overshots seven feet below the threshing floor, and in those on a level with it. And soon after you begin to get out your grain this state of the two hands less are required. " The capacity of the common bank-barn will allow you to thresh from one hundred to one hundred and fifty bushels at a time, and then you must stop; discharge your hands; and occury the next day or two in cleaning up and getting your grain out of the way, whereas in the improved baru the threshed grain passes to the lower floor, is not in your way, and you thresh on until you are done. And in a barn thus constructed more than double the quantity can be threshed in a day. In the common barn, with the machine I use, it requires about twenty-two minutes to run through ten dozen, and twenty seven minutes to cave it up; in the improved one all the time of caving up, being more than one-half, is saved. The same filed by the Secretary of the Board of Direcmachine, which will thresh one hundred bushels a day in the former, with one hand less will thresh two hundred bushels in the latter. One Diarrict."

of the lower floors is used for cleaning your grain, and the other for garners; and both constantly useful for many other purposes. I commend to farmers the examination of this improvement before they build a barn. Carlisle, Nov. 13, 1854.

Hens Esting their Eggs. Pen your fowls up for fattening as soon as eating their eggs. There is no cure for them. We speak from experience, says the editor of the Boston and South Guardian. Two years Bgo our entire ornithological establishment, Baltimore, the preference to hand will be given consisting of a dozen Dorkings, was condemned in like manner. We fear that we had taught the fowls habits of cannibalism by giving them the shells of their own eggs to eat. We tried mild curative measures first. We gave them boiled eggs, scalding hot; and after a first taste the coled their bills in the gravel, turned the egg, for and over a few times with their feet, and then when it was ready for eating, fought and scratched over the dainty morsel, and swallowed it before our eyes. The cockerel. No effort spared who, as a father of a family, ought to have $1.00 per day. known better and set a good example, strutted about as if he highly approved the transaction. and occasionally selected a dainty morsel of the yolk for himself, thus becoming worse than an accomplice in the infanticide.—After this we adopted another expedient. We gowin egg blown, and filled the shell with a composition of mustard, vinegar, aloes, salts and other horrible associations. The fowls got one good dose and ran up and down the walk chattering and shaking their heads with an expression of intense disgust, which was very ludicrous to witness. Yadkin go. North Carolina, dated Nov. 1st, 1858. To PROFESSOR FOLLOWAY: Sir, -ILIS not my wish to become notorious, neither is this letter written for the mere sake of writing, but to say, that your Ointment cured me of one of the most dreadful cutaneous diseases that ffesh show Goods. His new stock embraces a very which cannot be beat. His stock consists of most easy, but as durable a Truss as any other, is heir to, and which was considered by all who knew me, to be entirely beyond the reach of medicine. For nine years I was afflicted with one of the most painful and troublesome sore legs that ever fell to the lot of man: and after trying every medicine I had ever heard of, I resigned to despair all hope of being cured; but a friend brought me a couple of large pots of your Ointment, which caused the sures on my legs to heal, and I entirely regained my health, to my agreeable surprise and delight, and to the astonishment of my friends. J. W. LANGLEY. (Signed) AN EXTRAORDINARY CURE OF A BAD BREAST, WHEN NEARLY AT
