For the Republican Compiler. To the Editor of the Star.

DEAR SIR: -Since my last communication of our good old Commonwealth, to some office you have no reason to complain of the course the appendage that properly belongs to your tice of forcing Catholic children to read in school Present standing and position among the for- a book that they would not be allowed to read tunate ones of the day. And since my last, too, you have again touched on, at the appa- ural in this? Have not Protestants the same rent expense of a good deal of "midnight oil." the old subject of our former difficulties and dissensions. I cannot now say that I am used as a class book in the public schools of surprised to see this, for it would seem of such Gettysburg, and that your children should be is your present platform composed. Before the last Autumna! election you seemed to all intents and purposes "to be and remain" a conservative Whig. At least you professed About the expediency of the Public School systo be one; and even retained the names of your "old line regulars" within the ample folds of even among Protestants. Although the law | and your Spangled Banner up to the very day of has done all that can be done to enforce and them, together with Mr. Wilson, your dernier districts in the Commonwealth that have not resort, known to be defeated, than either fortu- yet "taken it up." while in many others the nately or unfortunately, you conceived it to be Directors were compelled through the courts your duty to numask yourself, by publicly to put the schools into operation. All this declaring that it became evident early in the was confined to Protestants, so far as I am adcapvass that Mr. Neely could not be elected, vised. Then why this tirade of abuse on a few and consequently that the great mass of the Catholics, who may have been legally, quietly Whig votes went over to Mr. Wilson, the Know Nothing candidate. Thus it would seem that which even many Protestants think arbiwhen the great mass of the Whig votes went trary and oppressive? over, you also gave up the ship, abandoned If you do not believe the Catholics to be the Whig party, and anchored yourself and sincere when they solemnly affirm that they your accupation on the Know Nothing platform. Therefore, I am not now surprised to find you on the part of any foreign sovereignty or Potendealing more freely and frequently in the terms tate, not even excepting the Pope of Rome, to and technicalities that form the various parts illegally interfere with the temporal matters of the Know Nothing vocabulary of tactics. of this Republic, be patient enough to tarry If in your present dignified and enviable posi- until such declarations shall have been put to tion I were permitted to give you a hint of ad- the practical test; and if you find them disrevice, I would admonish you by all means to garded and unredeemed, then will be the time be "aisy," and not to give yourself any unnecessary anxiety or apprehension about the conduct of others not under your charge, who are in the habit of exercising the right to speak a body, on all occasions, when their services and act for themselves on some occasions, without considering themselves answerable at your "judgment bar" for what they may do or say. You know you are already "beyond the woods." You are out of harm's way -either above or below your enemies-and in the peaceable and undisputed possession of the sweets and honors of office—you can wear them as the laurels of merit, the badges of victory. This, in the honorable view of the case, is all sufficient for you, as well as more than enough to humble the minds and the hearts of their redeeming virtues. The patience-that your imaginary enemies. To this add the fact of the prosperous state of your finances, as exhibited a few weeks ago through the columns of your luminous journal, when you elegantly and eloquently depicted the happy futurity that lay before you, in the assurance that your new position would enable you to obtain five new subscribers for every old one that would drop off, in consequence of the change that had lately come over the spirit of your dreams. To these profits, add the before mentioned honors, and if you are not the most happily situated person extant,—the most fortunate man this side of the Blue Mountains, and the most prosperous Editor within the circle of my acquaintance. I know nothing of human nature, nothing of worldly honors, and nothing of earthly pleasures and distinctions.

But it seems genius, like murder, will out. It cannot be pent up or smothered. It must shine, especially when accompanied by spunk and energy and industry. In these I discover the cause and the source of your last and laborious efforts, despite of the luxury and ease that honors and wealth have placed at your ry, the age of progress and improvement, of telegraphs and steam; and of course those to whom much has been given, must expect that much blowing off will be required at their hands. Under these cicrumstances you therefore cannot be expected to lie dormant. -especially when both genius and energy and gratitude loudly call upon their recipients to be up and adoing while there is yet work to be done. In obedience to the mandates of these, it would follow that you must do and say something, and since you have deserted, if not betrayed your old party and friends, you are necessitated either to beat an honorable and humble retreat, by rendering unto your late party indemnity for the past and security for the inture, or continue to do the work of the "new organization," under whose banners you seem to have enlisted about the time that it became evident that Mr. Neely could not be elected -about the time that you descried your old and tried frien 1, when the frowns of adversity seemed to be gathering upon his brow. Hence in order to make a kind of a debut in your new position, and in order to distract your old friends from the inconsistency of your political course, you are now evidently endeavoring to impress the public with the idea that the "preconcerted movement on the part of the Catholics, first to banish the Bible from our public schools-then against the school system itself-and finally to withdraw the title to and control of all church property from the laity and vest it exclusively in Bishops holding appointments from and dependent on their spir itual head," was well calculated to fill the minds of the honest masses of both parties with fearful apprehensions concerning the prosperity, if not the very perpetuity of our Institutions. In the face of this, and "more of the same sort," you have the hardihood to declare that you have "not been advised that Know Nothingism contemplated interfering with religious rights or privileges!" Indeed? None so blind as those that do not wish to see! Know Nothingism does not contemplate interfering with the religious rights and privileges of Catholics ?--it only wants to prescribe the sort of Bible they must use, and the time and place they are to use it-it only wants to regulate the title of their own property, and vest it in persons not elected by the church discipline -and it only wants to cut them off from their spiritual head, from the successor of Saint Peter. This you are charitable enough to consider as not interfering with the religious rights and privileges of Catholics. O, no. I suppose you look upon this as a mere political interference. I pity the ignorance of the man that you and your Know Nothing dictators could gull into this belief. You certainly know better yourself, and if you would divest yourself for one moment of the film of bigotry that encompasses your eyes, you would undoubtedly recall the many anti-republican and uncharitable expressions that you have put forth since you have abandoned the political faith of your forefathers. Indeed, I firmly believe that the Bishops of the Catholic Church would be glad if you and the Know Nothings could devise some plan that would effectually relieve them from the trouble and responsibility that necessarily attaches to the holding in trust the titles of Church property. They have tried the Trustee system in vain, as it deprived them of the power of preventing, while their office entailed on them the frequent and onerous duties of settling the difficulties which such system was fraught with. Trustees are Corporations, and every one knows what Corporations will do, while no one can attach any blame to any one person. Not so with the Bishop. If he betrays his trust, he alone is responsible.

and his case can easily be reached and reme-being required either to lay down a considerable quantity of "the needful." or submit to the dictates of those who are commanded to hear to you, I was pleased to hear that you had the church, when disputes arise among them. been promoted by the worthy Chief Executive In the matter of the Bible in the public schools, the title of which, I am almost ashamed to that Catholics have pursued. They do confess. I have forgotten; which must be a not complain that Protestants use the Bible in sufficient apology for not addressing you with the schools. But they are opposed to the pracat home. Is there anything wrong, or unnatregard for their religion and their offspring? Would you consent to have the Catholic Bible compelled to read it? Certainly not. Then why blame Catholics for doing the same that you would do under similar circumstances? tera there are different and conflicting opinions their sacrifice. Yet no sooner were some of carry out its provisions, yet there are some would resist even unto the death any attempt to speak "openly, fearlessly and firmly" against the temporal power of the Pope, and the disloyalty of the Catholic subjects. Catholics as were required, from the discovery of this country down to the present day, have proved themselves to be as good citizens and soldiers as any other class of christians in the land, and, have done as much for the glory and honor and profit of the country, according to their number, as any other sect.

But, like others, they are fallible, and sometimes subject themselves to the pains and penalties of the evil doers. But if they have their failings, you must also admit that they have they have exhibited, and in which they have endured the many insults that have been heaped upon their persons, their property and their religion, at the hands of the Know Nothings, and the spirits that gave them birth, from the burning of the Charlestown Convent, through the razing to the ground of the churches of Philadelphia, the tarring and feathering of the Priest of Ellsworth, the riddling and almost demolishing of the church at Newark, and the shooting of an innocent man, to the Inquisitorial visiting and examining of the Catholic school of Roxbury, by the present Legislature of the State of old Massachusettsyes, I say, the patience and the forbearance that they have exhibited on these and similar soul-trying occasions is truly without a parallel in the history of modern times-with nothing, perhaps, to surpass it in the profane history of the whole world!

The Democratic party, true to its antecedents and its instincts, could not but detect and denounce the perpetrators of these outrages, in terms the most decided and unequivocal, even at the risk of losing many of its promembers; and as th alty to the Constitution and the rights of man, I blush to say, that it seems to have brought upon itself a temporary defeat. Yet it continues to battle in the good cause it so early espoused, with the same ardor and courage that it manifested in the days of its triumph and

Your attacks upon it are very similar to those that you urge against the Catholic church. They are similarly futile and absurd. You ridicule the Democratic party when heretofore democratic districts elect Know Nothing candidates, by a combination of the Whigs and the disloyal and disaffected democrats. You seem to forget that the Democratic parly can not help this, any more than the Catholic church can help some of those who are unworthy to be called Catholics, from insulting American processions, or from shooting down American citizens. The Democratic party does all it can to keep its members from committing treason to its principles -- and the Catholic church spares no labors or pains to preserve its adherents from trampling upon the commands and requirements of the Gospel. If, on some occasions, both have been-unsuccessful in their laudable efforts, you have no more moral right to impugn the motives of the one, than you have to burn the edifices and defile the sanctuaries of the other. Hoping that your views may soon take a more exalted and liberal turn, and that both of us may improve in morals and in virtue, permit me to subscribe myself, as ever, your well-wisher, and very humble servant. April 17, 1855.
