Hard Knocks.

One reason, says the Carlisle Volunteer. why the Know-Nothing members of the Leg. casy and requires but little exertion to keep islature are in favor of removing the seat of the ground mellow and free from grass or noxgovernment to Philadelphia, is because the landlords of Harrisburg charge too much for low, the roots of the grass are exposed to the boarding, as the members think.—They don't surface, and consequently soon begin to grow consider-mean creatures that they are-that provisions are enormously high, and that the landlords cannot afford to board them at the same rates' they formerly did. The Harrisburg Item, a Native or Know-Nothing paper, but possessing more independence than most of the journals of that miserable faction, pitches into the members of the Assembly in this lan-

This is a true and very moderate picture of a "Model Legislature." No wonder our landlords become petulent. Nor is this all; respectable women are frequently insulted in the streets, by members and hangers on around the Legislature, until it has become necessary for them to remain within doors after dusk. How many tales of woe might be told of blighted hopes—of ruined reputations -which follow in the wake of each session, but it is not our purpose to harrow the feelings of many a broken spirit, but to repel the slanders against our citizens. We sincerely hope the Sente will pass the bill. Our community would get rid of a moral pestilence-a canker-a leprosy, which taints and pollutes the atmosphere.

It must be admitted, we think, that the House of Representatives now in session at Harrisburg, is a little the most unique and extraordinary legislative body that ever met in Pennsylvania. Its agility in passing New County and Bank bills, was astonishing, but the people have got somewhat used to its performances in that line. The crisp and curling blades of the corn plant, growing in the shallow-plowed field in a dry season, bear a marked contrast to the broad, healthful and vigorous appearance of those in the neighboring field of deep cul-ture: the one is suffering for the want of moisture, while the other is abundantly supplied by by the soil, and now exuding to the surface by the process of evaporation. Tragedy at New Haven. Conn.

The telegraph has already furnished a brief Mr. Entron: As it is about the time that account of the shooting of Richard Wight, on Saturday afternoon, at New Haven, Conn., by Willard Clark, a merchant. The New Haven Courier has full details of the tragedy. It states that Clark called at the house of Charles Beers,

He shortly after proceeded to the house of its future growth and mature the grain. A en, and found there Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wight, the son-in-law and daughter of Mr. pose with doubtful advantage But a compo- noyed by the presence of Clark, left the kitch-

The ball to glory in ignorance, and to found our claims roost; thereby preventing the excrement from entered the head of Mr. W. directly back of being impaired by the weather, and moreover the right ear, and, passing through the brain, illustrious missionary belonged to the great adding greatly to its accumulation. From my lodged in the cranium, at the back side of the order of know somethings-to that class of it, stock of fowls, we get annually a sufficient por- head. He fell upon the floor, giving a few tertion of manure to form a compost with the ad- rible groaus, which were distinctly heard by what he knew to others, instead of endeavoring and a few cart loads of the shovelings of the assist. Clark looked upon the scene of blood horse stable, for ten acres of corn. About one for a moment, and then quietly walked out of

The slarm being quickly spread, officer Dunning was dispatched in search of the murderer. -In the meantime. Clark returned to the house of Mr. Beers, where he deliberately returned tional. But we have nothing, eventually, to caustic properties of the compost, and also the pistol to Mrs. Beers. Mrs. Beers asked forms a nucleus for the advancing growth of him it he had killed the cat, to which he replied: "Yes, I have killed a two-legged out!" A daughter of Mrs. B. very innocently said-You don't mean, Mr. Clark, that you have killed a man, do you?" Clark laughed immoderately, and replied: "You'll hear more

The officer then proceeded to the store of Mr. Clark, where he found him quietly engaged in his usual occupation. He asked Clark what be had been doing, to which he replied "I he worships that God, who is equally the God ber who strenuously advocate shallow plowing don't know." He then told him that he must of the Catholic and of the Protestant-who to no greater depth than three inches, and have go along with him to jail, to which Clark reguided and protected our fathers in the days of adhered to this practice, handed down from | plied, "Well, I suppose I must." Clark took a sum of money from his pocket, and coolly handed it to his partner, and gave him directions concerning the disposition he must make of it, and gave orders in regard to the payment of some debts, and then told officer Dunning he was ready to go - He was then conveyed to jail

In reference to the murder, he sarcastically replied that he did not know why he did it. He said he borrowed a pistol to kill a cat. On being asked if he had the murder of Mr. Wight in view when he borrowed the pistol, he stammered for a moment, and then said that he afterwards thought he could make use of it All of which will be sold low, for Cash, or for that purpose. He said that "strange thoughts had occupied his mind for several months past."

The whole cause of this terrible tragedy seems to be the jealousy Clark entertained for Mr. Wight, who had married Miss Bogart against the wishes of Clark. For several years past Clark had-sought the hand of Miss Bogart in marriage, and had been repulsed by her, and finally she dismissed him about a vear since.

Miss Bogart formed the acquaintance of Mr. Wight, to whom she became attached, and on the 12th day of last March they were united in marriage. At the time she married Mr. Wight the lady was but 17 years of age. The family are highly respectable, and the sad news created a great excitement in this city. Wight was still living. The general opinion is that the ball is still lodged in the brain. P. S.-Mr. Wight died on Monday.

"During the past forty-eight hours Mr. B. has been in a state of great excitement. He became quite unconscious on Sunday, and made his way to the house of Cinderella Marshal, in Leonard street, where he was cared for. At 8 o'clock in the evening he was worse -indeed crazy at intervals. A messenger was despatched by the landlady for a doctor, but before his arrival Mr. Bailee attempted to destroy himself by swallowing six ounces of laudanum from a bottle which he carried in his coat pocket. The attendance of Dr. Clark, Dr. Bradshaw, and Dr. Bacon was forthwith procured. The stomach pump was used freely, and every effort was made to arouse him -not unsuccessfully. Last evening Mr. B. was lying very weak, but the physicians were of the opinion that he would survive."
