America's Mission.

On Thanksgiving Day, the Rev. CHARLES WADSWORTH, of the Arch street Presbyterian Church, in Philadelphia, delivered a Sermon that has been published in a neat pamphlet the Pennsylvanian, expressed with fearless strengthen the judgment of every true patriot. How elevating, are such sentiments, and what encouragement do they give to the real lovers of the whole human family ! No mean prejudices limit the scope of the Rev. gentleman's philanthrophy-no narrow bigotry blurs the fair face of his Christian creed. He sees man gree of human perfection, and strives, with dens extended, not a vestige is to be seen. generous ardor, to lift him to that ennobling mankind for their mutual worldly benefit.-What inspiring hopes animate our bosoms, when the clarion "voice of truth reaches our hearts, from a source so pure, from a mind so noble! How meanly impotent appear the attempts of those Ministers, who use their pulpits mainly for the purpose of engendering strife, and stirring up a man's too willing natural hatred of his fellow ! Mr. W. said :

Now, this leads me to remark, Thirdly, That the truth under review will appear still more apparent, if you earefully observe-

How the genius of American Institutions, and the peculiarities of American character, eminently qualify and equip us for this great work of man's social and civil regeneration.

The whole history of the rise and progress of our national character, cannot have failed to impress this thought strongly upon every philosophic mind. Not only in the original settlement of this country was there a sifting of all Christendom for the noblest specimens of manhood to go forth as colonists : but in all our subsequent progress has there been gathered into it every variety of national character, so that there is scarcely a solitary people in the whole earth which finds not its representative incorporated in our social system. The iron Saxon, the volatile Frenchman, the grave Spaniard, the reflective German, the effervescing Italian, the warm-hearted Irishman ; aye, and the member of the wildest clan and the extremest caste of earth's remotest continents, all speak of America as the refuge of their brethren; and as the celebrated Corinthian brass was only a rare amalgam of all other metals, so the American character holds in combination, all the available peculiarities of every people under heaven. While the original Anglo-Saxon is the controlling element of the mass, yet, so essentially have the highest qualities of other races modified the composite ; and so warmly has the whole been fused and fired by the glorious freedom of American life; that our national character is, to-day, a new and nobler style in the development of manhood. And in this anomalous fact, you cannot fail to perceive how God has furnished us with the desiderata for one great mission to the nations, as well in the hold we thus have on the sympathies and affections of all people, as in those elements of ardor, and energy, and hope, which must render the Anglo-American the noblest representative of man. Add to this, then, the mighty resources of influence and strength which our nation embosoms-the mighty and magnificent thing America is now on the earth-and the more mighty and magnificent thing she is to be presently, when, if true to herself and to her great mission, shall shall stretch from ocean to ocean. athwart this broad continent ; a nation of freemen; self-governed -governed by simple law, without a police or a soldiery -a nation of five hundred millions of people, covering the sea with their fleets, and the land with their great cities-first in arts and learning, and every great product of genius -and thus, even Po-LITICALLY, a power on the earth, before which the menial war-power of kings were as the than all, RELIGIOUSLY, God's great almoner of of the exile-the hope of the lost. Oh ! I sav. in view of what my country now is, and what she seems destined to be, in the march of God's providence, who can fail to recognize God's great purpose in raising her up as the one mighty instrument for the civil and religious regeneration of the world. Nor have we any more to fear-From the influx of foreign element into our body pulitic, in the character and habits of the mingled races of the old world. Though foreign emigration more starm a thoughtful man, for the safety of our free institutions, than do the thousand spring fired the snuff up his nose ! rivers, that pour their varied elements into the sea, alarm a philosopher for the purity of the mighty and assimilating ocean. This nation is already, in all its grand elements of character, permanently Anglo-American ; and a wise man would just as sincerely fear to dine on a salmon, lest he, himself, should become a great fish ; or to break his fast on a bird, lest he should sprout with feathers and wings ; as have a fear lest this American nationality be essentionally or injuriously modified by any foreign elements that may flow into it. HON., JAMES BUCHANAN.-The New York Express learns that our Minister in London was not at the Lord Mayor's banquet at Guildhall, on the day of inauguration, and understands from unquestioned authority he was specially waited upon, and urged to attend, | governess. under the belief it would have a beneficial effect on the public mind. On that occasion Her Majesty's Ministers, the Foreign Ambassadors, and a number of distinguished persons were present. The American Minister, unless prevented by physical circumstances, is rarely absent on this politico-festive gathering, and Mr. Buchanan's steadily refusing to listen to any entreatles, shows great caution on his part in the present delicate attitude of our diplomatic relations with Great Britain.

Disastrous Intelligence from Sicily. The following letter was received by a mercantile house in Boston, by steamship America : tral Committee, held November 1st. 1855, at Whole villages have been entirely destroyed and swept into Christian fervor, fill the soul with delight, and the sea, with the loss of many lives-the number not yet known. Indeed, the scene about Messina for twenty miles or more, is dreadful and lamentable, and no doubt you will have the particulars in the papers of these distressing events.

Owing to the disaster to our fruit gardens, it is impossible now to say to what price lemon essence will get up, and I think if your American friends should have any stock of last year's produce on hand they would do well to hold it, and not sell for the present."

Singular Incident.

Yesterday morning, about half-past 8 o'clock, Mr. Jeremiah Jacoby was walking on the track about half a mile below this place, when the Pottsville train of cars approaching, he suddenly changed over to the other track at the very minute when the Philadelphia Express train passed by, and he was caught between the cars and instantly killed. He was carried to his home, a short distance from the suot where the accident happened, and one of his neighbors, Mr. Philip D. Miller, who, on his way to town stopped in and assisted in arranging the corse, then proceeded to town and gave an account of the sad occurrence, charging the unfortunate victim with too much carelessness, and felt assured that no such accident should ever befall him, as he always exercised too much precaution. Mr. Miller, after having finished his business in town, proceeded homewards with his h and wagon, and when arriving at the hous the unfortunate Jacoby, a number of individuals, who were collected together on account of the accident, beckoned and hallooed to him not to cross the railroad track ; but he moved forward and gained the other side, when his horse backed the wagon on the track, and he was caught by the cow-catcher, and so much mutilated that he died shortly after. This individual, who blamed his friend for negligence. and was so sure of his own safety. met his end in the same manner a few hours after the first. almost at the threshold of his friend. - Democratic Sentinel, Connersville, Pa., Dec. 5.

•PETER PARLEY .-- The Boston Courier. in a notice of Mr. Kettell, late editor of that paper, whose death has been announced, says that "many of those historical compendiums which came out under the name of Peter Parley were in fact the work of Mr. Kettell. He is the veritable Peter Parley."

ROMANCE AND THE PULPIT. -- We noticed the fact a day or two since that a Presbyterian minister resigned his charge in Philadelphia, because the rules of his church would not allow him to marry a lady, in Virginia, who had been divorced. The reverend gentleman alluded to came to Virginia, where the lady lives, to claim the boon for which he had resigned his occupation and salary, but the lady, on hearing of his resignation, declined marriage, giving as her reason the desire not to separate church and pastor.-Richmond Dis. THE DEVIL ELECTED. - A good thing occurred, savs the Indiana Sentinel, on a down train from Lafayette recently. We give it as we heard it :

There was one of those long-faced, white neckkerchiefed, politico-religious fanatics on board, who was evidently uneasy lest the passengers should not notice him, and he therefore kept up a loud and continuous strain of abuse and denunciation of "Dough-faces," and at length, when the cars were stopped at one of the stations,-turning-to an ex-candidate for Congress, he said, in an excited and angry tone : "I do believe if the Devil was brought out against Douglas for President, that he would beat him." An 'old-liner,' sitting by, replied that "he was tirmly of the same opinion, for he (the Devil) would get the vote of the whole fusion party.'

It is needless to say that the cars shook with the roars of laughter that followed this -happy sally of wit. The devout preacher left ; the cars in search of a late copy of the Tribune.
