

Judge Campbell, Postmaster General.

The Erie Observer says: Perhaps no man connected with the Government occupies such a laborious position, or one which requires so much industry, tact and knowledge of details, as the Post Master General. To him and his subordinates are committed the interests of more people—personal and pecuniary—than to all the other departments combined; and with a country so extensive as this, a population so varied, it would be almost miraculous if there were not complaints, some just, but more unjust, against the mail service of the country. Hence no man can fill the position of Postmaster General without abuse; and Judge CAMPBELL has had his share of it, though deserving less, we candidly believe, than any of his illustrious predecessors since the days of AMOS KENDALL. We are pleased, therefore, when we see this truth acknowledged, and especially when, as in the following, it is acknowledged by a political opponent.—The following is from the Washington Correspondence of the Philadelphia North American, a paper that has consistently opposed the men and measures of the Democracy: "It is due to Judge Campbell to say, that in my range of observation and opportunity here, now dating back some years, no man has administered the vast, difficult and vexatious machinery of the Post Office Department with a more earnest desire to serve the best interests of the country, with a more comprehensive grasp of its necessities and obligations, with more good will from the immense multitude of subordinates scattered over more than three millions of square miles of territory, or with more admitted practical success. The office is one wholly thankless in itself, for the compensation of nominal honor is by no means corresponding to the sacrifices incurred by one who, like Judge Campbell, abandons a lucrative profession, and tasks his mind and body by an unflagging devotion to every public and personal duty. Every omission and error of every one of five and twenty thousand Postmasters, to say nothing of the numberless coaches by railroads, steamboats and stage coaches, which transport the mails, is visited upon him, just as if he were ubiquitous and all-powerful. There are some political distinctions which do not pay for the wear and tear which they necessitate, and this is the most conspicuous example among them. No journeyman wood-sawyer can afford to exchange places with a Postmaster General; and even a drudge like myself, might well hesitate about accepting a dignity so cushioned with thorns."

The editor of the Ripler (Miss.) Advertiser makes out a strong case for the consideration of such of the old-line Whigs as have refused all connexion with the Know Nothings. He says: "If, as the leaders of the Know Nothing party now assert, and we believe truly, the issues between Whigs and Democrats no longer exist; if they have passed away, and there is now no matter of dispute between them, why may they not unite and act together as brethren? Can any one tell? If one of our churches were to lay aside its organization, and cease to exist as a body, surely the members of the dissolved church would have a right to worship in any neighboring church they might prefer, or even to become members of it. Yet how the order persecutes a Whig who prefers Democracy to it."

The Real Issues.—Whatever issues have existed in former Presidential contests in this country, the following statement of the present position of parties, by the New Haven Register, is as correct as it is clear and concise: "There are practically but two parties in the present contest—the Democratic, which is guided by the obligations of the Constitution—which seeks to render 'equal and exact justice to all men'—which protects every man in the enjoyment of his religious opinions—which leaves to each State the arrangement of its own domestic affairs—which endeavors to cement the bonds of the Union, by a fraternal feeling among the several States—and which would make our country an asylum for the oppressed of all nations. The opponents of the Democratic party are of all creeds and colors—and have two well defined characteristics; one of which is the persecution of men for their religious belief—(a hideous spirit)—and the other, a determination to divide the people of other sections of the country on the subject of slavery, or break up the Union. They are now urging the people on to civil war in Kansas—throwing obstacles in the way of carrying out the laws of Congress—denouncing the Constitution as in the way of their infernal schemes—and doing their best to destroy all fraternal harmony among the people of the different States. It will not take a patriotic voter long to determine which party he ought to support."

Among the resolutions adopted at a Democratic Convention recently held in Owen county, Indiana, was the following: "Resolved, That that party which proclaims, through its authorized leaders, 'Sharpe's rifles as a moral agent superior to the Bible,' 'Our constitution as a covenant with death and a league with hell,' and 'Let the Union slide,' is but beginning the work which they would accomplish had they the power—a dissolution of the Union."

It is so!—In the grave and respectable columns of our grave and respectable contemporary, the Charleston Courier, we find a paragraph stating that a woman recently obtained a divorce from her husband because he had a bald head, which he concealed by a wig during the period of urging his matrimonial suit and the consummation of the bargain. There was no harm in having the wig on, but there was in concealing the fact that it was a wig, and hence the divorce was properly applied for and justly granted. It may be said that she wigged out of marriage on a bald assumption.—We have some doubts of the correctness of the law above laid down.—Wilmington Journal.

We see there is a new song by Balfe, called The First Kiss. Is there not some degree of danger in such a title? For instance, what would a shopman think, and how would he behave, if a pretty young lady went up to him, and smilingly said, "If you please, sir, I want you to give me The First Kiss?"

The Altar and the Tomb.—A marriage took place a short time since, in New Orleans, La., at 7 o'clock in the evening, but the bride was taken suddenly ill, and died at 9 o'clock, so that the same paper that chronicled her nuptials also published her decease.

Perennial Massacre!

A Warning and a Recommendation.—The mortality among children born in American cities, bears an immeasurably higher ratio to the whole mortality than in any of the cities, even the most unhealthy, in the Eastern Hemisphere. The deaths resulting from improper medical treatment, and lack of prompt attention and care, are higher among the adult population in this country, than in any other country, savage or civilized. Throughout these United States of America (God bless them!) there is not one household in a hundred that has not its graves.

People may well begin to take this solemn fact to heart, and ask, is this always to be? We justly pride ourselves on our superior intelligence, but is it not humiliating to us to be obliged to acknowledge that through our own oversight and carelessness, life has become shorter and more uncertain among us than with any other people? Let us pause a moment to inquire how this awful mortality is produced.

The women of this country are proverbial for the implicit reliance which they place on professional skill in all the diseases and ailments to which they are subject. For reasons which we do not purpose here, to discuss, the inevitable consequence is, that women are always ill, or nearly so, and their children, in whom the effects of that illness are perpetuated, are constitutionally affected, so that for them prolonged life, in a majority of cases, is a sheer impossibility, short of a miracle.—Again, the extremes of temperature in this country are so far apart, and variations occur so suddenly, that without some means of maintaining the system in a well-balanced condition, that is, without some means of preserving the blood pure, and keeping it at an equal degree of heat, standing good health is utterly beyond attainment.

Then comes the momentous question, where shall we obtain that grand "desideratum" which is to avert illness, or to remove it in all these cases? Innumerable nostrums have been proposed, and the more high-sounding their pretensions, the more complete has been their failure. The only universal remedies for disease that have stood the test of time, that have served alike the lofty and the lowly; that have elicited the unqualified encomiums of the highest medical talent; that have received the approval and patronage of Royalty, even; that have laid three Continents under obligation; that have never yet been pronounced inefficacious by those who used them; that have never yet failed to benefit the sufferer; are Holloway's Pills and Ointment. This is no high-flown and exaggerated eulogy; it is a plain statement of fact. We have no interest in puffing Professor Holloway or his medicines. They need no such equivocal recommendation as that. We have an interest in the welfare of humanity and so has he. He is a cosmopolitan (a citizen of the world) his sympathies are confined to no clime or race. Every man is his neighbor, and therefore he feels bound to do good to him as far as he can. And how can he render him better service than by bestowing on him the greatest of all blessings—HEALTH. His medicines have already met with a most enviable appreciation in this country. But they cannot be too widely diffused. Every man and woman is liable to sickness; therefore every man and woman should have these Pills for complaints of the system, and this Ointment for local affections, such as wounds and sores.—Every family should be furnished with both. How could better provision be made for the year just begun than to provide against the misfortunes of ill health and the thousand and one other evils that follow in its train.—N. Y. Sunday Mercury.

Just so.—The Sandy Hill (N. Y.) Herald, commenting on the call for a convention by the Gerrit Smith Abolitionists, very truthfully remarks: "But the fact is, and Gerrit knows it, the Black Republicans don't want to kill slavery at all. As well kill the goose that lays the golden egg. Do you think the old Indian would shoot the old she wolf, so long as wolf scalps brought a premium at the agency? No more do these Black Republicans want slavery killed, for then there would be no more scalps for them."

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS, the most effectual remedy for Old Wounds and Ulcers.—The wonderful cures daily effected by these celebrated remedies have established them with the citizens of the Union, as two of the finest preparations ever made known, and it is an undoubted fact, that they will heal and cure old wounds and ulcers of twenty years standing, even after every other treatment has been resorted to ineffectually. All cutaneous eruptions readily yield to their mighty power; and for the cure of Asthma, they are invaluable.

Resolved, That that party which proclaims, through its authorized leaders, 'Sharpe's rifles as a moral agent superior to the Bible,' 'Our constitution as a covenant with death and a league with hell,' and 'Let the Union slide,' is but beginning the work which they would accomplish had they the power—a dissolution of the Union."

Frightful Scene at a Funeral.

At Tecumseh, Michigan, on Thursday week, as a funeral procession was following the remains of a Mr. Pomeroy to the Episcopal church, the horses drawing the hearse, and those drawing the coach in which were the relatives of the deceased, took fright and ran away. The horses with the hearse were caught, but those attached to the carriage ran against a bank and tipped over the vehicle, dangerously injuring the occupants, among whom was the widow of the deceased.

A Curious Reason for Committing Suicide.—Mr. Elias Workman, living in Holmes county, Ohio, committed suicide on Sunday morning week by hanging himself with a bridle. It is said he had lately been elected assessor of the township, and had given a heavy bond. Fearing he was not fit for the office, and to avoid the mortification of being laughed at, he rose in the morning at four o'clock and went to the barn and hanged himself.

Mr. Dallas' Dress.—The London Court Journal says the new American Minister, Mr. Dallas, follows the precedent of Mr. Buchanan—and which was exacted by President Pierce—of wearing ordinary evening dress while attending the Queen's court.
