

The Farm.

Controlling the Sex of Bees.

It has long been believed that the sex of bees can be controlled by changing the position of the comb. Thus the usual position of the drone cells, and also of the worker cells, is horizontal; but if, after the eggs for the workers-which are neutral in sex-have been deposited, the calls be artificially changed from the horizontal to a vertical position, females or queens will be produced. It is now claimed as a discovery made by Mr. Samuel Wagner, of York, Pennsylvania, that the sex of bees is also controlled by the size worker cells and eggs, is as follows:-They valuable Map, and should be possessed by evwhen hatched, is fed with a substance termed we hope no person will fail to secure one by apiarians "royal jelly," which, according while the opportunity presents itself. to experiments recently perfected, is elaborated in the stomach of the working bees, and has the peculiar property of stimulating and hastening the development of the insect, which, when grown, proves to be a queen.-Whereas, the remaining oggs, including those laid within the same minute as the one chosen for a larger development, are not hatched until five days after. If the egg which is chosen for elevation should prove, from want of others younger, to be more than four or five days old, the process will be a failure.

Soaking Clover Seed.

Many Farmers who sow Clover Seed defor it to so late a period in the Spring that the surface of the earth has become too dry to afford sufficient moisture to cause the seed to vegetate readily; and that portion that finally grows the plants are so small and weak that they have not sufficient depth of root to withstand the burning sun of Spring, and finally perish. This is the case with a large portion of the Clover Seed that is sown.

A writer in the Rural Now Yorker, who has practiced soaking his seed for a period of twelve hours in weak brine, and then rolling it in Plaster of Paris before sowing, finds that by comparing the result with seed sown in the | Magnificent Gifts and Valuable Prousual way, in parts of the same field, great advantages are gained by the practice. He says the next Spring you can see the difference in favor of the soaked seed as far as you could see the lot, and it continued to produce more and hetter Clover until he ploughed it. He has continued the practice ever since, and has not missed a crop since, though the last. seasons were dry.

In preparing the seed it is placed while in the bag into some vessel large enough to give it room to swell, and an hour to two before using it is taken out of the water to drain, and then rolled in plaster. The soaking and plaster add to the weight, and enable the farmer to sow it much more evenly, especially if the weather is windy.

As the present season is backward and Clover Seed is scarce and dear, the plan of sonking the seed is worthy of trial. On most soil plaster is the best application that can be inade; and when applied directly to the seed it receives an important stimulus just at the period when it is most needed.

Where Peppermint Comes From .- Two towns in St. Joseph county, Michigan, produce large quantities of peppermint, from which the oil is extracted by manufacturers there. In 1865, 25,000 pounds of the oil were produced, which brought in the Now York market three dollars per pound. From eight to twelve pounds are produced from an acre of the plant. The first crop requires a | 3403 Apples of gold gilt, good deal of care, but the next two years it yields without attention. After the third year the crop must rotate in order to rest the land. The mint is cut in August and the oil is expanted by distillation, filtered through flamer and put up in tin cans for market,

Animated Table Legs .- Roy. Dr. Magoon, of this city, recently lecturing on "Mind your Business," tells a good anecdote of a young New Yorker who, while out West, went to call'upon a young man and his wife, who went out there to settle from New York city several 2367 Family Receipt Books, years previous.
