The inneress daily reports of asten'shing cores are within and out of sight. We proceed, and presently meet two men carrying a barrow of earth, for our boys are at work night and so. This is the main approach on this part of the line. Finally we reach the moonlight again, and emerge into a wide, deep trench, cut across the line of the covered way. This is open, and filled with troops, who protect the working party. A heavy parapet of cotton-bales and earth is built on the side towards the enemy, and we must mount the berm to look over.

"We are now within sociable distance of the chivalry. Those men lying on the ground, twenty or thirty yards from us, are our boys, our advance pickets; but that gray fellow, with the bright musket which glistens so, a few steps beyond, is a 'reb.' long-haired and hot-blooded, one of Wall's famous Texas Legion—a buil dog to fight, you may be sure.
