From Texas--Curious Picture of Society in the State-

The following extracts from a private letter, written by a Texan alave-owner to friend in New York, gives a remarkable and sad picture of the condition of affairs and sad picture of the condition of affairs in that State, and the cruelties of the rebel rule:

Houston, Texas, May, 1863.

We do not often hear, in this unhappy country, from our friends in the North; and his family holds a pow, where it has and of hew much use it is to write we can not know. A letter addressed to me April, Mark's church. Gen. Meade's relations in 1862, reached me in January, 1863. I do not know that this letter will go safely; surance almost daily repeated in some form in every seessh paper, that the morthern people are gagged in the expression of their ideas, hauled off to bastiles, and for months and years kept in close confinement, without even being informed of the sause of their arrest and detention. Of course the less bigored here the sause of the image of t course the less bigoied here know that can-not be true, or the Journal of Commerce of your city, Fernando Wood, and Vallandig-

We see it stated that at Vicksburg and Port Hudson, as well as at other points, the Union and Rebel soldiers have mingled to gether an terms of entire cordiality, and as though there had been no real difference between them.

There is nothing in this which occasions in us the slightest feeling of surprise. It is, on the contrary, precisely what we would have expected. There never has been any foundation for a quarrel between the Morth, except the opinions, so industriously instilled into the former, that the men of the North are their inferiors. That opinion has, however, been flogged out of them,

The only signs of government among us, is the far collector and the bayonetted soldier harve the assurance that the old government is strong enough to protect them.

And this is the answer to the argument of the constraint of the Copperheads, which has found so ter all, and they are beginning to say if many (aver with European statesmen, that it. impossible to restore the Union by the such jupicion of four or five millions of people, who are unived in the determination to remise in the affectious of the people. It is not so, we admit, with the ruling class, by which they have been dragged into this unhappy state. Tay hate the North with an intense and bitter hatred, which can be only washed cut with their blood. They have left us, because their pride would not allow them to herd with what they denominated the northern rabble, upon a footing of equality.
