The Chief Justice and the Shoddy.

The Post has got out, as we are informed a pamphlet copy of our objections to the re-nomination of Governor Curtin, including our remarks about the prosecution of Neal and the Frowenfelds. The fact is there twice stated, and once officially through the Report of a Committee, that the ends of justice were there defeated through the arbitrary, unprecedented, unwarrantable interference of Chief Justice Lowrie. The Westmoreland Republican, in copying that particular article, leaves out the portions which referred to the Chief Justice, and supplies them with a star. The Post is more candid, though less cunning. We thank it for its fairness, even though indulged in at the expense of one of its own candidates, to whom the revelation is much more damaging than it can be to the Governor. Perhaps, however, the Post is not unwilling that its readers shall understand the character of this renegade whig, who crept into its party so stealthily a few years ago, and seems to fare so much better than veteran democrats, of much longer standing, like itself.

If the Chester County opinion was however, the recommendation which left the field to him without a rival, we rather think that his last effort in denying the exclusive jurisdiction of the Federal Courts, ought to cover a multitude of sins even more heinous than the affair of the shoddy contractors.

Where is the Army of the Potomac?

The rebels seem to be taking heart again, if we may judge from their frequent and adventurous forays within our lines about Washington. They dash in, it seems, whenever they think proper, and gobble up a sutler's train, or a lot of Government horses, or a squad of our watchful cavalry, and are gone before any body knows of the accident. As to retaliation, that does not seem to be thought of. It would be too much of an innovation on old habits.

But what is Meade doing, and where is he? Even the army correspondents have ceased to write about him. We do not expect any thing from that direction after the affair of Williamsport, but we like at least an occasional bulletin, if it was only on the hygiene of his department, to show that he is still above ground. We console ourselves, however, with the hope that we shall hear from him as soon as Lee is fully recruited. It would be against all rule to take any advantage of him while he is weak and dispirited.

But can it be true, that the enemy is allowed to occupy the neck between the Rappahannock and the Potomac, and to scour it with his conscripting parties—or that Lee is re-inforcing Bragg, or waiting patiently to see what will turn up in the South-west, while Meade is not even threatening? Such are the present reports. But is it possible that our Generals will never learn the art of helping each other?

Not so Mysterious Either.

The copperhead organ, under the caption of "Mysterious," refers to the resolution of the late Union Convention here, recommending the adoption of the proper measures, to take the votes of the soldiers according to law, and asks us to say how the soldiers are to vote "according to law?"

If it will look into the acts of Assembly, instead of going to the "annuals" of its copperhead Court, for the law, it will find the case abundantly provided for. The "mystery" which puzzles it, arises only out of its own mistake, as well as that of its candidates, in supposing that the judicial power is the only one in this State that can make law. They have made a good deal, we know, and very bad at that; but there is a consolation, at least, in reflecting that it don't wear much longer than a year, and that in the present case, we can take the vote in spite of them, and ignore their jurisdiction entirely—or, in other words, that we can take the law of the Legislature as our guide, and trample upon the Judge-made law, which would elect the Judges themselves, by disfranchising the soldier.

S. S. Cox, member of Congress, from the Twelfth district in Ohio, and George E. Pugh, ex-United States Senator, and now a candidate for Lieutenant Governor, each, in public speeches made before the people, threaten, in case Vallandigham is elected Governor, to raise the standard of civil war in Ohio. The programme of each is identical. It is in substance this: In case the Vallandigham State ticket is elected, Pugh will be sworn into office as Lieutenant-Governor, and thereupon will raise an army of one hundred thousand men or more, and march to the Canadian frontier, and from thence escort Vallandigham to Columbus. Little children and old women will, of course, be alarmed at this announcement.

GEORGE B. ELLIS, the historical and landscape engraver, recently died on his farm in Bucks county, Pennsylvania, aged about sixty years. Mr. Ellis was born in the city of Philadelphia. From boyhood he displayed a remarkable talent for the fine arts, and to the close of his life was a close student of the beauties of his profession. For a number of years he was engaged in illustrating works published by Henry C. Carey, and other leading publishers of Philadelphia, New York, Boston, and occasionally for "Godey's Lady's Book" and "Graham's Magazine." At the time of his death he had just finished a series of painted engravings of large size, illustrating the works of Shakespeare.

Union Movement in England.

The Manchester Examiner and Times, of August 18th, contains an account of the formation of the Union and Emancipation Society of Manchester, comprising Members of Parliament, clergymen, and men of various professions. THOMAS BAYLEY POTTER, Esq., is President. Among the Vice Presidents are John Stuart Mill, Rev. Newman Hall, Edward Dicey, the Mayors of Manchester, Birmingham, and Rochdale, Hon. and Rev. Baptist W. Noel, Prof. Cairnes, Prof. Goldwin Smith, Thomas Hughes, Dr. Massie, Thomas Bazley, M. P., and other persons equally distinguished and influential, to the number of one hundred and twenty. Three hundred and sixty-three ministers are enrolled as members of the Grand Council; and there are already fifty-three Branch Societies.

The object of the Society is well expressed in their Address, which we are tempted to copy in full, as it shows how thoroughly our friends in England have come to understand the importance of the Union question, as well as the Emancipation question:

The Union and Emancipation Society of Manchester has been formed to give expression, on behalf of the population of this district, to their earnest sympathy with the cause of freedom, and fraternal regard towards their kinsmen of the United States; and to resist all recognition of the slave-holding confederacy.

The breaking up of the American Union into two or more separate governments would be a world-wide disaster, and entail many grievous calamities. Such a disruption would substitute for a single and cheap government, two or more of a very expensive character; would impose upon each the necessity of keeping up large standing armies, which would absorb, as in Europe, a third of the resources of the state, imposing heavy taxes on the people; would provoke, sooner or later, other wars as disastrous as the present; would encourage the accession of other states, and thus paralyze that magnificent development of human activity and constitutional liberty, which has been the admiration of the civilized world; and would re-open the African slave trade with all its horrors and barbarities. We are, therefore, deeply convinced that the maintenance of the Federal Union of America is an object of unspeakable importance to the whole human family, and that its disruption would prove a calamity to the cause of freedom and to the interests of civilization.

With every wish to uphold the principle of non-intervention and strict governmental neutrality, we are impelled to declare that this nation is by its feelings inclined, as by its antecedents bound, to give its whole moral support to the cause of order, of civil freedom, of constitutional government, and of emancipation, all of which are represented by the North in its struggle to maintain the Union.

The so-called "Southern chivalry" is waging war against a free, popular government, with the intention, unblushingly proclaimed, of forming a new Confederation, whose chief corner-stone shall be the execrable system of human bondage. The men who initiated this wicked rebellion, did so by perjury, robbery, and fraud committed against the community by whom they were paid and whose constitution they had sworn to defend.

The Federal Government, on the other hand, was elected on the policy of restricting slavery within existing State limits, and on the principle that the normal condition of all the territory of the United States is that of freedom. It was against this that the slaveholders rebelled.

Since the commencement of hostilities President Lincoln has made many practical advances towards a complete recognition of the declaration of independence that all men are created equal! He has procured the liberation of the slaves in the District of Columbia, and the interdiction of slavery in the territories; he has enforced the laws against the African Slave-trade, and for its more effectual suppression has concluded a treaty with England granting the right of search; he has decided to receive ambassadors from the negro republics of Hayti and of Liberia; and following the good example of Great Britain, he has proposed to purchase the liberty of all slaves in the loyal States; and his Attorney General has pronounced free negroes to be citizens of the Union;—which previous governments had denied. To crown this series of just and humane efforts of freedom, President Lincoln, as commander-in-chief of the forces, has proclaimed unconditional freedom to all bondsmen of the rebel States.

The conduct of those publicmen amongst us, whose policy has been to retard the progress of liberty at home (pretending to ignore the distinction between the aims of the constitutional government at Washington and the slavecocracy headed by Jefferson Davis,) may be understood; but for liberal-minded men to countenance these rebels and enemies of mankind, in their nefarious designs against public order, moral law, and social progress, is as opposed to the teachings of Wilberforce, Clarkson, Granville Sharp, and Henry Brougham, as slavery itself is to the genius of the Christian religion.

We know that the operative classes are convinced that the labor markets of Europe are injuriously affected by the system of slavery; that the value of our commercial relations with four millions of people, enjoying the fruits of their own labor, will be vastly enhanced; whilst by the success of the Federal cause, and the odious system of slave breeding for the auction pens of Richmond, which calls for the indignant reprobation of mankind, will receive its death blow.

Deprecating war and deploring its ruinous consequences, we most cordially and earnestly desire the speedy establishment of a safe and enduring peace, on the basis of the complete emancipation of every chattel slave in the American States, believing that nothing less will justify the policy of the North, or recall to reason the slaveholding oligarchy of the South.

East Tennessee—Progress of the Campaign.

On the dispatch from Bridgeport, Tennessee, stating that General Burnside's army occupied Kingston on Wednesday last, and that all Eastern Tennessee, except the Chattanooga region, has been abandoned by the rebels, the N. Y. Evening Post remarks:

Those who read this despatch carefully will perceive that it comes not from General Burnside's lines, but from those of General Rosecrans. In fact Bridgeport is nearly due west from Chattanooga, and Kingston lies near the Virginia and East Tennessee Railroad, northeast of that place about eighty miles.

We may take it for granted, therefore, that the two armies which were to operate together for the release of East Tennessee are in communication with each other, and have, to all practical purposes, effected a junction.

This is a great event to thousands of suffering loyal men and women. For more than two years the unfortunate people of East Tennessee have been barbarously treated. They have been hanged by the roadside, they have been whipped till their blood ran down on the ground, they have been imprisoned by hundreds in filthy and noisome prisons; their property has been wantonly destroyed, their wives and children have been insulted and exiled; savage Indians have been employed to hunt them in the mountains; they have suffered, in fact, all that men can suffer, at the hands of the miscreants who were determined to break down their loyal spirits or else to exterminate them.

While we think of the joy of the loyal East Tennesseeans at their release, we must not forget the important bearings of this achievement upon the military situation. General Burnside has actually interrupted the line by which the rebels in Virginia have hitherto drawn their supplies from the Southwest. His occupation of Kingston cuts off from Richmond all the Southwest, except by a circuitous and tedious route along the sea-coast. That the rebels have given up this road, even for a day, without a desperate struggle, shows that they are much weakened by their recent losses; but it would seem to prove, also, that, unable to defend themselves here, they have withdrawn their forces to use them elsewhere.

It is probable that neither Burnside nor Rosecrans will find a formidable force before them as they press forward. Bragg may still be in command at Chattanooga, but with an army so diminished that he will not be able to make more than a strong show of resistance. The rebels are in a desperate situation; they have strength enough to strike but one more great blow, and they must strike that at once. It is highly probable that they are even now concentrating their forces in Virginia for this purpose.

But while Lee is getting ready, Rosecrans and Burnside, Grant and Banks are closing in around his rear. He abandons everything behind him, and is forced to place the fate of his cause upon the result of a single venture. Let us be prepared for him. He will make a desperate struggle; all the genius he has, and all the force he can bring to bear, he will concentrate on one object. Fortunately for us, he will act at a great disadvantage. He must be the invader; we act on the defensive; we can choose the time and place to fight; and with these advantages, and with the experience of the last campaign in Pennsylvania and Maryland before us, there is reason to hope for the best. It is a great point gained, that Lee can no longer afford to wait for us in Virginia, but must take the risk of offensive operations or disband his army.

Mr. Stephens in Europe.

The Paris correspondent of the Courier des Etats Unis writes to that journal, under date of August 21st:

"Gentlemen from the South, residing in Paris, announce that Mr. A. H. Stephens, Vice President of the Confederate States, will soon arrive in Europe, charged with a mission to the governments of England and France. It is even suspected that he was one of those passengers recently landed near Queenstown by the privateer Florida."

We learn from the Mobile Register that Mr. Stephens was recently at Nassau, which gives an air of probability to the above statement. As the rebel Vice President made a speech in Georgia about ten days subsequent to the battle of Gettysburg, he must have departed on his European mission soon after his unsuccessful attempt to communicate personally with President Lincoln.

ST. LOUIS, MO.

Having accepted the Agency for the sale of the SEMPLE CLAY, mined near St. Louis, Mo., I invite the attention of Glass and Steel Manufacturers to the Analysis given above, as reported by Profs. A. A. Hays, of Boston, and J. G. Booth, of Philadelphia, which, together with the test of actual experience by manufacturers in Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and St. Louis, determines it to be the purest and most valuable Clay now known, whether Foreign or American. Pots made from it have stood in the Glass Furnace from 6½ to 9 months.

The Analysis is of the Clay as taken from the mine, without any washing or preparation whatever. It possesses great adhesiveness and plasticity qualities, which are not shown by the Analysis, and which admit of the admixture of a large proportion of shell or burned clay.

I am now prepared to fill orders for the above Clay, to be shipped from St. Louis or delivered here.
