MISCELLANEOUS.

IMPORTANT TO RAILWAY COMPANIES, MILL OWNERS, &c.

We have erected and have in operation, near the city, an extensive Labratory for the manufacture of

LUBRICATING AND PAINT OIL.

By a new and ingenuous scientific process, and now offer and commend to public notice and patronage three grades, A, B and C respectively, of 1st, 2d and 3d Quality LUBRICATING OIL.

Wherever these lubricators have been tested, they have been pronounced greatly superior to any of the preparations lately offered in the market.

The "A," or best quality is designed to take the place of the best Sperm Oil, and for use on cotton, woolen or other machinery. The "B," or 2d quality, for railway and other like machinery; and the "C," or 3d quality, for heavy and coarse gearing, &c.

The PAINT OIL has been tested by numerous Painters in this city, and proved to be a capital substitute for boiled Linseed Oil. Indeed many Painters give it a decided preference.

These Oils are now extensively manufactured at our

EUREKA LUBRIC OIL OIL WORKS.

As the process is scientific and uniform, customers can rely on the uniform excellence of these economic equivalents of Sperm and Flaxseed Oil. A trial and test is confidently invited.

The Army of the Cumberland.

Referring to the rumor we had from Chattanooga on Saturday, stating, on the authority (?) of deserters from the rebel army, that Atlanta and Rome were being attacked in the rear, the Cincinnati Gazette of Monday remarks: "In fact it is not only an improbable, but impossible event. Burnside's army has hardly moved in that direction, and Sherman could not have reached there, even if he had moved direct from Corinth, having left the latter place on the 19th. A cavalry raid on the enemy's communications is possible; nothing more."

Little or credit to a late dispatch, which states that Hooker had crossed the Tennessee river, and that there were rumors of a fight; adding: "From the nature of things, active movements cannot be long postponed. The situation is such that General Grant must assume the defensive, so far, at least, as to open communication by river, and railroad between Stevenson and Chattanooga. In no other way can the army at the latter place be supplied. The roads over the mountains were bad enough when the weather was dry. Since the heavy rains they must be well nigh impassable. Besides, Gen. Grant's reinforcements must be well in hand. He has a splendid army, with the best corps commanders in the country, viz: Thomas, Hooker, Sherman, while Burnside is also under his direction. He is in all respects more than twice as strong as Rosecrans was when he crossed the Tennessee, and, in point of corps commanders, his condition is incomparably stronger. There being a necessity, therefore, for immediate action, and there being nothing to be gained by any further great delay, we may, any hour, expect news of a battle. The rebels, it is to be inferred from all the information at hand, and all the indications observable, will contest the ground stubbornly, and another great battle on or near the old ground on Chickamauga Creek, is almost certain to occur within the current week. Gen. Grant arrived at Chattanooga on Tuesday."

Texas.

News recently received from Texas shows that there is a general movement by counties throughout the State toward making a determined resistance to the expected advance of the United States forces. Notwithstanding this movement, the rigors of conscription will fail to bring soldiers into the field. The rebel Gen. Slaughter has arrived at Brownsville, having evaded the blockade at Mobile. He represents the defenses of the latter place as being very strong. The State authorities are having considerable trouble with a Major Tom, an agent sent by the Rebel Government to Texas to seize upon and impress supplies to keep alive the rebellion further North.

It will be remembered that our latest news from New Orleans, which was to the 17th inst., states that the Texas Expedition was advancing steadily. The depot had been removed to New Iberia. A skirmish had taken place near Vermillionville in which the enemy to the number of 500 were engaged. They were driven in every direction. The army had been consolidated, and Gen Banks is in command.

A correspondent of the New York Tribune sends the following statement of an escaped Union prisoner, who was captured by the rebels in May last, on the barque Anderson, at Arkansas Pass, and has been confined at Camp Grosse, fifty miles west of Houston, when he succeeded in making his escape to our lines:

Five Texas gunboats lay at the mouth of the Rio Grande, vigilantly eyeing the contraband trade, and offering protection to Union refugees. Nearly all goods imported into Texas were of Northern or Mexican manufactures. Very few English or French invoices had been received of late. The Harriet Lane was at Galveston, but needed repairs, which could not be effected at that port. She was consequently considered useless by the rebels. He states that all the forces in Texas are conscripts. Including the divisions of Kirby Smith and Magruder, it is generally supposed that there are not over 25,000 troops in the State. Three companies of Germans were stationed at San Antonio, but they informed Mr. Cedar that they would never serve against the stars and stripes. He passed through Vermilion Bayou, where he found a company as a garrison force, and 200 deserters from the Louisiana cavalry regiments hiding in the woods. The conscription has been most thoroughly enforced upon all white males from 18 to 45 years of age. The conscripting officers received orders from Gen. Magruder to shoot at once all disloyalists all liable to conscription who hesitated to don the Confederate uniform.

At Houston he found many Unionists, as also large numbers who had become sick of Rebel rule. At Beaumont, however, there were many who yet upheld the cause of the Confederacy. Everywhere he received substantial aid from those who openly avowed their devotion to the Union. He contends that in general the Union army would be received by the Texans with open arms.

There is nothing to be obtained for food save corn bread and beef, of which staples there are in abundance. Very little cotton has been planted, but wheat and corn encumber the prairies.

There are more negroes than whites in Texas. Slaves can sometimes be had for their keeping. French interference seems neither to be expected nor desired, from public expressions of opinion.

It would appear that the closing days of October will be signalized by the grand attack on Charleston—the final and successful one, let us hope—for which General Gillmore on land, and we trust somebody equally efficient on the other element, have been so long preparing. The New Bedford (Massachusetts) Standard states, on the authority of a letter from an officer in Admiral Dahlgren's fleet, that the attack will be made near the close of October, and that by that time the fleet will be increased by several iron-clads.

In West Virginia the Hon. J. B. Blair and the Hon. W. G. Brown (Union) have been elected to Congress by large majorities. The returns from the Hon. K. T. Whaley's district are not yet in, but it is hoped that he also is elected. This vote would give three additional votes to the Union side in the next House.

Messrs. Livermore, Crews & Co., of New York City, Government Agents for the sale of the U. S. 5-20 Loan, took subscriptions yesterday for one million of dollars of the bonds.—N. Y. Times, Oct. 23.

Miles O'Reilly's Memorial.

A few weeks since the New York Herald published the memorial of General Shaler of Miles O'Reilly, an Irish high private of the New York 47th volunteers, imprisoning Admiral Dahlgren, whom he called Dahlgreen, for not supporting Gen. Gillmore in his attack on Charleston, and lamenting the removal of Dupont from the fleet. The poetry caused Miles' arrest and incarceration in the guard house, with a ball and chain attached to his leg. Miles is a facetious fellow, and a favorite with the party officers and soldiers and sailors, who sympathized with him and fed him while in prison. Miles's resources, however, were not at fault even in a military prison. He wrote the following petition to Secretary STANTON for relief, which Gen. GILLMORE permitted to be forwarded, and which, we are informed, was read by Mr. STANTON to the President, who enjoyed it hugely, and at once sent a pardon to the facetious son of Erin:

Memorial of Private Miles O'Reilly, now in Custody of the Provost in the Guard House.

To His Excellency the Right Hon. Edwin M. Stanton, Esq., and all others whom it may concern:

Air—"The Low Back'd Buggy Gentleman."

I'd sing to you a merry song,
Made by a soldier late,
Of a gallant sailor Admiral,
Whom iron fellows hate—
Because he's faithful, or didn't, or wouldn't
Some ships in their favor bind;
For which he had several big black marks
(Will no end of notes of subscription, an' great big, big, fat, crosses for input his name,)
Oh, Captain Fox's alive—
This gallant naval, cold Admiral,
Was on the English time!

'Twas by what I was our sides our dark,
Just twelve months ago,
Lovely rifts of daylight through the clouds
In glorious hurlfire flow,
The Keys to Rebs, Fort Royal won,
Oh, that's the country now,
An' didn't all Dixie Gideon
(An' all the Administration organs, big and little, from Col. Forney's Philadelphia Fibber, down to poor old Hooper Greer's very weakly "Tribune,")
Of the mighty sic thy blow,
An' praise the grim cold Admiral,
As "one of the Golden time?"

An' twas him that took the iron-clad
Last spring against Fort Sumter;
An' twas him that—at over six hundred yards—
Wid his fifteen inchers bombpod her:
An' 'twas Billing, wid his two big rifled guns
That set half the distance thimpod her—
While the present Admiral stands off.
(At the convenient prospective distance of two-three-and-a-half miles, until after the poor secesh ruin of a place ceases to give ashamed of him;
An' then it's by a long shot, comes t' her
So near as his gran'-cold Admiral,
Who is wan of his oulden times!

An' now this great cold Admiral
Is laid upon the shelf,
Like a broken chiney taypot,
Or a wooden piece of delf,
Because he couldn't, or didn't, or wouldn't
Ate for him, to my power to himself;
Comes to wid them in the old jobbers,
(Who are down on their hair knees night, noon,
and morning, purvin' Heaven for the other place for iron clads and success to their pathern saint, O'plain Fox.)

In their estimation for scruplin' not—
Tare honest an' true Oh! Admiral,
That type of the true ould time!

An' become on the sate of the Admiral
I used to sit mate to night on the pyre,
I am now chained up like a dog here,
In the Provost Marshal's den:
Well nothing in my heart took on' mutther—
It is worn't in the fore-mate men
Was smuggle made, God bless their boys!
(Oh, the sly, sly eyes of 'em,) an' sint by the way of keepin' my sperits up, an' prevents me big ornaments from takin' the skin out my cheeks to make
Some unlucky, poor an' agur,
Which I have in the bygone time.

Och! Stanton, our great "God o' War,"
My condition is pity see,
An' if you have got any bowels to melt
Let them flow in mother for me.
For I come of the dyclarest people
In the beautiful town of Tural—
Wan of the first in Society's circle,
(An' divil resave the dacenter marshal we have there, at all at all, though we have "paders" and
"wes to am—who are we me, if such a thing was possible!—

An' they love both heart an' hand
To men loving grim cold Admiral—
A type of the ould time!

Go! be good to you, Mister Stanton,
An' look kindly on me case,
An' to the man with Mathusalah's beard
An' the patriarchal face
(I mane ould Uncle Gideon,)
Just ax him to show me grace,
For while I will, as in duty bound—
If he gets me out of this place—
Do for him an' for you all that ever I can—Aisier nearly an' wid more often for you both, or for either of you, if you ever chance to be candydated in any district or county where I can get within two rods of the ballot box.

An' now my name I forace—
Miles O'Reilly, who wrote of the Admiral,
An' is havin' a hard ould time.

Our Armies to Assume the Offensive.

Notwithstanding the somewhat positive tone of the dispatches sent from Washington, by several correspondents, who profess to speak with a kind of semi-or quasi-official authority, giving the impression that the active operations of our armies both east and west are drawing to a close for the present—that the fall campaign itself is nearly at an end, and that we shall soon hear of winter quarters—we and the following very different view of affairs taken by one correspondent, who, in the New York Tribune, of Monday, says:

There are various signs that our armies, which have been for some weeks upon the defensive everywhere, except upon the other side of the Mississippi and at Charleston, are about to assume the offensive along the whole line, and there are good grounds for the hope that the campaign soon to commence will not close until large accessions have been made to the territory under the national flag. Gen. Grant has assumed personal command of the veteran army at Chattanooga, and his character leaves no doubt as to what he will do. Gen. Meade has been assured in unmistakable tones, that the Army of the Potomac must find a fight, if not under his command, under that of some other General. Gen. Burnside is in a position in which he can assist either of these two great armies, and he has recently shown how effectively he can co-operate. General Foster is the man to make Richmond tremble before a rapid movement up the Peninsula. Similar activity prevails at all points where our forces are stationed.

The Governors of Massachusetts, Maine, Connecticut, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Illinois, Ohio and Wisconsin have issued proclamations recommending that Thursday, November 26, (the same day recommended by the President,) be observed as a day of thanksgiving.

The execution of Dr. Wright, for the murder of Lieut. Sanborn, took place in Norfolk, Va., on Friday last. An attempt was made by the culprit to escape by using the dress of his daughter, while admitted to see him.

The Osage (Kansas) Chronicle learns that Osage Mission has been sacked, and four men carried off.
