TUESDAY MORNING NOV. 17, 1868.

Union Prisoners in Richmond.

The condition of the Union prisoners in the Richmond penitentiary has changed, and, according to the latest reports, is now such that the Black Hole of Calcutta, or the horrors of the conquest of Timor, or Genghis Khan, is now in the process of making, and will be succeeded by the horrors of slave-holding barbarism to the ages of the future.

Upon the setting in of cold weather, large quantities of ice form and float down the Allegheny river, and the ice increases, on shoals and bars, and against the shores, and continues to accumulate in great quantities.

At the lowest stage of water there ought to be a channel five feet in the navigable channel, and the present state of the river, not only the lift from one pool to the other, but more than eight to nine feet.

The Ohio river, so deepened and slackened, would be converted into the most stupendous and capacious canal in the world, forming, as it does, the principal link in the chain of communication between the Atlantic States and the Gulf of Mexico.

As we have already observed, in some remarks apropos of the dispatches received yesterday, in which we could find but one painful exception, (of the condition of Union prisoners in the hands of the rebels, to the general cheerful and hopeful character of their other contents,--fighting our way into Richmond, and so relieving our captured soldiers from their cruel oppressors, shall be the way chosen to accomplish the end in view--that is well--that is the best way to be followed.

Improvement of the Ohio River. On Saturday morning we published Mr. Cooper's communication, dated January 1, 1864, to the Pittsburgh Board of Trade, on the subject of the improvement of the Ohio River. We now give the original and principal paper, in which the subject is more fully treated.
