TUESDAY MORNING, NOV. 24, 1863

The Right Way to Go to Work. The Indianapolis Journal publishes two columns of extracts from the Indiana country papers...

Now why should not Allegheny county, and every county in Pennsylvania, be clearly counsel, and about meeting the President's call in so practical, effective, and honorable a way...

How Copperheads sympathize are Exercised. The copperhead journals always raise an outcry when their friends the rebels are hurt...

When Gen. Butler assumed command at Fort Monroe, he issued the following order: Representations have been made to the commanding general that certain disloyal persons...

How We Treat Rebel Prisoners. The painful subject which has been necessarily so much discussed by our readers lately...

We think it right that the subject of the treatment of the rebels should be studied otherwise than in the revolving pages of a report made by W. S. Swaine, M.D., Inspector U. S. Sanitary Commission...

Departure of Admiral Milne. A letter from Halifax reports that Sir Alexander Milne, Naval Commander-in-Chief on the station, having been succeeded...

The President's Message—His Policy as to the Rebel States. The Washington correspondent of the New York Evening Post writes: Mr. Lincoln is so busy that he receives no visits except those of his cabinet...
