Mr. Bigley remarked that when his miners situck for five cents per bushel he gave it without hesitation. When he paid two cents to the diggers, he rented his houses at $4 per month. He had raised the rent to $5, when the diggers at once objected to paying it. He told them they got more than dauble the price for digging, and copil not to object to an increase of one-third on the rant of their houses.
They could not see the force of this reasoning, and had been off w rk for two weeks, refusling even to compromise at $5 per month. Mr.
