Pittsburgh Gazette. MONDAY MORNING...... PEB. 22 186 Corruption in the Legislature. existed at Harrisburg an organization called branches of the Legislature and a fer "sharp" lobbyists. No private bill could dersement of this 'Ring." and to secure thi dorsement money was generally neces organization is in existence this winter, by if the half we hear of the rageality in vogue at Harrisburg be true, we judge that it is Here is a specimen of the kind of legislation

The other day a bill passed the House road from Easton to Mauch Chunk, Ther are several suspicious circumstances con nected with the passage of this bill which seem to leave little room for doubt that im proper influences have been resorted to to "put it through." The Philadelphia Bulleis some days ago stated that several members of the Legislature had gone to that city. s advance of the passage of the Lehigh bill or of any action upon it and bought largely of the stock of a certain rail goad which would be favorably affected by the passage of the bill in question. Another fact is, that all the pro burg while the Legislature is its session were active in urous the passage of the bill. The Logislature of Delaware has voted down, by l4 to 7, the bill for the relief of families of dunnteers. Resolutions in favor of arguments, they used can example the purpose of the properties o Labin, of Bucks, and Hooven, of Montgomery. Both gentlemen stated that they believed the passage of the bill was pro-fixed at $500, and not $400, as has been stated in some of the papers. The payment of this sum only exempts until the list is exhausted, and in no event for a longer period than one ers should fully understand at once. All persons between the ages of 20 and 45, except unfit, are liable to the draft. There are n other exemptions than these : first, disability

This political campaign of 1884 has already commenced. The New Hampshire State election occurs on the second Tuesday in March, and the Connecticut State election takes place on the first Monday in April. In both States a Governor is to be elected. In New Hampshire both tickets have for some time been in the field—Gov. Gilmore, the present incumbent, being the Union candidate. In Connecticut, the present Union Governor, Buckingham, has been nominated for re-election. The Democrates have not yet selected their ticket.
