TUESDAY MORNING ::: :: MARCH 8 1864 HOR. J. K. MOORHEAD has our thanks for late Congressional documents.

SCHUYLER COLTAX. On Saturday evening, the 19th of Decemben last, a party of gantlemon, composed exclusively of journalis's and newspape men, and representing all the political par ties of the day, met the Hon Schutz COLFAX, of Indiana, at dinner at Willard's Hotel, Washington City. The Hon. Gentleman was present by invitation of his professional brethren, who desired in this formal and customary way to do honor to him as a distinguished member of the American "fourth estate." The immediate occasion of the compliment, it will readily be inferred by those who did not read the simple tel egraphic announcement at the time, was the elevation two weeks previously of Mr Colrax to the Speakership of the House of history of the Government of an editor hav ing been selected to fill that responsible and honorable position. After the cloth was removed, the President of the evening, Mr SAMULL WILKESON, the Washingto editor of the New York Tribune, and a vet quent, chaste, and exceedingly appropriate a idress, the concluding portion of for the sake of the craft so nobly repre sented in Mr. COLFAX, and for the sake of its lesson to young men, we reproduce, al though several weeks have clapsed since its delivery. Young men who have you fortunes yet to make, and the world before you where to choose and how to choose yes where to those a the new to those; take head!

"Eighten years ago, at one o'clock of a winter moon-lighted morning, while the horses of the stage-coach in faith." It waitowing his thick mad of factors in the stage of the principal street to chake of a great wearines. I saw at light through a window A sign, "The Brussran," was legible above it, and I saw through the window a man in his shirt slows walking quickly about like one that worked. I putsed, and looked, and imagined about the man, and about his work, and about the interest of the hour to which it was protrected, and I wondered if he was in debt, and was struggling to get out, and if his wife was expeting and if he was very three. A consing step that the struggling to get out, and if his wife was expeting and if he was very three. A consing step interrupted this little draming. Was net washer reached my side I joined him, and as we want I saked him questions, and naturally they were about the workman in his shirt sleeve. "What sort of a man to he?" "He is very good to the poor; he works hard; he is a side advise; he doesn't drink whithy; falks depend on him; all this part of Indiana believes in him." From that day to this I have never taken up the South Bond Register without thinking of this sings, and early the these of his manhod.
"This man when 25 years of his manhod." The design of the neighbor with neighbor is to the National Presidential Conventions—when IT years old was sent by his neighbor with the reach the meant of th

Presidential Conventions—when 27 years old was sent by his neighbors as a wise political reformer to the Constitutional Convention of the State of in-

It is not the state of the continued regard of a community for a citizen—of this continued regard of a community for a citizen—of this appreciation of a state-man by sisteman. You find them in his fidelity to principles, in his thorough assention to business—in his takents for legislation—in their constant and useful devoting to the public good. The coopers and files and the traditional and write-historities, and of the files and the traditional and write-historities, and of the files and the traditional and write-historities, and of this files for public trusts, and this title to honer and confidence. But you don't know the secret. I do. I learned it by chance. I got possession of it by an unwitting and fin awailing caresdropping in the parior of an another noble man, John W. Forney. Eighteen wears after my indulgible with thing of that printer, in his shirt sleeves at his solitury inter, in his shirt sleeves at his solitury inter, and the printer, in his shirt sleeves at his solitury inter, and the printer, in his printer with his philosophy. He found also that there was room there for him to grow and become a useful citiseen, and he resolved to make South Bend his future home. And there his home has been to this fay. He did not remain there commenced and vigorously prosecuted." West. He was a printer. He soon found been to this day. He did not remain there a year or two years and thon become "dis coursged," pack his "traps" and "tramp" for a new location, to be in turn abandone for another and another. Not at all. He stayed in South Bend; he stuck to his business,

"settle down" for life in the community t promise of a livelihood and social distinction in accordance with his merits? And SCHUTLER COLVAX succeeded, why may not others by following his example? If graph: they have the other qualities he possesses, there is clearly no reason why they should not in time succeed, as he did, in the sphere for which their talents fit them. Why, then, should young men spend the best years of their manhood, as many do, in rambling over the country - now here, now there, when they could more easily become useful and respected members of the community in which fortune or a wise choice may have first placed them? We do not Quad friends and employment in a new which he will never find—a climate all sunshine; a community all perfection: wealth, honors, happiness without alloy.
