New Railroad Cars.

The Pittsburgh Railroad Company are building, at their extensive shops in Allegheny, a number of first class passenger cars, which are superior to any now on the road. They are finished with new style trucks, improved brakes and all the modern improvements, and their comfort and elegance is unsurpassed. A number of the new cars were run over the mountain on Friday last, and were universally conceded to be not only the most comfortable, but the finest cars ever placed upon this splendid line of railroad. The new cars will be placed upon the road for through travel.

A Rascally Soldier.

Neal Grymes, of the Seventh Pennsylvania cavalry, while on recruiting duty at Harrisburg, obtained the confidence of a number of young men, secured their local county for safe-keeping, and when he had obtained a large sum by this method, "absquatulated" in company with a female. He visited Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York and Boston, but was "brought to" in the latter city by a detective. He was living in the best style, and was at present enjoying a theatrical performance in company with his fair companion. He is now in Harrisburg jail, where the second indictment are not so good as to a first class boarding house.

Shocking Accident.

On Saturday evening last, a sad accident occurred in Latrobe. A son of Mr. John Porter was out gunning, and on his return left his gun loaded standing in the room. Quite a young brother got it, and when last in the act of dropping it on, was observed by the elder brother, who saw it pointed at himself. He screamed, but too late to stop the discharge or avert the consequences. The whole charge of shot was lodged in the breast of young Pere, and he lived only a few minutes. He was a very promising youth. The child had been allowed to snap caps on fire which was too young to know the difference between a empty and a charged gun! It is to be hoped that this will be a warning to parents.

Bear Chasing Deer Into Pittsburgh.

Charley learned that an impression prevails that this command has been filled by recruits to its maximum. I hereby announce that this is not the case. We have received a very large number of first rate recruits, but still have room for a couple hundred more of the same kind.

Come along, young men, and come Monday, and find a place for you.

Remember that this is the only Western Pennsylvania Regiment attached to General Meade's Army of the Potomac. Watch Corps.

Enlist with any of the Provost Marshals, and join us at Camp Copeland without delay.

DANIEL LEASURE,
Col. Commanding Reg't.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD COMPANY.—The stockholders of this Company on Monday voted for Directors for the ensuing year. The ballot-box was placed on the desk at all of the meeting. Mr. Thomas Mellon, jr. in whose place Mr. Edward C. Knight was elected. The Directors chosen were as follows: J. Edgar Thomson, Josiah Bacon, John Reiney, G. B. Roberts, Charles Wistar, Morris, C. W. Van Pittsburgh; William H. Smith, Pittsburgh; Samuel T. Bodine, Joseph B. Myers, and Edward C. Knight.

Fair Notes.—Capt. C. W. Batchelor, on behalf of a committee of ladies and gentlemen, had gone to Cleveland to take notes of the Sanitary Fair now being held in that city, with a view of aiding our citizens in getting up the contemplated fair in this place. The captain is a gentleman of fine taste, and his observations and "notings" will be important to those who have the preliminary arrangements of our fair in charge.

Killed in a Coal Mine.—George Beck, a miner, employed at the coal mining of Latimer & Sharpe, was accidently injured on Wednesday or Thursday of last week, that he died on the Saturday evening following. He was digging coal at the time, when a large piece of coal fell on him, crushing him in a terrible manner. He was a resident of Ligonier Valley, and leaves a young wife.

Trial of Derailers.—On Tuesday morning a large frame building near the Cleveland and Pittsburgh Railroad, in Cleveland, used by that company as a paint shop, was destroyed by fire. A large amount of paints and oils, together with two passenger and two freight cars, were consumed. The loss will amount to about $7,000. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Cowardly Assault.—Last evening about 8 o'clock, a colored man while walking peaceably along Ohio street, near Sandusky, Allegheny, was knocked down and abused by three rowdies, two of whom were apparently soldiers. High Constable Will, who was passing at the time, endeavored to arrest them but they attacked him by pitching into and joining alley, and effected their escape.

Runaway Team.—A discharged soldier who had been an inmate of Mercy Hospital and afterwards engaged as messenger, was arrested yesterday with the collection of a check from one of the banking houses. He drew the money, since which time nothing has been heard of him. The fugitive has probably decamped with his ill-gotten gains.

Released.—James Marshall, who was arrested on Tuesday by the Mayor's police, for the larceny of an overcoat, was discharged yesterday. He stated that he wished to enlist in the army, and the prosecutor withdrew the charge to give him an opportunity to do so. James is now a soldier.

Held to Bail.—Benjamin Trimble, jr., and James A. Carville, who were connected with the recent homicide in Allegheny, were held in $500 bail yesterday, for there appearance at Court, to answer the charge of riot. William Small, another of the party, was held in $200 bail to answer a similar charge.

An Explanation.—The young man, Wm. Small, who was arrested as one of the parties in company with Sims, when he stabbed young Hamilton, is not William Small, son of the ex-Sheriff, as some persons have asserted. The friends of the latter gentleman desire us to make a public announcement of this fact.

New Counterfeit.—A spurious $50 bill on the West Branch Bank of Williamsport, Pa., was lately circulated in this city yesterday. On account of its close resemblance to the genuine ones of that denomination are in circulation.

We would recommend all persons wishing to go through a course of Electropathic treatment to call on Dr. A. Carter, at his professional rooms, No. 143 Grant st.

Prof. Ed. Wilson will repeat his lecture on "The Boy of '64," on Friday evening next, in the Sixth Presbyterian Church.

EXPOSITION, March 8th, 1864.

This interesting enterprise has excited the comment of the public and received the countenance of the Press throughout the State during the past month, came up for trial in the Cambria County Court, sitting at Ebensburg, this week, presiding the Hon. Judge Hall. The indictment was promptly submitted to the grand jury, immediately after that body was sworn, yesterday afternoon, and a True Bill as promptly found by them—and returned into Court before the adjournment for the day—but for pressing business necessary, to establish the fact of the killing as set forth in the indictment.

"In the course of calling the list this morning, by the Court, the case was reached about 9 o'clock. Both sides announcing themselves ready for trial, the Court directed the prisoner to be brought to the bar. In a few minutes, he made his appearance in company with Sheriff Buck, and after a brief consultation of authorities by the Presiding Judge, (Hon. George Taylor,) to refresh his memory, he directed the arraigning of the prisoner and the calling of a jury. The prisoner was directed to stand up, when the indictment was read to him by Prothonotary McDonald, in a feeling manner. The General, who is one of the most efficient Court officers, we know of, was visibly affected during the reading—bending nearer breathing down that we never saw him. The prisoner, when asked the question—"guilty, or not guilty?" responded "not guilty," and to the further question—"How shall you be tried?" responded audibly and distinctly, by "God and my Country." Although we say the responses were made audibly and distinctly, it was not done with ease or effort. He was pale, and, perceptibly evincing considerable emotion, and evidently felt deeply the responsibility and ignominy of his situation. His chief regret since his contingent has been the knowledge it did not interfere in time to prevent him from the commission of the deed, and thus save him from the remorse of conscience he has since suffered, and the fearful consequences which may follow.

These preliminaries over, the Prothonotary proceeded with the calling of a jury. When the first juror had been called, the question of challenges was raised. It was agreed that both sides should have the right of challenge to peremptory, until the Commonwealth had exhausted their privilege of four challenges. The question of what should constitute a cause of excision from the jury box on account of a formed or expressed opinion, was also raised at this stage of the proceedings—Mr. Kopelin, for the Commonwealth, contending that the formation or expression of my opinion on the subject was sufficient for the rejection of the juror, and Mr. Johnston, for the defense, quoting the "decision of other courts that unless such decision, in the estimation of the juror himself, would prevent him from rendering an impartial verdict after hearing the evidence and the charge of the Court, he was competent to serve." The Court, in giving an opinion, he was, under instructions from the Court, interrogated as to how he came to form such an opinion. Answering, "by common rumor and newspaper reports," he was further interrogated whether he thought such opinions would influence him and prevent him from rendering an impartial verdict with all the testimony before him. Answering, "No," he was retained as a juror; and after this precedent the calling of jurors proceeded. The entire panel was called, challenges, peremptory and for cause, out of which number seven jurors were obtained.

By this time the dinner hour was approaching, and there being but slight progress made in the calling of the jury the Court adjourned till 2 o'clock.

On re-assembling at the Court room, the Court ordered a special venire of twenty-four jurymen to be summoned by the Sheriff, returnable at 9 o'clock, when the Court adjourned.

Before going any further with the case, it is proper to give a list of the attorneys connected with the prosecution and defense. For the Commonwealth, Philip S. Noon, Esq., of Ebensburg, Major James Potts and A. Kopelop, Esq., of Johnstown, and Hon. Henry D. Foster, of Greensburg.—For the defense, Messrs. Robert C. Johnston, Ebensburg; Messrs. Cyrus Elder, Cyrus T. Pershing, and Daniel McLaughlin, Esqs., of Johnstown; Billings & Shiels, Esqs., of Pittsburgh; Hon. John Scott, of Huntingdon, and T. G. Barr, of Somerset. Mr. Elder, of Johnstown, and Mr. Barr, of Somerset, were not in attendance. The former, it is understood, because of service in the militia; the latter, because of ill health, all as the case may be, not stated to your correspondent. The other gentlemen named were all in attendance. The array of counsel was much legal talent, as it certainly does, and will give the readers of the Gazette some idea of the interest felt in the prosecution by the friends of the parties respectively.

On re-assembling at 2 o'clock, the Sheriff announced that all of the jurors but five were called, and all but three of whom answered to their names. Also, that the court was densely crowded, a large accession to the number of people in town having been made by the arrival of a train of three car loads of citizens from Pittsburgh.

After the disposal of the civil list, which was continued by consent and the continuance of all other criminal business, on the plea presented in those other cases, the Court ordered the trial of Mr. Moore. The prisoner was thereupon brought in by the Sheriff and the Prothonotary proceeded with the calling of the jury. The twenty-four names returned under special venire were called, although three more jurors as the result, making ten altogether up to 3½ o'clock. The Court thereupon ordered a recess until 7 o'clock, when a report would be made by the Sheriff, Mr. Buck, touching the absence of the Sheriff on the hunt of jurymen, those of the general panel not already sworn on the pending cases were discharged.

In about an hour the Sheriff returned with a list of twelve additional jurymen, whose names were called by the Clerk; all but one of whom answered to their names. Those of the last venire were called and sworn to make a true answer, two of whom were finally sworn as jurors, the remaining twenty-two being challenged and a full panel of twelve obtained. At 4½ o'clock, consisting of the following persons: Felix O'Neill, Joseph Hill, James Moreland, John Tabner, James Gallagher, Philip Bender, John Cassidy, Patrick Kirkpatrick, Charles Owens, Timothy Hunt, John G. Trenkle and Cornelius Norris.

The case was opened on the part of the Commonwealth by Mr. Noon in an impressive and eloquent manner, closing with a succinct resume of the facts and circumstances of the killing, as the Commonwealth expects to prove them—stating, particularly, that the prisoner had no provocation for the act.

George W. Wehn was called and sworn. He testified that on the morning of the 12th of February, 1864, he saw Mr. Moore standing at Fraser's drug store, corner of Main and Franklin streets. He (Mr. Moore) soon came over to where the witness was standing in front of his store door, near the Postoffice, on Franklin street, Johnstown. Witness invited Moore into the store, and he came in and sat down on a chair near the stove. Witness continued reading to Moore out of the morning paper, and thought he was paying attention to his reading, noticing, however, that he was staring at the floor in a very strange manner. Suddenly Moore jumped up and ran out of the door. Witness went to the door after him, and saw Marbourg going into the postoffice. When the latter came out Moore seized him by the collar of the coat, saying "get down on your knees and confess, for I am going to shoot you. My wife has told me all, and I ought to think you," pulling out a pistol. "I have been a professor of religion all my life," and "I believe I would be fully justified in shooting you." Marbourg denied having done him the injury charged. Moore reiterated the charge in an excited manner, and said, "when I was out in the service he was constantly intimate with you seduced my wife. She has confessed it all. You have ruined me and my family, and I ought to shoot you." These expressions were repeated several times, Moore continuing to charge the seduction of his wife and ruin of himself and family upon Marbourg, crying loudly and bitterly the while, and the latter denying the accusation. At last he jerked Marbourg from against the Postoffice building where he had pinned him, and fired, striking him on the head, and firing several striking him on the head, and firing several other shots while he was falling, and one after he had fallen. He then walked away and gave himself up. Marbourg was picked up and carried away dead. The witness was cross-examined, without eliciting any additional facts, except that Marbourg made no resistance.

On the conclusion of Mr. Wehn's examination, the Court at 7 o'clock adjourned till 8½ in the morning.

OUR SPECIAL DISPATCHES.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Special Dispatch to the Pittsburgh Gazette.

WASHINGTON, March 9, 1864.

Guests and Callers in Washington.

The arrival of Gen. Grant proves a God send to scribblers of Lincolnian prodigies. His appearance at the President's levee; his promenade with Mrs. Lincoln; the parties of her toilette; the affability and condescension of Chaperon Seward, are all dwelt upon with a minuteness of detail delightful to unsophisticated minds. It is refreshing to know that he bears the ordeal with becoming meekness, and has broken himself with commendable promptness to the business of his mission. To-day he had a practical interview with the Secretary of War and Gen. Halleck, at which the military situation of the country was canvassed. A general plan of campaign, harmonious and comprehensive, was agreed upon. The necessity for the reorganization of the Army of the Potomac was admitted by all, and to-morrow Lieut.-Gen. Grant proceeds to Meade's headquarters to personally inspect the causes of inefficiency and to initiate reform. It is understood that Gen. Grant will not take up his residence in Washington, but will remain on active duty somewhere in the field. Gen. Halleck will embellish the position of adjutant to the President, through whom, as chief of staff to the commander-in-chief of the Army, all his orders will be transmitted to Lieut.-General Grant.

Gen. Grant pronounced the stories of the rebels having been defeated entirely a fabrication. Sherman fulfilled his orders successfully, which were to break up the railroads leading to Mobile, and used in supplying the army. He had no orders to proceed further, and from Richmond we have the rebel admission that he left the country through which he passed destitute of provisions, mules, and negroes. His expedition is pronounced here a great success.

FROM HARRISBURG.

Special Dispatch to the Pittsburgh Gazette.

HARRISBURG, March 9, 1864.

SENATE.—Bills reported.

Mr. Clymer asked the privilege for Mr. Reilly to record his vote in favor of constitutional amendments, granting soldiers in the service the right to vote.

Refused—23 yeas, 15 nays.

Messrs. Hopkins, Clymer, Stein, Bashen, and McSherry, democrats, asked leave for a similar record of their votes.

Refused—yeas 23, nays 15.

Gen. Cameron appeared in the Senate Chamber to-day, and was warmly received by his personal and political friends.

The Senate adjourned this afternoon at four o'clock to witness the parade and drill of the Westchester cadets. The House attended in large numbers.

There was a great concourse of people assembled to witness the display. The exhibition lasted more than an hour, and their evolutions were very creditable.

The two Houses do not this turn out to meet the scarred veterans returning from the frontier, which is a sad commentary upon the action of the General Assembly.

The Militia Bill has passed the House by a very heavy majority.

Late Southern News—The Exchange of Prisoners.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—A letter from the Army of the Potomac says: Richmond papers of the 7th have been received here and are filled with the details of the late raid of Gen. Kilpatrick's cavalry, the greater portion being copied from Northern journals. These accounts mainly agree with those already published in regard to the damage done by the raiders, the panic and rush of the citizens, and the flight of prisoners.

The Richmond Dispatch, in its account of Gen. Kilpatrick's retreat down the Peninsula, says that Bradley Johnson's troops followed, and Scarborough's, and others, but refused to assist from behind, and that Johnson's men, who had only been dismounted, and about half of Dahlgren's party in his rear.

He turned upon them, but Dahlgren's men succeeded in uniting their way through, with the loss of twenty-one men.

The rebel troops have been ordered back to Richmond, and an order of thanks for their conduct has been issued to Gen. Hampton.

The Richmond Enquirer says: Dahlgren was killed at Walkerton, had two bullets through his head, one through his hand, and two through his body. He was stripped naked, and lying on the road. A number of our men were captured, and the Whig says they should not be treated as prisoners of war, but that the day's sun should not go down before every scoundrel taken, is blown from the cannon's mouth.

Gen. Sherman's Movements.

St. Louis, March 9.—The steamer Lewiston, from the lower river, brings us intelligence that Sherman and his staff had left Vicksburg, on the 28th ult., designing to have an interview with Gen. Banks or Admiral Porter in reference to joint enterprises.

Congressional.

Washington, Dec. March 9, 1864.

House.—The bill regulating the dismissal of officers from the military and naval service was passed.

The bill for the protection of overland emigrants, and the bill to establish a Bureau of Military Justice were also passed.

The House then went into Committee on the Legislative Appropriation Bill.

Mr. McClurg, of Missouri, defended himself and associate radicals from Messrs. King and Blair. Mr. McClurg in reviewing his colleagues, King and Blair, said their attacks upon himself and other radicals were unprovoked and malicious and supported only by falsehoods. He also spoke of them as renegades and infamous.

The committee proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. Farnsworth, of Illinois, from the committee on Military Affairs, reported back sundry memorials and resolutions to reinburse soldiers for the clothing destroyed or lost while on march or in battle, and asked to be discharged from their consideration on the ground that the law of July, 1862, authorizes the Secretary of War to furnish clothing to the sick, wounded and other soldiers who have lost the same by the casualties of war, and, therefore, no further legislation is necessary. The report was re-committed to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. Garfield, of Ohio, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported back, with an amendment, the Senate's joint resolution of thanks to Major General Thomas and officers and men under him, for bravery and courage at Chickamauga, and requesting the President to communicate said resolution in suitable terms to the General. The amendment provides for thanks jointly to Gens. Rosecrans and Thomas, and in that form was passed.

The House adjourned without disposing of the Judicial Appropriation Bill.

Senate.—Mr. Sherman, of Ohio, submitted a memorial from officers and members of the Ohio Wool growers' Association, representing that from reliable data, and in the belief of the Association, five hundred thousand dollars' worth of sheep in the State of Ohio, and a partial record of damages done to sheep husbandry by them, amounts to one hundred thousand dollars in other parts years, and they pray for a grant of one dollar upon each dog.

The Senate adjourned.

Collections made on all the principal cities throughout the United States.

Col. Dahlgren's Death Confirmed by Richmond Papers—Union Prisoners in Arms.

Washington, March 9.—The Republican publishes the following official dispatch which was received last night:

Fortress Monroe, March 8.—To Hon. E. M. Stanton, Secretary of War.—The flag-of-truce boat has arrived with forty-eight officers and over six hundred privates, delivered for exchange.

The Richmond papers give the account of Col. Dahlgren's death, and of the capture of Cook.

The Richmond papers of this morning say, that on the 5th of March, Gen. Sherman was at Canton, on the Mississippi Central Railroad, and that he had taken a large number of negroes, and leaves the country impoverished.

There is no further news of importance, save that the Richmond papers state that the Confederates have ordered a list of Kilpatrick's officers they have captured, to be put in irons. Signed,

R. F. Butler,
Maj. Gen. Commanding.
