FRIDAY, MARCH 18, 1864.

The Call for 200,000 More Men.

There have been, for some time past, many intimations that another call for an additional 200,000 men would be made, they were uttered by the press and the publications, and now it has been made known that the bill relating to the Mercer and Butler Company, was called up by Mr. McCandless and discussed, but no vote was taken.

BALTIMORE.

A supplement to the Standard and Pittsburgh Post company.

A bill extending the period of service of three years, as will make it possible for us to meet our present difficulties, and to give us a strong force to repel any invasion of the South.

The Senate adjourned till Monday evening.

Horace—No bills were in place reported on Friday.

The bill chartering the New Castle and Burnside Railroad passed finally.

Gen. Burnside and Harckey visited the Senate on Friday.

Gen. Grant's report on the condition of affairs in the West.

It is stated that Gen. Grant above all desires to have just such an irresistible force as will not only defeat, but overpower and subdue the rebels.

We well know that it is the last chance in the game, but we may be compelled to make a sacrifice.

There need not be so much inci-dency in the premises, we think—for as not only our most competent general, but now every leading member of the Government, is in favor of a bold and decisive stroke.

The importance of putting forth such a preparedness, as will make it possible to meet the rebels on their own ground.

It is evident that Gen. Grant is not in favor of a bold and

decisive stroke.

General Grant's Report—What he says.

Gen. Grant reached Cincinnati Saturday night, and Sunday morning paid a visit to Washington and Cincinnati, and left the latter on his return to Nashville. The Columbus Journal says:

We are indebted to the politeness of Hon.

John Newton, Senator from the 23d District, for the information in relation to the recent military movements.

Newton, with Gen. Grant's family and his son, accompanied him on his recent visit to Corinth.

Mr. Newton having alluded to his appointment, Gen. Grant remarked that while it lessened his labor to have him responsible for the conduct of the war, it was done for them.

Gen. Grant, during this interview, remained that it would be of no use merely to say that we should be destroyed Lee's army.

He utterly and absolutely avowed all discretion to do with the rebellion what he should see fit.

He firmly and positively asserted that he had no personal or political matters at the war is over.

And Senator Newton assured that Gen.

Grant had no personal or political matters at the war is over.

The great news of the Tennessee election which are coming in indicate the existence of an extensive Union sentiment. There were sixteen hundred votes cast in the county, and one thousand two hundred in the city.

Half the usual peace vote were brought in Dickson county, one thousand five hundred in the county of Carroll, and one thousand in the county of Franklin.
